TRIAL ON CORRUPTION CHARGE

S. Viet Generals Purged In Pre-Election Shake-Up

SAIGON (AP)—A major shakeup was reported under way today among high-ranking generals of South Vietnam's armed forces.

One account from reliable sources said five generals would be relieved of their duties and tried on charges of corruption.

The purge came as civilian candidates stressed the corruption theme in final stages of the Sept. 3 presidential election.

In the military shakeup, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, chief of state, told reporters the military rulers are discussing a plan that will "go from generals to second lieutenants."

SUGGESTS CORRUPTION

Asked if any of the generals had been fired for corruption, Thieu replied: "Not yet."

Qualified unofficial sources reported that Maj. Gen. Linh Quang Vien, the minister of security, and Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Vy, the chief of staff of the joint general staff, would be relieved of their military duties and sent abroad as ambassadors.

These sources said Maj. Gen. Tran Ngoc Tam, South Vietnam's co-ordinator with the Free World Forces Command, and Maj. Gen. Bui Hu Nhon, commander of the Thu Duc military school, would leave the army.

Rain Moves North

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Torrential rains that have driven numerous rivers and streams over their banks, from Georgia to the Virginias, moved slowly northward early today.

Quebec Commission Urges Complete Medicare Plan

QUEBEC (CP)—A universal medical care plan giving virtually complete insurance coverage against illness to Quebec residents was recommended today by the provincial government's royal commission on health.

The provincial plan suggested agrees with all qualifications of the federal medical care program, including the scheduled starting date of July 1, 1968. It would cover everyone, including mental cases, portable from province to province, be state-run on a non-profit basis and subject to public audit.

Cost of medical care is estimated at $230,000,000 in the first year.

Suggested financing is a one-per-cent levy on taxable income, subject to exemptions and maximum limits. The federal and Quebec governments would also contribute.

The recommendations go further than public statements to date of Premier Daniel Johnson, who has advocated a partial step-by-step medical care plan.

The report is by an eight-member commission whose chairman is actuary Claude Castonguay.

Recommendations are:

—Drugs prescribed for the chronically ill should be covered at the start and this coverage could be extended when drug prices and financial resources permit.

—Dental surgery should be covered at the start; but other aspects of dental care should be added progressively along with such things as eye examinations and chiropractic care.

The commission says a one-per-cent increase in Quebec's income tax would produce $35,000,000. Ottawa would pay $105,000,000 as its share and Quebec $90,000,000 out of general revenue.

It says a uniform rate for specified medical services should be established and doctors should be permitted to disassociate themselves from the system as individuals but not as groups.

EX-AIDE HELD

Sniper Slays U.S. Nazi Chieftain

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI)—George Lincoln Rockwell, "fuehrer" of the American Nazi Party, was shot to death today by an assassin in a parking lot ambush. Minutes later, police arrested a suspect identified as a former Rockwell follower.

HOFFMAN RULED FIT FOR TRIAL

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP)—Victor Ernest Hoffman, 21, today was ruled fit to stand trial on a charge of capital murder in the Aug. 15 shooting death of James Peterson, 47, of Shell Lake, Sask.

Mr. Peterson, his wife Evelyn, 42, and seven of their children were found slain by a neighbor.

Magistrate J. M. Policha announced the decision in court and set Oct. 24 for a preliminary hearing to be held here, 80 miles northwest of Saskatoon.

Rockwell, 49, was hit in the head and chest by sniper bullets in the parking lot of a small shopping centre in suburban Washington, D.C., where he had gone to wash his clothes at a coin-operated laundry.

Witnesses said the sniper leaped from the roof of a beauty parlor after the shooting and fled into a park about five blocks away. He was a white man wearing yellow socks and a trench coat.

Commonwealth Attorney William J. Hassan said that the unidentified suspect was associated with Rockwell, but made no further identification. No weapon was found immediately.

TWO SHOTS

Witnesses said two shots were fired from the top of the laundry as Rockwell backed his blue and white old model Chevrolet out of a parking space.

Both bullets went through the windshield. One struck Rockwell in the head and the other hit him just above the heart. He apparently died instantly.

His car kept moving and stopped when it collided with another automobile in the parking lot. Police said he fell partially out of the car after being hit.

SAW KILLER

Robert Hancock, 17, a laundry attendant, said he heard two shots about 12:20 p.m. EDT that came from atop the one-story building. He said Rockwell, his car moving, apparently dived for the passenger side of the front seat, indicating he might have seen his assassin before he was hit.

Rockwell, the son of a vaudeville comic, organized the Nazi party in 1959 with the avowed policy of deporting Negroes to Africa, dispossessing Jews and sterilizing them, and hanging "traitors" like former presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman.

In 1961, Rockwell told a reporter: "The Jews may try to assassinate me to stop me from speaking, but if they get to me, I'll kill them."

The Thomson group already publishes 23 daily newspapers in the U.S., 26 dailies in Canada, more than a dozen in England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland including The Times of London and the Sunday Times.

Chinese Attack Border

From AP-Reuters

HONG KONG (CP)—Machine-gun fire rattled across the border from China into Hong Kong tonight, whining over the heads of British officers in an observation tower.

Two bombs were also lobbed over the frontier and a British Gurkha soldier retaliated with a smoke grenade.

No casualties were reported on the Hong Kong side.

But a government spokesman said one of the bombs apparently bounced back into Chinese territory. It exploded and people were seen being carried away, he said.

It was after the bomb-throwing incident that Chinese troops opened up with machine-guns, the spokesman said.

He said three men spotted throwing the bombs were flushed out by a smoke grenade thrown from the British side.

The trouble erupted at a border bridge at Lowu, where British troops earlier lobbed tear gas grenades to drive a crowd of stone-throwing Chinese peasants back across the border.

WARNED BRITISH

The peasants had crossed to till their plots on the Hong Kong side while Chinese soldiers warned the British over loudspeakers that if they tried to obstruct the peasants they would be "held responsible for the consequences."

The British replied with loudspeaker announcements that the Lowu crossing was open as always for farmers to cross and peacefully work their fields.

The peasants tilled their land quietly for three hours, but as they made their way slowly back to the bridge across the border, they lingered near the immigration office on the British side.

Pollution Move Costs $23.5M

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

Greater Victoria will have to start construction of the $23.5 million sewage treatment and collection project within two years—regardless of how property owners feel about it.

This is one of the impacts of a tough new British Columbia government policy towards water pollution announced today—and another one towards air pollution will be announced next month.

A cabinet order and a press conference this morning revealed the massive new push to force municipalities to stop polluting the water tables, rivers, lakes and seashores of the province.

BOARD HAS POWER

The cost to the affected municipalities across the province was described as well under $100 million but for the first time on this scale property owners will not be given the final say through borrowing bylaws.

The program will be carried out on the direct orders of the Ex-Storm Trooper Kills Self

HANNOVER, West Germany (Reuters)—Otto Hess, a leading figure in West Germany's extreme right-wing National Democratic party, has committed suicide, a party official said today.

Hess, 58-year-old former colonel in the Nazi storm troopers, was found dying by a lodger at his home in Bissendorf about 6 p.m. Thursday, said Waldemar Schuetz, a fellow member of the party presidium. He died soon after being taken to hospital.

Hess was one of the most controversial figures in the party because of his Nazi past.

He was a prominent supporter of Deputy Chairman Adolf von Thaden, leader of an extremist faction which toppled Chairman Fritz Thielen in an internal party power struggle in March.

MORTARS, GRENADES BREAK CYPRUS TRUCE

NICOSIA (AP)—Greek and Turkish Cypriots early today exchanged thousands of shots in a new flareup at Limassol, southern port of Cyprus.

Greek Cypriot sources said the shooting started soon after two police Land Rovers passing through the town's Turkish area were fired on by Turks. The police returned the fire and shooting continued intermittently for about two hours.

After a brief pause, heavy firing was resumed, in which mortars and grenades were used, the sources added.

No casualties were reported.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR ANSWERS CRITICS

CYC Embraces 'Radicals' But Communists Kept Out

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The executive director of the Company of Young Canadians has flatly rejected reports of an "extremist" takeover of the controversial youth program.

At a press conference Thursday Alan Clarke also said he had received no charges that any member of the CYC was a communist and was sure there were none in the company.

If such allegations should be made, he would call for an investigation to determine whether they could be substantiated, Mr. Clarke said.

His press conference was called in the wake of a story in the Montreal Gazette that radicals had infiltrated the CYC.

The newspaper said that "some of them are Marxist and others possibly communist oriented."

It then quoted from an article by Lynn Curtis, a Victoria-based CYC volunteer, carried in the magazine "Scan" which is described as a publication directed at communist youth.

"I know both Lynn Curtis and his parents and he is not a communist," Mr. Clarke said.

There was no room for extremists whose actions conflicted with the democratic aims and purposes of the CYC's program to help alleviate social problems in Canada; Mr. Clarke said.

But the company could and does embrace "radicals" whom Mr. Clarke described as persons concerned with attacking the "basic and root problems of society."

Company a 'Flop' Says Tory Chief

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Conservative national leader John Diefenbaker described Prime Minister Pearson's Company of Young Canadians today as an "ill digested" piece of legislation "borrowed from the United States that has acted as a magnet for crackpots and lefties."

He conceded that there were some "dedicated young people" in the organization. But he said it was the type of organization the Communists would seek to take over to try to change the social order within Canada.

"It has proved to be a gigantic flop," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

TORY ROUNDUP

Delegate Bid Denied by Dief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

John Diefenbaker and most of the men who are out to wrest his job from him were out to wrest the move Thursday but the Conservative leader was still not saying whether he's in the running for the job himself.

While Dave Fulton, Donald Fleming, Alvin Hamilton, Wallace McCutcheon and George Hees were drumming up support for their leadership bids, the 72-year-old party chieftain paid a sentimental visit to the house where he was born.

And he kept up the guessing game he has played successfully from the start of the race which will reach a climax at the Sept. 5-9 leadership convention in Toronto.

But reports Thursday persisted that Mr. Diefenbaker's actions, and actions on his behalf by others, indicate he plans a fight to the finish.

Reliable sources said such move was a request to convention headquarters for a full list of voting delegates and alternates—more than 4,000 names, addresses and telephone numbers.

DENIES REPORT
Later, during a visit to the old yellow-brick Diefenbaker home at Neustadt, Ont., Mr. Diefenbaker denied that either he or his staff had made such a request.

In Montreal, Mr. Fulton, former justice minister, told delegates at a reception that the leadership is already within his (Fulton's) grasp.

"Victory is here," he told the enthusiastic audience. The Liberal party is no longer acceptable in Quebec, he said. He expected full participation by French-Canadians in the Conservative party.

He discounted the idea that he had been on the political scene too long. "The delegates I have talked to don't share this view at all," said Mr. Fulton, 51.

Night Classes Registration Starts Sept. 5

Registration for Saanich school board night classes will begin Sept. 5, not Oct. 5 as reported Thursday.

Classes start Oct. 2, and will be held at Claremont Senior Secondary School and North Saanich Junior Secondary School. Further information is available from the school board at 656-1111.

"They didn't necessarily want new men but rather experienced men with a new approach."

Here's what other candidates were saying:
Senator McCutcheon: The Conservative party must revive its organization. What was needed was a new constitutional method for the party to ease the transition from one leader to another.

Donald Fleming: The Social Credit party should withdraw from federal politics. If it did, the Conservatives would succeed in extending "much more widely the basis of its political support."

Alvin Hamilton: "I'll put up my ideas against George Hees' fluency in French."

While Mr. Hamilton held forth in English for more than an hour at a press conference before Quebec City's French-language press, Mr. Hees issued another of his policy statements from his Toronto headquarters. It outlined plans for a new program to solve the world hunger crisis.

In the sixth of seven such planned statements, Mr. Hees also called for the reorganization of the external affairs department to co-ordinate foreign, defence and economic policies, along with production of a white paper on Canada's objectives abroad.

ONE STATE, 2 NATIONS

Senator McCutcheon, speaking before a news conference at Toronto, said Canada is one sovereign state but it has two nations "or maybe more, just as in Great Britain there are Welsh, Irish, English and Scots."

Mr. Fleming was in Halifax Thursday and told a news conference he thought Canada had too many political parties. "You can see the effect on this in Parliament where the multiplicity of parties often retards transaction of parliamentary business."

He was confident he would win and expected strong Nova Scotia support despite Premier Robert Stanfield's entry into the leadership race.

Former agriculture minister Hamilton's remark about George Hees' French arose when a reporter asked for his opinion on Mr. Hees' thesis that future prime ministers should be bilingual.

Two French-language reporters walked up to Mr. Hamilton at the end of the conference and shook his hand, including the one who asked the question on bilingualism.

U.K., SOVIET TO SET UP 'HOT LINE'

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia and Britain today signed an agreement to set up a "hot line" teleprinter link between the Kremlin and Prime Minister Wilson's London office.

The foreign office announced that the agreement was signed by Deputy Foreign Minister George Thomson and Russian Ambassador Mikhail Smirnovsky.

The "hot line" will enable Wilson to consult quickly with Soviet Premier Kossygin on international developments.

British officials said it would start operating soon but they did not give the exact date.

Aid Bill Trimmed In House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives, laboring through a marathon 15-hour session, voted today to slash President Johnson's foreign aid program by $500,000,000 to $2,800,000,000.

The vote record was 202 to 194. The House — passed measure contains nearly $200,000,000 more than the Senate approved last week.

The differences, mostly in the military assistance section of the legislation, now must be resolved by a two-house conference committee.

Included among the major cuts were $150,000,000 from the development loan program, $72,000,000 from the Alliance for Progress and $25,000,000 from the president's contingency fund.

Another $50,000,000 for support of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was chopped out after members were told they already had authorized the money in a separate bill passed earlier.

SNIPING BEGINS

Is Bennett at War With Establishment?

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

A marked change in the province's political climate appears to be under way.

After almost two years of truce between the province's "Establishment" and Premier Bennett, sniping has broken out again and we may soon see full-scale war between the two.

In a most unusual public confrontation this week, Mr. Bennett and two sons of the Wallace ship-building family eluded it out in front of a dozen newspaper reporters.

John Wallace of Yarrow and David Wallace of Burrard Drydock were fairly bristling at Mr. Bennett's decision to change government policy on the rules for bidding on ferry shipwreck repairs.

In actual fact only $17,000 was really at stake in that row yet the premier felt obliged to say some harsh things and even to send out a plane as well as urgent phone calls to bring in his cabinet for an emergency session so that he could confront the Wallaces with the news his government was "unanimous."

The pros and cons of the very involved subject are not important here. What is important is the extraordinary crisis atmosphere that suddenly built up and very nearly led to a full-blown slanging match.

"We're both businessmen," John Wallace told the premier jolly at one point and the connotation of that remark was a clear warning to the premier that from now on business was business with no love lost between them.

This would hardly be remarkable except that John Wallace is a director of the Bank of B.C. and has been regarded in some quarters as the establishment's liaison man on the board which largely has been packed with the premier's men.

And it comes in the same week that Frank Trebell resigned as president, apparently without letting the premier know as a courtesy.

To understand the full import of Mr. Trebell's move, one has to go back more than a year — back in fact to the inaugural run of the Queen of Prince Rupert last May.

The premier just came back from a trip to Wall Street where he had received half of the $100 million loan he'd requested and, on a sudden sidetrip to Los Angeles had consulted a public relations firm about timing and strategy for a quick election campaign. To reporters he said that he only asked $50 million for a starter and would try to obtain the other $50 million from Canadian financiers later.

On the eve of the inaugural, the premier hounded reporters to write up his praises of the Power Corporation of Canada for buying The York-Shire Trust from English interests and making it a B.C.-based financial firm. Power Corporation, you'll remember, was the main owner of the private B.C. Electric Company and had said some bitter words against the premier.

"The dynamic society has made a friend out of one of its enemies," he trumpeted. "The Power Corporation of Canada has many interests — they own Laurentide and half a dozen other companies — and they're making B.C. their main operation area."

Reading between the lines, he might have been saying: I've won my fight to be accepted and even embraced by the Establishment and now have a very large financial group to help me with that other $50 million.

And so Premier and Mrs. Bennett stayed a day at the Lakeside Hot Springs resort near Kootenay during their motor tour of the north after the ferry's inaugural run.

Lakeside was another Power Corporation holding and he went there as a specially invited guest which he was quick to point out to reporters as much as to say: "Look, the Establishment even asks me into its home. I've finally convinced them I'm here to stay and they better like it."

The election was held but despite a general belief the So-creds would demolish the opposition, Mr. Bennett actually lost relative strength in an enlarged house and slowly it became apparent that it was not absolutely certain the So-creds would stay in power forever.

So, instead of getting the remaining $50 million from his new-found Canadian friends, Mr. Bennett had to go back to Wall Street to plead for a second instalment.

He got it but became more determined than ever to gain financial independence through the Bank of B.C. even if the government was not allowed to own shares.

When it came time to name the new directors, it became obvious that none had the particular experience or influence needed to fill the president's post, so what happened? The Power Corporation obligingly loaned the services of Frank Trebell who was running York-Shire Trust for it.

Mr. Bennett pushed hard and publicly for the bank to raise $250 million in capital and Mr. Trebell quietly but effectively cut this down to $74 million at first and then $25 million later.

The establishment did not come through with subscriptions as Mr. Bennett had hoped and in the result even Mr. Trebell's conservative target proved too high.

Then another strange thing occurred. Members of the establishment, although requesting anonymity, talked freely to reporters about being "pressured" by the premier by phone to chip in at least $1 million from each of their companies to make the capitalization drive a success.

The mere fact that they would talk about such delicate matters is the significant thing and Mr. Bennett, stung bitterly, retaliated with a press conference condemning "the enemies of B.C." represented by federal Liberal politicians, the press and unidentified but prominent businessmen.

In quick succession, York-Shire's owners held a major board meeting at which Mr. Trebell insisted there was "no pressure whatever" but found himself faced with a decision and chose to leave the bank to return to York-Shire immediately, despite the awkward co-incidence that the bank's vice-president was being buried the same day after a violent death.

Mr. Bennett was not pleased when the resignation was announced and he could hardly have been any happier when only a few days later he was locked in a most uncomfortable dispute with the Wallace cousins.

Mr. Bennett fought the establishment and lost many times before he became premier, but in the past few years he has won the laurels of victory. To find that the glorious vines wrapped round his head have begun to fade must be galling.

If he were a young man still, he could re-enter the lists for another titanic struggle and I would wager he would win again — but then so many things could be accomplished by us all save for that little word "if."

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—Fog patches in the central Interior along with cloud and some showers in the north coast region was the only disruption to the generally clear skies over the province Thursday night.

A system moving into the Alaskan panhandle this morning will keep showers into most of the north coast through Saturday. The remainder of British Columbia will continue to be influenced by a strong ridge of high pressure which will maintain sunny skies through the weekend. Temperatures will show a little warming over most areas, especially through the Interior.

Heavy Fighting Rages At Key Nigerian Town

LAGOS, Nigeria (Reuters)—Heavy fighting was raging 130 miles east of Lagos as government forces attempted to halt a secessionist Biafran advance on the federal capital, reports reaching here said today.

Both the federal government and the breakaway Eastern Region claimed possession of the key crossroads town of Ore in the Western Region.

The city commands the main routes to Lagos and Ibadan, capital of the Western state. Radio Nigeria, the voice of the federal government, said Biafran troops were driven out of Ore Wednesday after holding the town for two days. But Radio Biafra claimed its troops consolidated their hold on Ore and captured five other towns in a drive on Ibadan.

The federal radio said more than 1,000 troops moved into defensive positions in the Western Region war zone to prevent a breakthrough which could lead to a drive on Lagos by the rebel troops.

The secessionist radio said

Ute and Sobe, both just inside the Western state border were among towns captured Thursday.

In the Eastern capital of Enugu, a secessionist government spokesman accused the federal government of keeping foreign journalists away from the war front to prevent them from seeing white mercenaries on the federal side.

He was commenting on a foreign news agency report that Biafra has used white mercenaries during the two-month-long civil war which was triggered by the Eastern Region's declaration of independence 11 weeks ago.

"On several occasions we have taken foreign correspondents in Biafra to the war front," he said. At no time have they found any white man fighting side by side with our ground troops."

In Lagos, federal authorities began issuing identity cards to all Ibo tribesmen living around the Nigerian capital. Ibos are the dominant tribe in Biafra.

'Secret' Blurted Out

BRASILIA (AP)—The slip of an official's tongue in an open hearing appeared to reveal Thursday that Brazil and Argentina are secretly negotiating a nuclear development treaty.

The disclosure came during testimony by Uziel da Costa Ribiera, chief of Brazil's nuclear energy program, before an open session of a legislative committee on mines and energy.

An opposition deputy, Marcio Moreira Alves, asked Costa Ribiera about a reported nuclear pact with Argentina, and Costa Ribiera replied:

"We are still in the stage of secret negotiations."

FRENCH 'DISMISS' N-TREATY DRAFT

PARIS (Reuters)—A French foreign ministry spokesman Thursday dismissed a joint Soviet-U.S. draft nuclear non-proliferation treaty as simply a consolidation of nuclear monopoly.

Reaction in other world centres to the proposed treaty, which was offered to the 17-nation Geneva disarmament conference Thursday, was generally reserved, mostly because of the absence of a provision for international controls to guard against violations.

The French spokesman said the draft was not a significant move toward disarmament.

The French government, along with China, boycotted the Geneva conference and frequently made it clear in the past it would not subscribe to any treaty coming out of it.

FRENCH STAY AWAY

French President de Gaulle refused to send a delegation to the Geneva talks on the grounds that the conference was too unwieldy to negotiate the complex problems of nuclear disarmament.

French newspapers also showed little enthusiasm for the joint draft and predicted long, arduous negotiations in Geneva.

In Tokyo, Japanese Foreign Minister Takeo Miki welcomed the draft as a big step toward the halting of the spread of nuclear weapons.

But the three major opposition parties in Japan all issued statements criticizing the draft because it lacked a guarantee for non-nuclear countries against nuclear threats.

Policemen Plead Guilty To Break-In VANCOUVER (CP)—Two men admitted Thursday they broke into a bakery in 1966, while on duty as constables of the Vancouver city police force.

The two constables, now suspended from the force, are Marvin Magnusson, 33, and David Mundrean, 41. They pleaded guilty in magistrate's court to breaking into Dad's Cookies Ltd. on Dec. 11, 1966.

Magnusson also pleaded guilty to stealing a woodworking tool and possession of a tape recorder and a lock-picking device. Both were stolen in separate break-ins.

Mundrean also pleaded guilty to possession of goods stolen from two other establishments.

The accused were remanded to Aug. 31 for sentence. They were allowed to remain free on $2,500 bail each.

Devil and Deep Sea

IN ITS DETERMINATION TO reduce to the minimum its demands on the bond market, the federal government is going to have to take a second look at its burgeoning role as financial intermediary for such agencies as Central Mortgage and Housing, Farm Credit Corporation, Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. and others. In this role the government takes advantage of its top credit rating to borrow funds at the lowest possible interest rate and then passes the loans on to the agencies.

Central Mortgage and Housing, according to Ottawa report, will be the first to feel the effects of the new policy and the likely effect will be unpleasant for both prospective home-owners and the building and supplies industries alike. With the present shortage of private mortgage funds, it had been expected direct loans from CMHC would be provided to meet builders' demands until next spring. At a minimum this would mean supplying CMHC with $200 millions in addition to the $750 millions already allocated (and mostly spent) and the decision has been, apparently, that the money will not be made available.

For a nation already short of housing units, this is a grave decision and heavy pressure will be placed on the government to reconsider. Even with an estimated $650 millions of direct CMHC lending so far this year, demand for housing is such that house prices and rents have sky-rocketed to new record levels and people of moderate means are increasingly forced into sub-standard accommodation—a potent political threat to any government.

Additionally, all the industries directly and indirectly dependent on home building, and the huge working force which has gathered around these industries, will be making representation to Ottawa to release more funds to meet the shortage. Putting the government even more strongly on the hook is the fact that just a few months ago several cabinet ministers were optimistically predicting that the housing shortage was on the way to being solved, that sufficient funds would be provided and that some 30,000 to 40,000 more units would be built this year than during the average of the past three years.

One partial way out of the dilemma would be for the government to conserve its remaining housing funds for the areas where they are most sorely needed — low-cost and low-rental housing. Even in a time of serious financial need it would be short-sighted to abandon this field, since to do so would create a problem much more expensive to correct as time goes on. In particular, housing connected with urban renewal programs should be financed, even at the expense of some other point of government concern, where the deterioration of urban areas threatens to contribute to social and health hazards.

The Missing Link

IT IS A MODERATE SUCCESS that has brought the United States and Russia to agreement on a draft treaty to curb the spread of nuclear weapons. Unfortunately the key clause which deals with enforcement of the restriction remains blank, and the treaty will be useless until this point, heretofore insoluble, can be cleared up.

Under the treaty, nuclear powers agree not to pass on nuclear weapons or secrets of the trade to non-nuclear nations, while the latter undertake to refrain from manufacture or purchase of such weapons. But the article which governs the authority that will supervise operation of the treaty is the missing link. West Germany and several other Common Market countries want inspections to be carried out by the European Atomic Energy Organization, which is their own agency. Russia and the United States see the International Atomic Energy Agency as the proper body. The Soviet Union, in particular, does not trust the European body to reveal all pertinent information on West German nuclear developments, while Berlin fears that the international agency could not be depended on to keep silence on such nuclear secrets as West Germany might evolve. India, Sweden and Romania, in addition, are worried that the treaty does not include sufficient security guarantees for non-nuclear nations.

And outside the negotiations and the treaty stands Red China—forging ahead with its own nuclear development and unlikely for many years to come to be agreeable to any form of voluntary restriction. That attitude, of course, is at once an obstacle to global security through agreement on control of the atom, and even more clearly a warning that agreement must be reached if the world is to survive.

Tools for What Job?

THE SHAH OF IRAN, WHO might best be described as an enlightened but still despotic ruler, contracted with Washington during his visit this week for another $40 millions worth of American jet fighter-bombers, which brings his acquisition of United States arms in the past 15 years up near the $1-billion mark. In addition, the Shah in recent months has been receiving large quantities of Soviet arms, partly through aid and partly in return for the sale of natural gas to Russia.

White House officials were quoted as saying they are not worried by the fact that the Shah is getting arms from both the United States and the Soviet Union since he has so clearly established his independence. But this hardly clears up the question of why Iran, which despite oil and gas revenues is a relatively poor country, needs hundreds of millions of dollars worth of sophisticated arms.

The same officials state that the Shah has achieved substantial economic and political reform, although this has been strenuously challenged by Iranian refugees in many countries, most recently during his state visit to West Germany. At that time, with a complete misunderstanding of democratic processes, the Shah demanded that German authorities prosecute Iranian political refugees who demonstrated against him on his arrival in Bonn.

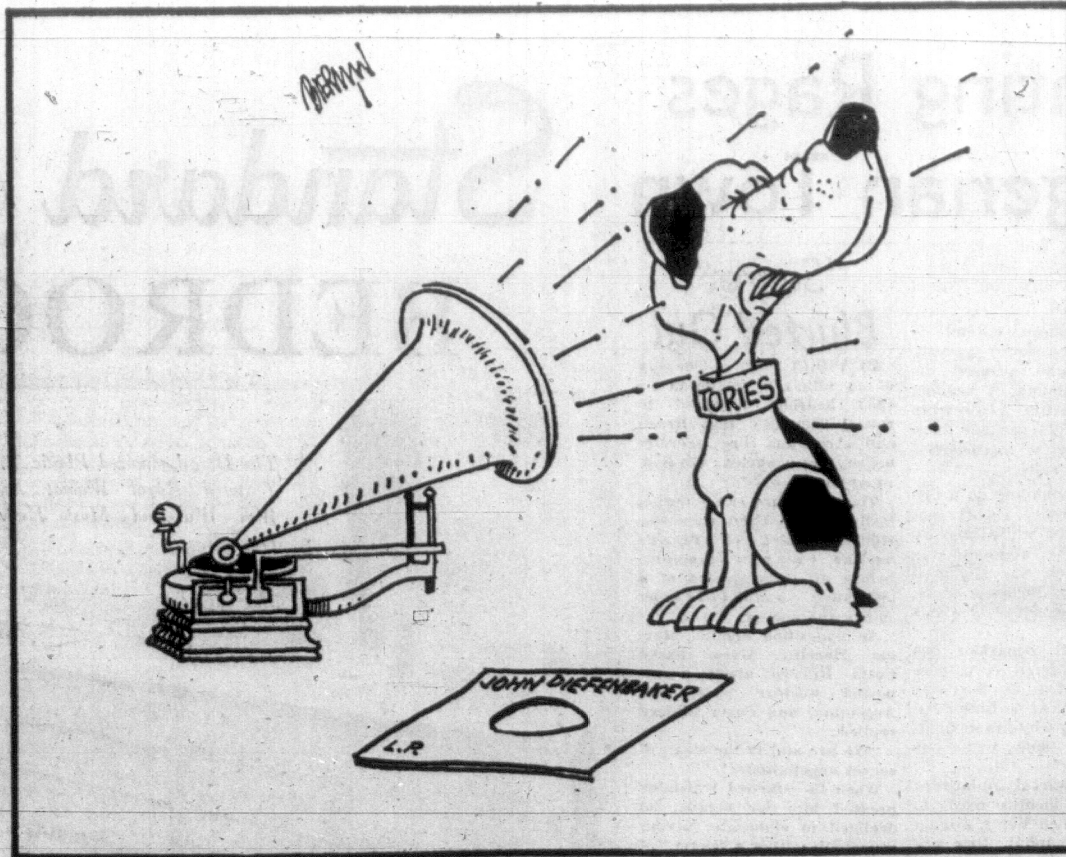

One can't help but wonder why so many small countries need such large amounts of armaments when they are faced with no external threats. One wonders even more why the big powers continue to accommodate them with supplies when experience has shown that all too frequently they are used for the suppression of domestic opponents or to upset the balance of power among neighboring countries.

Recognizing an Anachronism

IT IS A MARK OF MORE ENLIGHTENED times that a special Episcopal Church committee in New York has recommended the elimination of heresy trials and the abandonment of the entire concept in current theological discussion. The committee regards the charge of heresy as an anachronism defying new insights of history and culture and implying a fixed prejudgment of an alleged culprit.

In most branches of the Christian faith many former "absolutes" have yielded to the findings of science and the development of thought which has sprung from them. As churches of most denominations move further into the new era, the relics of an outworn orthodoxy are being left behind with the stake and other elements of the inquisition. Further recognition is being given to the positive approach based on what religion can do for people, not to them.

His Master's Voice

FROM CALGARY

Albertans Read Between Bilingual Lines

By JAMES H. GRAY

JUST when the signs begin to indicate a softening in the traditional and deep western antipathy toward a bilingual Canada, something always happens to reveal how superficial progress has been. The most recent "something" was the appearance of bilingual signs in the Banff National Park.

If letters to the editor are any criterion, nothing has so stirred up the populace in recent years. To the grumblers who have been increasingly linked by the total bilingualism of federal government publications, the French signs around Banff were the last straw.

The discovery of the French signs triggered an angry blast against the Federal Parks Administration by the Calgary Herald. This precipitated a spate of letter writing that shows no sign of abating after a month.

Not all the writers were against the French signs. In fact, perhaps a good third of them defend the signs, but mostly for the wrong reasons.

Anything, they say, that gives Canada a different image from the United States ought to be seized with enthusiasm. It will be a nice gesture for the tourists. When they come to Banff and see the French signs it will create the illusion that they have arrived in a foreign country.

That illusion will be shattered of course if the glibble tourists try to find someone in Alberta to talk to in French. Outside a handful of enclaves in each of the prairie provinces, you can live and die in the west without ever hearing a word of French used.

There is hope abroad that this may change a generation hence when the school kids of today reach maturity and start using the French they learn in school. The recent expansion of the teaching of French was brought off without any opposition to speak of. There is a universal opinion that it is a cultural advantage to know more than one language.

The acceptance of French lessons, however, had very little to do with Canadian bilingualism, biculturalism, two-nation theories or founding races. If the choice of the second language had been Spanish, or even Russian, German or Ukrainian, the reaction might have been roughly the same. It was a second language that was being accepted, not specifically the acceptance of French. Of course, when the authorities chose French the special place it has in Canadian life was undoubtedly the prime consideration.

Angry Reaction

The unanimity with which the people of the prairies reacted angrily toward General Charles de Gaulle is an indication of another important quick in collective prairie personality. It was a reaction against a foreigner trying to tell them what to do. Reacting violently to outside pressure has been a prairie characteristic since the first days of settlement.

There are still westerners by the thousands who can be reached by verbal blasts against "eastern" interests, by charges of domination of our economy by St. James Street and Bay Street. Post war industrialization has rescued the west from its dependence on the one-crop wheat economy. Post war urbanization has flooded out most of the agrarian discontent as a fact of political life. But any attempt by "the East" to impose its will on the prairies will be wrecked on the shoals of prairie anti-eastern antagonism. And in this context the Quebec Separatists and the milder B and B tub-thumpers are indubitably identified with "the East."

Battle Cry

The battle cry of the Separatists, as it is heard in the west, is for the right of French Canadians to have their children taught in their own language everywhere in Canada. The reaction to the Banff signs is an indication of what is likely to happen if a serious attempt is made to set up schools in the French language.

The demand for French schools everywhere is concentrated on Ottawa. The campaign, therefore, is completely out of focus. Education on the prairies, as much as in Quebec, is the exclusive responsibility of the provincial governments. No amount of agitation in Quebec for the establishment of French schools in Alberta is likely to accomplish anything. Not even a French-Canadian Nationalist majority in the House of Commons can accomplish anything on that score.

FROM WASHINGTON

Revolutionary Guidelines

By RICHARD PURSER

THE little intellectual magazines — those small monthly or quarterly publications of unknown learned societies and rural liberal arts colleges — have no extensive readership here or anywhere else. In Washington, they are customarily peddled in a couple of scruffy stores which subsidize their sale by purveying large quantities of pornography catering to any and all sexes.

But the summer issue of Monthly Review, a "socialist" periodical edited by a pair of ultra-leftists and apologists for Fidel Castro named Leo Huberman and Paul Sweezy, has made the breakthrough. It is being snapped up in the high class bookstores where the capitalist's Top People have their charge accounts, and is required reading for the diplomatic and intelligence elites.

The entire issue is devoted to an English translation of a Spanish book by Regis Debray, a young and brilliant Frenchman of good family who has abandoned the heritage of his birth and is at present in danger of sentence of death in Bolivia for revolutionary activities. The Debray case, a cause celebre in France, has focussed attention on his book — Revolution in the Revolution? — now for the first time readily available in English.

Fidel's Thought

It was first published in Havana in January of this year, with an extraordinarily large initial print order and a heavy sales push from the Cuban regime. As was indicated at the time, and was confirmed by the tone of the recent conference of Latin revolutionaries in Havana, Mr. Debray has given the first full presentation of the revolutionary thought of Dr. Castro and his mystery colleague, Dr. Ernesto Guevara.

The essential point about this revolutionary concept, now through Mr. Debray's work receiving its debut in formal articulation by an insider (outsiders like the American Theodore Draper have examined Castroism from other points of view), is that it bypasses as irrelevant much of the ideology of Marx and his followers.

It ignores the endless words written about the social conditions for revolution, tactical theory, evolution of the proletariat, and so on. It accepts that the revolution against the "bourgeois" state (in the Latin American context) cannot succeed as a spontaneous mass movement but must be the work, at least at the beginning, of a limited group of activist guerrilla revolutionaries. The business of the revolutionaries, in short, to make the revolution.

This may or may not be the writing on the wall in Latin America. But there are enough revolutionary enclaves already existing, with the example and support of Dr. Castro behind them, for the Castro-Guevara-Debray doctrine to be taken seriously.

Played by Ear

The doctrine is grounded in pragmatism. It is perhaps as well, says Mr. Debray, that Dr. Castro landed in Oriente ignorant of the writings of Mao Tse-tung. "He could thus invent, on the spot and out of his own experience, principles of a military doctrine in conformity with the terrain." This is the opposite of the attitude of the intellectual, who "will try to grasp the present through preconceived ideological constructs and live it through books."

The revolutionary must not pose textbook questions, but must rather ask the basic question: "How to overthrow the power of the capitalist state?" (The need to do so is beyond question to the author.) The answer: "By means of the more or less slow building up of a mobile strategic force, nucleus of a people's army and of a future socialist state."

Successful Marxist revolutionaries, notably Lenin and Mao, used the leftist principle in practice while never dropping for public display the Marxist ideology of communism as a natural mass movement. Debray drops the cant. He specifically contradicts the maxim of the idealistic Cuban revolutionary Camilo Cienfuegos that "the rebel army is the people." (Cienfuegos may have been too idealistic: he died several years ago when his plane vanished over Cuba. To this day the belief is strong in Cuba that either Dr. Castro or his vicious brother Raul may have had something to do with it.)

Mr. Debray's presentation is incisive, masterful, and ruthless in its logic — given the premise that the capitalist (or Washington-supported) state in Latin America must be destroyed. He defends a dozen heresies against traditional Marxism. But his goal is simple and chilling: "Seizing state power in order to transform the social structure." Achievement of this goal means dropping the traditional concept of the Communist party as all-powerful from the beginning. The new concept is of the military (guerrilla) leadership leading to the political movement — a "new dialectic," as Mr. Debray calls it.

The social order of Latin America does have to be changed. But is it to be changed in the Castro-Debray manner, or in a way that will permit a free society? The issue is on the line, and is of fundamental concern to all in this hemisphere.

"Aw, Joey, don't cry! Most people would like to get shot on a hot day like this!"

Letters

Conscientious Objectors

In regard to your editorial "In Spain the Reign" we could add the "Reign in Portugal," where the same savagery is manifested in imprisoning men, women and children for merely holding a Bible study in their own homes. The Danish radio on Nov. 27, 1965, noted the Church's responsibility.

How refreshing it is then to note the manner the Swedish Government has taken in regard to Jehovah's Witnesses. Sweden's paper, Freiden, in its June 10, 1966, issue commented about it editorially, saying: "Thus Jehovah's Witnesses will in the future, after an individual investigation, be relieved of compulsory service by the simple method of not being called up at all. Sweden's Riksdag is to be congratulated for this decision which solves a problem that has hitherto been looked upon as unsolvable." — Clifford Roberts, 920 Darwin Ave.

Mustard

What Canada needs today is not so much a five-cent cigar but five cents of mustard to stiffen the spines of our politicians.

Having followed NDP, Liberal and Conservative conventions in recent years, we feel that many Canadians are sick of the problem of NDP State Welfareism, the platitudinous porridge of Liberalism and more recently the puny peace efforts of those "new breed" Conservatives who would try to duck international responsibility by suggesting that Canada withdraw from NORAD.

We could well begin by stopping the jump to attention whenever the fear-merchants dangle the bogey of "world opinion." The opinion that counts is the opinion of the guy or gal who stands in the polling booth — as many Governments have learned to their dismay. — D. C. McClure, President, North Surrey Branch Citizens for Better Government.

Perpetuals

As a long-time bondholder I feel deep sympathy for Mr. Robert J. Howard's protest on behalf of perpetual bondholders. He is however quite mistaken. It is untrue to say "these bonds matured in 1966" (or any year), the very name "perpetual" shows any thinking person that the bonds do NOT mature. What happened in 1966 was that the coupons attached to these bonds were all used up, but the government immediately and in good time supplied new coupons so that the bondholders continued to receive the interest due to them.

What did happen, and is still happening, to ALL bondholders (mortgages, insurance policies, money on deposit, etc.) is that owing chiefly to excessive government spending, money is rapidly losing its purchasing power, and owing to the great demand for money, interest rates are rising. Who is going to pay full price for earlier government loans issued at much lower rates of interest? We (mostly elderly people) face a very heavy capital loss if we want to realize our money.

Someone has well said "Every price or wage increase is a slap in the face for the bondholder." My face is sore right now!! — Another Investor.

Sobering Thought

I wonder if that Victoria Godiva Committee would ever have been formed if they had witnessed the fearful bombing that Coventry experienced during the last war. If they had maybe it would have sobered them.

The Bible admonishes that women should clothe themselves in "modest apparel" so I hope Victoria's Godiva will be modestly clad. If not, then those who line the streets to gawk will be sharing with her in disobedience of God's admonition. — An Ex-Coventry Citizen.

Generations

With a stern reprimand and a hearty "high ho silver" Mr. Baird has solved the intricate and serious problems of young people caught in a rapidly changing and often contradictory society. Has Mr. Baird spoken with these young people, attempted to reach beyond his crackler-barrel philosophic code?

"No," says Mr. Baird, "I don't need to, their actions speak out loud for them."

That a generation gap exists between Mr. Baird's concept of a modern society and that of the hippies is obvious. What is interesting is a semantic comparison between the hippies' request to hold a "love-in," and Mr. Baird's comment that "I can't send the police into the square with whips, as much as I would like to."

Like it or not, Mr. Baird, "the times they are a' changing." — Gary Perkins, 4558 Cordova Bay Road.

Looking Back

From the Times, August 25, 1967.

It is expected that the city's new erosion control plant will be installed and placed in operation during the next few weeks and that paving will commence by the middle of October.

The contractor, Andrew Gray, has notified city council that the machinery and relays are nearly finished and council will make the first payment on the plant by next week.

As soon as the plant is in running order work will begin on Government Street.

'Oust the U.S.' Goal of Huks

By STUART GRIFFIN

TOKYO—The Huks are on the move again from their traditional Mount Arayat stronghold in Luzon, the biggest of the 7,000 islands of the Philippines.

Some pooh-pooh the Huk threat, saying: "It must be budget time again" — meaning the threat is being used by the government to justify overblown defence spending. But others in unsettled, dispoor areas of Luzon see a real threat.

The Huks were originally a band of patriots fighting World War II Japanese invaders, but when the war was over they turned into a communist-inspired guerrilla movement.

This is what they are today. Their aim is to stamp out U.S. influence in the Philippines, get rid of the United States military bases, and establish a communist "people's democracy."

An ironic factor is that much financial support for the Huks comes from the U.S. Clark Air Force Base holds 30,000 airmen, officers and dependents, who patronize the three-mile-long strip of shops, bars, brothels, shack hotels, laundries and garages outside the gates of the base.

The Americans alone spend some $75,000 a day, and nobody knows how much of this is diverted to the Huks.

Clark's command also knows that the Huks extort cash from cab-drivers, bar-owners, prostitutes and small shopkeepers off base in the town of Angeles. But the Americans are reluctant to put Angeles out of bounds for fear of damaging service morale and for fear of the effect on the local community, whose livelihood depends on the air base.

In addition some 6,500 Filipinos work on the base for good pay, and the Huks don't them all for a title. Further Huk funds come from extortion under murder threat of countless peaceful Filipinos. But they also use other methods which add to their strength.

They will, for example, help farmers to harvest crops, search for and return stolen caribao (the Filipino's mainstay water-buffalo) and enforce fairer treatment for share-crop farmers from landlords held at gun barrel or knife point.

In return they ask for shelter when the police and army put on the heat, and only rarely for food or money. The hard core of the Huk movement is thought to number no more than a few hundred, but they exert an influence out of all proportion to such numbers.

A Manila senator, Manuel P. Manahan, says the Huks have "set up an invisible government" . . . have entrenched themselves in four vital activities — taxation, business, justice and politics. "To an outsider it looks as if the Huks would do better if they made common cause with the Philippine Communist party and the leftist Masaka — the free federation of farmers."

But there are personal rivalries and ideological differences in the way. So far there is no Philippine red guard movement, but expert observers believe that should one arise it would come from the Peking-admiring Huks, rather than from the left-wing parties.

MARCOS . . . ambitious program

Years ago the late president Ramon Magsaysay — who was killed in an air crash in 1957 — made noteworthy headway against the Huks, using army action combined with resettlement schemes. But the conditions which nourish the cause of the Huks remain — grinding poverty in the Philippine countryside and government neglect of fundamental rights and needs. Along with recent military forays in which a number of Huk leaders have been killed or captured, President Ferdinand E. Marcos has now launched an ambitious program in the debt-ridden, up-country provinces.

It is aimed at building more schools, hospitals, roads, dams and bridges, digging more wells and irrigation ditches, importing medicines, school books, pesticides and agricultural chemicals and spreading electric light and power.

It is the most determined attack yet on the problems of the Philippines' havens, but only when these plans are converted into action will a beginning have been made at undermining the influence of the Huks. (London Observer Service)

By DAVID MACKIE

GIBRALTAR — High on the dockyard wall, someone has proudly painted the words: "260. anos de libertad" — 260 years of freedom.

The referendum in which Gibraltarians will be asked to choose between a future with Britain and a future with Spain will be held Sept. 10, and there seems no doubt of the result.

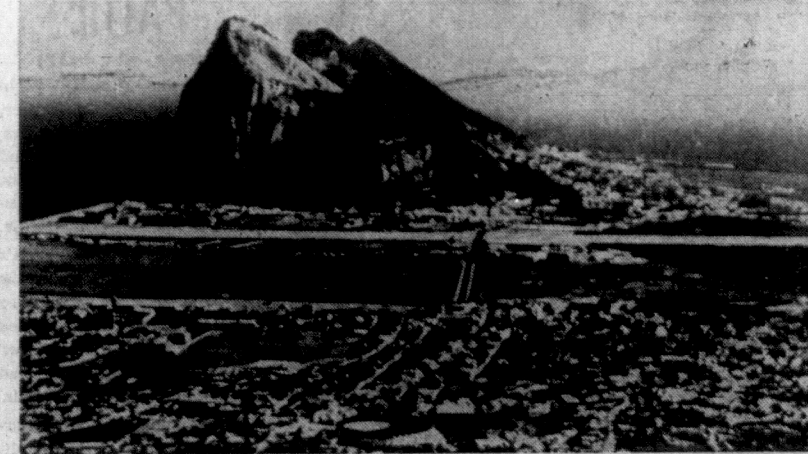

Popular estimates put the number of pro-Spanish votes at between 200 and 500—that is to say, at the very most no more than 5 per cent. Certainly it is rare to find a place where the painters of slogans and the stickers of bills speak with so united and determined a voice.

This remains true in spite of the very real apprehension about what Spain may do if the referendum goes against her. Several courses of action are widely held to be open to the Spanish government.

Skillful Pilots

It can close the frontier at La Linea, except for those times when the work force of 6,000 that still makes the daily journey from Spain is due to come across. It can try to put still tighter restrictions on air access—already the approach to Gibraltar is one of the more difficult among the world's airports, and, although the skill of the pilots has so far enabled the planes to come in almost as if nothing had happened, there may be more difficulty in the winter months.

The Spaniards can try to impose limits on access by sea. They can close the ferry which links the Rock with the mainland at Algeciras—a substantial blow. Finally, they can stop the Spanish workers coming across altogether.

"The Rock" Has Lures for Tourist

Imports from Spain have dried up: If you have a bottle of Spanish wine on your hotel table it has probably come in via London. Eighty-five per cent of the Rock's fruit and vegetables is brought in from Morocco. The imposition of price control has shielded the housewife's pocket but at the expense, some say, of the standard of produce available.

Some sources of income are improving—the trade Gibraltar gets from cruise ships which moor in its bay is growing, although it is still not as high as Gibraltarians think it should be. But the Spanish pressure, combined with the decline in Britain's military commitment, has forced the governments of Britain and Gibraltar to look hard at what can be made of the Rock's two and a quarter square miles.

Since Gibraltar manufactures little and has no wealth of natural resources to exploit, the main aim is to build up the tourist trade. A development plan involving the spending of $6 million was

Use Every Resource

All this would make life on the rock more difficult but it would not make it insupportable. The reaction of Gibraltar in the face of Spanish sanctions has been to try to make the economy lean and fit, to profit from disadvantage by exploiting every available home resource.

Some of the losses have certainly been substantial. The general level of trade is estimated to have dropped by 40 per cent; traffic across the frontier at La Linea is down by the same amount (there was a fall in Gibraltar's customs receipts of 36 per cent below the original estimate in the first year after restrictions).

The car hire business has crumbled, since there is nowhere very much to drive. Rich people who used to come over from their homes on the Spanish coast to shop no longer do so.

Worst hit of all has been the car ferry between Gibraltar and Tangier, which, now that motorists from Spain can no longer use it, is running at a heavy loss and is being supported by government subsidy. Even air service from London, though mercifully not badly hit by fears born of Spanish air restrictions, is uneconomic.

Imports from Spain have dried up: If you have a bottle of Spanish wine on your hotel table it has probably come in via London. Eighty-five per cent of the Rock's fruit and vegetables is brought in from Morocco. The imposition of price control has shielded the housewife's pocket but at the expense, some say, of the standard of produce available.

Since Gibraltar manufactures little and has no wealth of natural resources to exploit, the main aim is to build up the tourist trade. A development plan involving the spending of $6 million was announced by the two governments in December.

Six months ago, a director of tourism was appointed. On the Atlantic coast, where the bays are not sandy as they are on the eastern side, a new holiday beach is being built in concrete. A cable car railway now takes tourists to the top of the Rock.

Apart from the scenery, which is bold and beautiful, and the weather, which is all holiday-makers need, the main recommendation of Gibraltar for many tourists might well be its Britishness.

If you do not want a shopping area crammed with English-style pubs, wimpy bars, fish and chipperies and the rest, then Gibraltar, with its constant sense of out-Englishing the English, may not be for you.

Food, Water Good

On the other hand, some of the things about travel abroad that deter some holiday-makers are no problem in Gibraltar.

Everyone speaks English. The food is unlikely to upset you and you can drink straight from the tap without horrific visions of typhoid.

Even if you should fall ill, you would not find yourself locked away in some hospital where people discuss you in unfamiliar tongues and a formidable bill is built up in the accounts department down the corridor: for those who stay more than six days, treatment is free.

All these are good lures for the tourist, and the tourist office now plays heavily on Gibraltar as the gateway to Africa: across the water lies mysterious Morocco, and the former international city of Tangier.

The Rock is also beginning to make much of its tax advantages, seeking to become a nest for "brass plate companies" in the manner of the Channel Isles.

Tangier, in fact, is at present engaged in some expensive new attractions for tourists, too. There is a big comprehensive development scheme in which foreign investors are being besieged to join; preliminary work has been started on a lake, two miles wide and two miles long, around which Tangier's tourists will be able to sit and dabble their feet when the east wind blows up and keeps them off the beaches.

These, though, are not the best of days for Tangier. The Americans are nowhere to be seen since the Middle East war. One superb new hotel stands two-thirds empty, the private pool exclusively occupied by an elderly lady doing calisthenic exercises.

No Way Out

The saddest thing about Gibraltar just now—and the general atmosphere is not sad at all but purposeful and buoyant—is that politically there still seems no sign of a way out. People hope things will get better when Franco goes.

But it is difficult to see how Franco's disappearance would lead in the short term to a more pleasurable line—especially if there is a disputed succession. All Gibraltar can do, therefore, is to stick the thing out.

Meanwhile, Gibraltarians treasure its civil and religious liberties (the population is 85 per cent Catholic but there's no sense of ecclesiastical stranglehold as there is in Malta).

They have only to look across the border to know what life would be like if these liberties were lost. Two hundred and sixty anos de libertad are not lightly forgotten when only a thin strip of land stands between one and Franco's Spain.

Willing to Confront Urban Problems

ROMNEY'S ACT OF MORAL COURAGE

By DAVID S. BRODER

WASHINGTON — The other evening on CBS, Eric Sevareid was doing a little post-vacation philosophizing on what he described as the widening gulf between small-town, rural America and the great cities.

Revisiting the Dakotas, where he grew up, Sevareid said he found his friends who had stayed on the farm talking of the cities with their rictus, crime and racial tension, as if they were a foreign country, alien and dangerous to the "real America" they knew.

Sevareid's thoughts seemed particularly apt on Sunday morning when Gov. George Romney left his summer home on rustic Mackinac Island (where even the automobile — a symbol of 20th century America — is prohibited), rode in a horse-drawn carriage to the island airstrip, and then flew south to the industrial city of Flint to join a Negro civil rights demonstration and urge its participants not to resort to violence.

In an hour's time, he had crossed from the horse-and-buggy era to the unpleasant realities of today's urban life. Romney is from the kind of America to which Sevareid refers.

The western towns where Romney's family lived while his carpenter father scratched for a livelihood — places like Rexburg, Idaho, and Salt Lake City — had no smog, no crowding, little serious crime and virtually no Negroes.

The western experience was strengthened by the teachings of Mormonism, a uniquely 19th century American religion, which exhorts the frontier virtues of strenuous self-improvement and voluntary co-operation as the surest guarantee of rewards in this world and the next.

But unlike Barry Goldwater, who grew up in frontier Phoenix in a world not unlike Romney's, the Michigan governor does not believe that government must remain strictly neutral in men's struggle for self-fulfillment lest destroy their initiative. And unlike Sevareid's old friends, he does not draw back in shock or revulsion from the problems of contemporary urban life. On the contrary, as he showed Sunday, Romney's instinct is to confront the challenge head-on. When Flint Negroes showed increasing anger over the city council's rejection of an open-housing ordinance and the council's effort to prevent their protest meeting, Romney decided on his own to step into the cross-fire.

The intervention was fore-ordained to bring criticism from the militants on both sides of the issue. The white councilmen and their constituents did not welcome his explicit endorsement of the inclusive open-occupancy ordinance that they had refused, by a 5-3 majority, to pass.

And to the angry youths in the crowd of 7,000 demonstrators he addressed, Romney's warning that he would meet any violence "with the full force and authority I command" negated any sympathy he expressed for the purpose of their rally.

He left Flint uncertain whether his intervention had succeeded either in swaying the council's decision or in heading off the threat of violence.

The political prudence of Romney's appearance, from the point of view of his presidential ambitions was questionable. The party whose nomination Romney is seeking is still at heart the party of small town and rural America. Its major leaders and spokesmen customarily express, as Sevareid's schoolmates in North Dakota do, an abhorrence of all the big city life has come to mean.

It is difficult to imagine many of the Republicans' congressional leaders or the other presidential prospects voluntarily giving up a Sunday's relaxation to sit in the hot sun and listen as a succession of angry Negroes give voice to the frustrations and indignities they experience in a typical American city.

It is difficult to imagine many of them expressing as unequivocally as Romney did his own indignation at the denial of their rights.

In the crudest political terms, it is not particularly helpful for a man who hopes next August to win the Republican presidential nomination from Richard Nixon and Ronald Reagan to allow the television cameras to show him singing freedom songs with Negro militants at an open-house rally.

That Romney chose to do so does not, of course, qualify him more than someone else to be president of the United States. The willingness to confront an issue is not the same as the wisdom to solve it. But it is a step in that direction, and as an act of moral courage, in building one small bridge between the two Americas Sevareid describes, it commands respect.

Jet-Propelled Squid Has Freedom of the Seas

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Most molluscs are associated with a solid support in some way. Either they crawl along the bottom of the sea or lake, or creep about on dry land, or they burrow beneath the surface. Some may cling to vegetation but this in turn is often rooted to firm support. The relatively heavy body usually weighted down with a shell and with a muscular foot of some type makes it necessary for these animals to live on or in a fixed environment. However, there are several exceptions. Chief among these is the squid, which is as independent of the bottom as any creature can be. Equipped with jet-propulsion and a pair of fins it is entirely water-borne and capable of living at any depth it wishes and capable of travelling in any direction.

The squid is beautifully designed for a free-swimming life. Its light-weight body is streamlined, unencumbered with a shell; it has keen eyesight and fast reflexes.

The exit funnel from the breathing chamber can be directed forward or backward almost instantly so the animal can squirt itself in either direction at a moment's notice.

It can speedily change color to a remarkable degree, enabling it to escape from predators or to sneak up on prey.

Squids are to be found in all oceans of the world and in all shapes and sizes ranging from delicate, transparent creatures smaller than a finger to robust monsters more than 40 feet long. Incidentally, the largest invertebrate known. They are therefore one of the most versatile groups of molluscs and the giant members are the most fearsome.

Equally independent of the bottom are several kinds of snails called pteropods. These are literally "wing-footed" creatures which swim by a flying movement of flap-like body extensions which are really over-developed parts of the foot.

Since many of them are exceedingly delicate-looking and brightly hued they are sometimes called "sea butterflies."

Some have a fragile, transparent shell giving a clue to their true molluscan relationship; others are shell-less but are still undoubtedly of snail stock.

Another group of molluscs is pelagic in another way. These are the "violet snails" which drift about attached to a gelatinous mass of bubble-like vesicles floating on the surface of the ocean. They occur in schools and feed upon jellyfishes which they capture by a prehensile proboscis which each snail can shoot out like a sucking tube. Their violet color makes them rather inconspicuous in the sea.

One other mollusc, sometimes seen locally in quite large numbers, swims free in the open water although it may cling to sea weeds on occasion. This is the so-called hooded or lion-headed nudibranch — a sea-slug with a curious-looking collar over the front end and with numerous flap-like extensions of its body. It resembles a jellyfish in general appearance and texture but a close look shows molluscan characters including a foot, which, however, is weakly developed.

While drifting with the current in open water the animal moves with a swaying rhythmic movement of the whole body, holding the hood well expanded to trap unwary small creatures for food. When it comes in contact with sea-weed or other support it may cling for a time before drifting off again with the current.

AROUND OUR SHORES

Sailing Eyes on Victorians

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Victoria can be justifiably proud of four native sons who have reached a high level of competition in North American sailing. Jack Woodward, Gordie Inglis, Jerry Anderson and Peter Townshend will compete next week in Montreal for the Mallory Cup. It is a trophy of great stature.

Hewett

The winner is declared the championship senior sailing team of Canada and the United States. This is a highly specialized type of competition. It is the ultimate test of racing skills, strategy and tactics. It is different from Swiftsure, for example, where luck in guessing wind and tide often determines the victor.

To reach these finals, which begin on Monday at the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club, helmsman Woodward and his crew had first to take the Vancouver Island Eliminations. They then went on to win the area H finals in Seattle, where they raced in Thistles. (Competition is always in a three-man boat using spinnaker.)

Their high-powered opponents included the Washington Flying Dutchman and Thistle champions. It is a measure of their excellence that the Victorian team could step into an unfamiliar boat and defeat the local champion who was sailing his own class boat on his own waters.

But excellence is also a function of experience. Jack, Gordie and Pete have been sailing since their early teens. Jerry got his start 10 years ago crewing for Ned Ashe on the original May D. The men also belong to the vanishing breed who have built the boats — over 10 among them — which they sail and race.

The first of these dates back to the era when the Star, the classic Olympic Games keel boat, reigned supreme. For 10 years, Jack crewed for Peter in this class. Gordie also competed in the Star boats. For a time, he owned the venerable Mintaka, which still turns out to race. (Star boat competition has developed many outstanding helmsmen, including Bill Buchanan of 1967 Swiftsure fame and Bus Mosbacher, who is favored to defend the America's Cup.)

In the early fifties, Jack, Gordie and Peter pioneered a new trend in northwest sailing. This was the cruising boat which could also be raced as a one-design. The Olympic Cub class sloops were established in Victoria with the launching of Gordie's Panicle in 1954. Peter and Jack still own and race their original boats, the Fox and Sugar. Jerry also built and raced his own Cub.

In Montreal, the men will compete in a local class boat, the 26-foot Sabre Scow, which was evolved in 1965 from traditional scows. It features a tunnel bottom for added stability at high speeds and a simplified mast and rigging to reduce windage aloft.

The centre board has a beam of six feet six inches; draft eight inches or four feet with board down; weight 840 pounds and carries 272 square feet of sail. The spinnaker adds another 400 square feet. The scow's designer, Roger Hewson of the host yacht club, was a crew member with some of last year's Mallory Cup finalists.

Representatives from eight regional areas in Canada and the United States will sail the round-robin series over an eight-mile triangle course. The only other areas which can have Canadians as the representatives are Area D, which includes the St. Lawrence Valley and the Maritimes, and Area E, which covers the Great Lakes.

Another event next week with international lustre will involve some of Victoria's top sailing talent. This is the revival of the North American six-metre championships, to be held from the Bellingham Yacht Club in conjunction with the Seattle Corinthian Yacht Club.

Some 24 boats, all from the Pacific Northwest, will participate in what will probably be the largest congregation of "Sixes" ever to assemble in one place.

The meet officially commences on the 26th with the measuring of the boats. Then, a three-race series will see 11 a.m. starts on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. This will be followed by a team race: Three U.S. boats versus three Canadian boats. One race will be held on Tuesday afternoon and two on the Wednesday.

Participating will be John Todd's Llanoria from RVYC. Crew members include Norman Marcus and Mel Steffans of Victoria and Charlie Coleman and Brian Price of Duncan. The other two "Sixes" based in Victoria are the Juno II owned by a four-man group, and John Hilborn's Alana.

Other Canadian entries will be the Yam Sing and Buzzy III from Maple Bay, and the Hank O and Ca Va from Vancouver. The latter boat, formerly called Trim, is owned and raced by the sailmaking Miller brothers, Sid and Phil.

This spectacle will be a photographer's dream. The "Sixes" are sometimes called the "swans of the sailing world". Indeed, there is nothing to match them for grace of line. Well worth a trip to Bellingham for those who have the time to watch.

INTREPID AGAINST PATTIE

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Intrepid, the 12-metre yacht skippered by Bud Mosbacher, defeated Columbia again Thursday and was selected to defend the America's Cup for the United States against the Australian challenger, Dame Pattie.

Almost before Columbia's lines were made fast to the dock, the selection committee moved alongside and informed owner Pat Dougan and skipper Briggs Cunningham they had been eliminated from the trials.

Then Commodore Henry Morgan, chairman of the committee, went to Intrepid's dock and told Mosbacher his ship will defend the cup against Dame Pattie in a best-of-seven series of races off Newport starting Sept. 12.

Mosbacher successfully defended the Cup in 1962 as skipper of Weatherly against the Australian Gretzel.

The last race in America's Cup competition, which started in 1851, was in 1964 when Constellation beat the British challenger Sovereign. The United States never has lost the cup.

In posting her 19th victory in 20 trial races, Intrepid crossed the finish line three minutes, 51 seconds ahead of Columbia.

HISTORIANS from across Canada wind up a seminar today at the University of Victoria at which they have been discussing regionalism in Canada. Attending an informal press conference Thursday afternoon, at which time they discussed past and current trends in the discussion and writing of history, were from left, Prof. Goldwin French, McMaster University; Prof. W. L. Morton, Trent University; Prof. Morris Zaslow, University of Western Ontario, and Prof. Serge Gagnon, University of Ottawa.

Writers Smoothing Out Lumps In Jotting Down Our History

"History is a set of problems. You work them out and come up with an answer not necessarily the same as someone else's."

These are the words of Prof. W. L. Morton, eminent Canadian historian now chairing a five-day seminar at the University of Victoria.

Professor Morton made the remarks Thursday at an informal press conference with three other participating historians, Morris Zaslow of the University of Western Ontario, Goldwin French of McMaster University, and Serge Gagnon of the University of Ottawa.

ONE OF FOUR

The seminar is one of four held over the past two years in various regions of Canada. They are sponsored by the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada and the Canadian Historical Society, and include professors and graduate students.

The theme for this seminar, which ends today, is "regionalism in Canada."

The discussion Thursday revolved around changing Canadian history.

"History in Canada has broadened," said Prof. Morton. "It used to be limited to political and constitutional studies. Economic history was the first breakthrough."

"Now we have sociology and psychology involved, and we have religious and institutional histories."

INDIVIDUALS

"Recent biographies have only come in the last dozen years, and they have changed the character of Canadian history. Now we know something of individuals."

Prof. Morton called Canadian history "lumpy."

"We have studied some areas well, but left others out. As far as general Canadian history is concerned, once we get the CPR to British Columbia, we tend to forget about the province."

"The same is true of Quebec. Canadian history forgets about French Canada after the conquest."

Prof. Morton is critical of the teaching of Canadian history in schools.

"Dull texts and dull teaching have made Canadian history

Thoughtless Use Of Incinerators Causes Alarm

If people continue to cause fires by thoughtless use of incinerators, it may be necessary to ban all incinerator burning, says Langford Fire Chief Alan LeQuesne.

Four such fires have been started in the past two days, he said.

"A few people are abusing the incinerator bylaw. We don't want to ban incinerator burning. This is an unorganized area with no garbage collection."

"If people want to use their incinerators they should burn in the early morning or late evening and stand by with a garden hose and not leave the fire unattended," he said.

"It seems we've had a little dew at night and people have needed an extra blanket on the bed. They seem to think they can burn as if it was mid-winter," Mr. LeQuesne said.

HUGE CLEAN-UP COMMENCES

Fairbanks Like 'Giant Backyard'

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—After the deluge comes the reckoning—and the race to tidy up before the subzero temperatures of mid-September.

Last week this city of 30,000 wore a dirty brown blanket of water up to 10 feet deep, spilled out of the flooding Chena River. Half the population had fled for their lives. Seven were dead. Damage totalled $150,000,000 to $200,000,000.

Today most of Fairbanks looks like a giant backyard, where residents are drying rugs, mattresses, furniture and wearing apparel on clotheslines, fences, posts and rooftops.

Lloyd Teel stood outside his home in the Aurora subdivision and held his hand four feet up the muddy wall from where his feet sloshed in the muck. "I am gonna rebuild," Teel said. "And this time the floors are gonna be up here where my hand is, and I'm gonna have walls two feet thick, reinforced with steel."

He was one of thousands who have been returning to the sodden ruins of homes and businesses this week while the devastating floodwaters ebbed away.

A man in the Westgate district, his basement still flooded, was in despair.

"I'd be better off to leave," said Pete Dunn. "I have $10,000 worth of equity but I also have $10,000 worth of damage. I figure I'll fix the thing up and move on up a hill."

Many residents, with furnishings and clothing lost during the week-long nightmare, flocked around stores which offered water-soaked merchandise at bargain prices. One shop was selling shirts for 25 cents each and you could buy a pair of work pants for $2.

As the people began the huge clean-up, many found their houses and shops almost a total loss.

Only a scant five per cent or so were reported to have flood insurance.

"Some radicals have made a major contribution, but not an exclusive one, to the CYC," he added.

There had been no takeover by any particular group, Mr. Clarke said, adding that this would be impossible because of checks and balances incorporated in the policy of the provisional advisory council of the company.

On the other hand no young person would be excluded from joining because of his philosophy or ideology—"except as it conflicts with the democratic aims and principles" of the CYC.

Mr. Curtis, who is 25, has not moved outside his terms of reference, Mr. Clarke said.

In the CYC's annual report these terms were described in this manner:

"Young people in Victoria are organizing a variety of activities, including a youth council, occasional happenings, and other educational and recreational projects."

CURTIS NOT SEDITIOUS

Mr. Clarke said that while he did not subscribe to many of Mr. Curtis' views as set out in the Scan article, he did not think they were "seditious."

Mr. Curtis wrote that there had been a tremendous shift to the left in the CYC—"a general acceptance of the concept of social change rather than social reform."

"The analysis accepts that many of the things thought to be problems are really only symptoms of a rotting middle class system and that this is what needs changing," he continued.

Mr. Curtis said that if current plans are carried out the company would become a "hard core of activists" able to do quality work rather than "a large group of kids with emphasis on quantity."

The CYC should become difficult to join because of high standards in "social conscience, awareness of the society, maturity, youth communication ability."

The company has both ideas and a lot of federal government financial backing which radical youth should not steer away from, Mr. Curtis told his readers.

"If you find that you are presently spending a lot of time talking, this might be your chance to get off your ass and do something," Mr. Curtis concluded.

Mr. Clark said that as a Canadian and a volunteer Mr. Curtis had a right to hold and express his own views, although the CYC executive did not associate with them.

DEDS WOULDN'T STAY

"This is not a reflection of company policy, it is the reflection of one view, Mr. Clarke said.

He repeated that his personal knowledge of Mr. Curtis and his family convinced him that the boy was in no way a communist.

As a general policy there is no such thing as "ideological screening" of CYC trainees.

Mr. Clarke acknowledged that if a communist wished to lie he could infiltrate the organization as a volunteer, but would soon be weeded out by the nature of close contact between volunteers and those who help and supervise their activities.

At the moment there are 85

Family Trio Convicted In Near Riot

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—Two brothers and a sister, arrested following a July 22 near riot involving more than 500 people, were convicted of five counts Thursday.

Thomas Rene Daniels, Gary Joseph Daniels and Kay Francis Daniels, all of Kitwanga were remanded until today for sentence.

Miss Daniels and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Daniels, also of Kitwanga today face four more charges arising from the demonstration that saw 10 persons jailed after more than an hour of rock and beer-bottle tossing.

Thomas and Gary Daniels were convicted on charges of assaulting a peace officer and obstruction.

Miss Daniels was convicted on a charge of obstruction.

Joseph Daniels, the man whose arrest started the near riot, will face trial on an intoxication charge today. His wife will appear on charges of obstruction and causing a disturbance and Miss Daniels will face a charge of causing a disturbance by being drunk.

Petition Urges Truscott Trial

OTTAWA (CP)—A group of local Italian Canadians plans to petition Pope Paul VI in a bid to obtain a new trial for convicted murderer Steven Truscott.

Norma Bjerke, a housewife from nearby Aymer, Que., said in an interview Thursday she has already obtained 3,000 signatures for the petition. Pope Paul will be asked to sign it, it then will be circulated in Italy and finally sent to Justice Minister Trudeau.

volunteers and 40 trainees in 25 CYC projects in Canada.

The decision not to "screen" volunteers—or members—had been taken by the advisory council in consultation with security officials, Mr. Clarke said.

SCREENING UNFAIR

"It would be impossible for anyone to get into the company who held totalitarian views because of our rigid selection service," he said.

He said that to screen Mr. Curtis now would be "unfair unless specific charges were laid against him."

He did not know the volunteer had contributed an article to Scan, but said Mr. Curtis was free to publish his views anywhere they would be printed.

Mr. Clarke could not accept the necessity of forcing CYC volunteers and members to confine their views of the company within its own boundaries.

The CYC was different from any other government organization, he said, and every youth group in the country "has a great deal of discussion and our volunteers want to be part of it."

"Discipline is not a word in our vocabulary," Mr. Clarke said.

three weeks we will have something to say about air pollution."

Mr. Campbell distributed copies of a letter he will send immediately to all 138 municipal councils in the province warning them of the situation they will face when the legislation is submitted in January or February.

The letter says the Pollution Control Board will be authorized to set "the level of sewerage treatment to be required" of municipalities and to order them to submit engineering plans within six months of a notice of demand.

Upon approval of such plans by the PCB, "the municipality would within 18 months be required to undertake the works."

And, the letter added "compliance with these orders... would be exclusively within the jurisdiction and competence of the municipal council, and would not require the assent of the owner electors."

Mr. Campbell's form letter concludes by asking that each council inform him now about its current methods of sewage treatment and any plans it may have on the books for improving them.

VICTORIA AFFECTED FIRST

He made it clear that Greater Victoria will be affected almost immediately because the recent metro sewer study already has proposed a comprehensive proposal so the PCB could skip the first six-month deadline.

He was asked if that meant the 18-month notice to begin construction almost as soon as the legislation is approved.

"That's the idea," Mr. Campbell responded.

"Greater Victoria is the biggest urban area now with any sewage treatment facility," he said, "but there are others, such as New Westminster, Prince George, Chilliwack, Langley, Nelson and Trail."

Mr. Campbell pointed out, however, that the Greater Victoria sewer study's proposal "does not call for construction of all the trunks and laterals at once. It will be spread out over a number of years."

He added that the new law would apply to all municipalities.

NEW STANDARDS

"About 90 of the 138 municipalities have sewage treatment in some form or other now but all will come under the policy," he said.

"It may well be that some of the 90—particularly those with sewage lagoons—will have to improve their facilities to meet the new level of standards to be set by the Pollution Control Board."

Mr. Campbell said the federal government provides up to 25 per cent financial assistance for sewerage and treatment projects through borrowing "forgiveness clauses" in Central Mortgage and Housing loans if certain conditions are met.

NO PROVINCIAL AID

He bluntly said the provincial government "contributes nothing."

CHINESE

British troops on duty there lobbed two tear gas grenades. The Chinese produced homemade gas masks, but the smoke drove them back and they were all back in Chinese territory by dusk, a government spokesman said.

He said they were "clearly intent on making trouble" when they lingered near the immigration office.

COMEDIAN DIES

Meanwhile, comedian Lam Bun, known for his biting anti-Communist satire on a Hong Kong radio station, died today, a day after Communist terrorists turned him into a human torch. The terrorists later boasted that they had executed him for ridiculing leftist rioters and agitators.

... CYC

He said no effort had been made to specifically recruit "radicals" and that the CYC was not seeking to become the "hard core of activists" that Mr. Curtis had mentioned.

Mr. Clarke was concerned about the "imbalance" in the image of the CYC but was still confident its work would go forward and contribute to important progress in the Canadian way of life.

CYC PROVIDES LAWYER FOR DEPOE

OTTAWA — The Company of Young Canadians has provided a lawyer for its volunteer David DePoe who faces charges of causing a disturbance in Toronto's Yorkville area.

Alan Clarke, executive director of the CYC, said Thursday the company would give similar aid to other volunteers who encountered legal difficulty while they were involved with CYC work.

Mr. DePoe, 23, was arrested twice in recent days in connection with hippie sit-ins in Yorkville and his case will come up Aug. 28.

ing" financially and does not intend to.

Mr. Campbell said it would be unfair to the majority of communities which have installed treatment facilities—at the cost of many millions in Vancouver—on their own if the government now introduced a subsidy policy.

"Any way, these municipalities have had no trouble financing these projects. The only difficulty has been obtaining the credit."

Mr. Campbell said it was the federal government's responsibility to stop its deficit financing because the public borrowings it makes as a result dry up money sources that municipalities depend upon for credit.

Both Mr. Campbell and Health Minister Wesley Black, who also attended the briefing, said the government's action was prompted by the recent Fraser River pollution study report "and many other reports" which strongly recommended that it force municipalities to treat sewage effluent before discharging it into water courses instead of leaving it on a voluntary basis.

Mr. Black said the septic tank regulations, which will be administered by his department, come into effect immediately.

The six pages of regulations require every person installing a septic tank to obtain a permit first from a medical health officer.

SEPTIC TANK CONTROLS

The MHO also is empowered to extend the regulations to any existing septic tank or sewage disposal system which in his opinion "is or may become a danger to public health."

All septic tanks must be built to the new specifications and none may be covered without final inspection and approval.

The succeeding regulations describe the various requirements for residential and other disposal systems, their design, construction and location.

The last section prescribes a penalty for violation of the regulations of up to $100 on summary conviction and "a further penalty not exceeding ten dollars for each day thereafter during which the violation continues."

The swimming pool regulations will require certain standards of clean water, construction and design requirements and safety provisions such as suitable lifesaving equipment and surveillance by competent personnel.

the boys (Nazi party members) will carry on."

When he was shot Rockwell was free on $5,000 bond pending appeal of convictions in Chicago stemming from a 1966 disturbance.

Just Thursday, copies of the Sept. 1 issue of Rockwell's newspaper, "White Power," were distributed to congressional offices on Capitol Hill, about seven miles from where Rockwell was slain.

The paper featured the theme "Smash Nigger Power" and advertised Rockwell's new book, also called "White Power."

The book was described as an "American Mein Kampf." It offered "white men everywhere a workable, inspiring plan for doing on a world-wide basis what Adolf Hitler did for Germany."

31 Greeks Imprisoned

ATHENS (Reuters)—Thirty-one persons were sentenced today to prison terms ranging from 10 months to nine years for disobeying Greek military orders, spreading false reports and insulting the authorities. Four of the accused, including former MP Panayotis Katsikopoulos, were sentenced to nine years. Three others were acquitted.

Bad Publicity Ruins Eskimo Seal Trade

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—An unprecedented slump in the world seal-skin market, blamed on adverse publicity about seal-killing methods in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, is threatening Arctic Eskimos with economic disaster.

Officials of the northern development department say about 1,000 Eskimo families count on sealskin sales for the major part of their cash income. But their market has virtually disappeared.

Three years ago arctic seal pelts sold at an average $14.78. This dropped to $11.08 in the 1964-65 season and to $5.87 in 1965-66. In recent months the price has fallen to between $2 and $3.

The Hudson's Bay Co., main buyer of northern furs, is reported to have about 100,000 unsold sealskins in storage, equal to two years supply. It is continuing to purchase skins in the $2-3 range only as a token price to prevent extreme hardship among the Eskimos.

"There's no doubt about the cause of this situation," said Frank Carter, director of the northern administration branch. "It started when all the publicity broke about hunters skinning live baby seals in the Gulf of St. Lawrence."

Photos of the gulf operations received wide play in magazines and on European television, stirring animal-protection groups into a campaign against sealskin coats. Some top models refused to display sealskin coats or jackets.

Mr. Carter said in an interview there is no connection between hunting methods in the gulf and those used by Arctic Eskimos. Gulf sealers use heavy wooden clubs to smash the heads of baby seals. There have been accusations that many of the seals are merely stunned and die during the skinning process.

Eskimos stalk adult seals resting near ice-holes. A seal must be killed with one rifle shot or it will disappear down the hole.

During the winter of 1963-64 Eskimos sold 46,962 skins for a total return of $891,706. But in 1965-66 they got only $305,646 for 51,197 skins.

KAISER DIES AT 85

Top Industrialist Started as Clerk

HONOLULU (AP)—Henry J. Kaiser, founder of an industrial empire spread over 40 countries, died in his sleep Thursday. He was 85.

Kaiser was at his oceanfront estate about 10 miles from Honolulu when he was stricken by a circulatory and heart condition.

At his side were his wife Alyce, whom he married after the death of his first wife in 1951.

Kaiser was born May 9, 1882, at Sprout Brook, N.Y., one of four children of German immigrants. He started his career as a $1.50-a-week clerk in a Utica, N.Y., dry goods store after leaving school at 13 to help support his family.

Kaiser never longed for the "good old days." While celebrating his last birthday, the founder of the $2,700,000,000 industrial empire said:

"Yesterday is past. . . I always want to live this day to the fullest and to plunge into tomorrow's job."

BUILT DAMS

There was almost nothing Kaiser did not have a hand in: giant dams such as Hoover, Bonneville, Grand Coulee and Shasta; famed Liberty ships of the Second World War; the familiar Jeep; the Kaiser health centres; cement; aluminum; steel; chemicals; aircraft and missile components; radio and television stations; hotels; and the latest, a new community of Hawaii-Kai in Honolulu with projected population of 60,000.

About the only venture in which Kaiser didn't achieve the success he sought was in making cars. For 10 years, 750,000 Kaisers, Kaiser-Frazer's and Henry J's rolled off the assembly lines. But competition was too stiff. Kaiser withdrew to concentrate on the Jeep—utility vehicles of all kinds.

Henry Kaiser's success began in Lake Placid, N.Y., where he worked for nothing in a photographic shop on condition that if he doubled business he would get a half interest. The business tripled, he became a partner at 22, bought it out a year later and added three stores in Florida and Nassau.

But the West held dreams of which his life was to be made. He moved to Spokane, Wash., in 1906, and went to work at a hardware firm for $7 a week. In 1912 he began managing road-paving contracts.

PAVED ROADS

In 1914, at the age of 32, Henry J. Kaiser Co. Ltd., was formed at Vancouver, and the first job was two miles of road paving in the Canadian city.

Kaiser made his entry into California by jumping off a train which slowed down at Redding to drop off the mail. He won a bid for a 30-mile road between Red Bluff and Redding and in 1921 set up headquarters in one room in Oakland.

There are 190 plants in 33 states and 40 countries. They have 90,000 employees receiving $630,000 annually, a annual sales of more than $2,000,000 and 140,000 share owners.

'Lot of Slush About Love, Family Life'

TORONTO (CP)—Roman Catholic Church handling of sexuality amounts to a set of rules and "a lot of slush about love and family life," a female philosopher told a theological congress Thursday.

In a second paper, at a congress on the theology of renewal, a priest said the church's approach to marital rights must be reconsidered if it is to be taken seriously.

"The point of sex is reproduction of children, but its use is necessary for the well-being of the parents beyond what is desirable for procreation," said Elizabeth Anscombe, a married Catholic laywoman and a fellow of Somerville College, Oxford, England.

The church, when it talks of sexuality, says: "Outside marriage, sexual acts are excluded; within marriage, spouses may always use their rights . . . over one another's bodies."

To make such a teaching "less negative, even heartless," the church talks of marriage as a sacrament and a vocation.

"We enter upon marriage to please ourselves, not as people entering upon a vocation. . . Only for a very few of us is the role of life in a marriage that is reasonably happy anything but a pleasing of ourselves and one another."

'A DEAD LETTER'

It is possible that the church's teaching on contraception will remain unrevoked and unamended, Mrs. Anscombe said. "It would then become a dead letter like the teaching . . . on usury."

Rev. Bernard Haring, a German theologian based in Rome, said in a separate paper on the family that the fundamental problems of marriage change as the world situation changes.

"The canonically legal approach to the question of marital rights must be reconsidered in the light of the contemporary social background," he said.

CATHOLIC CARDINAL CHALLENGED

'Open Church to Scrutiny'

TORONTO (CP)—A congress on theology that brought 44 of the world's leading theologians and philosophers to Toronto for five days ended Thursday night with a Canadian minister and a priest challenging a cardinal of the Roman Catholic Church to open the church to public scrutiny.

Franz Cardinal Koenig, 62-year-old Archbishop of Vienna and a church liberal, had said in the last speech heard by 2,000 invited delegates that the church must become "more transparent" that it must open itself to communication with its people and with the world.

Rev. A. C. Forrest, editor of the United Church Observer and member of a five-man panel which commented on the cardinals' address, said he was troubled by a reference to "transparency and partial transparency" and would like it explained.

Rev. Raymond Durocher of the Canadian Register, a Catholic newspaper, said: "The message of God was transparent on the cross at Calvary."

He asked why the church is not as fully transparent.

"That is not alone the task of the church," the cardinal replied. "It is the task of the journalist to probe and to make transparent."

It was on that note of questioning that the congress on the theology of the renewal of the church ended after speakers from 15 countries had tried to fulfill its purpose of coping "with some of the serious problems of contemporary religious thinking" and to create in North Americans a greater interest in theology.

The congress, organized by the Institute for Medieval Studies, a Roman Catholic research organization at the University of Toronto, was the centennial project of the conference of Canadian bishops.

Most Rev. Remi De Roo, bishop of Victoria and chairman of the conference, said in summing up that a ferment had been created when the second Vatican council four years ago instructed the church to "look at the reality and the complexity of theology" as part of its renewal.

"We are trying to bring ideas into synthesis—to look at man in his setting," he said at a press conference.

"It is the responsibility of the people to think more deeply about renewal, its meaning and its direction."

"The congress has been a bit on the theoretical side," he said at the end of five days of lectures touching on theology, philosophy, anthropology, sociology, spirituality, linguistics, atheism, materialism, humanism, communications—and just a spate of sex.

"But all that was said was concerned with man in his modern setting, and I think it has been a success," he said.

STELCO GOES AHEAD WITH BIG EXPANSION

HAMILTON (CP)—The Steel Company of Canada, Ltd., said today that it plans to go ahead with its $100,000,000 expansion program.

A company spokesman also said that in addition to the departure of summer students over the next two to three weeks, there will be minor lay-offs in the open hearth department "in accordance with normal fluctuations in business."

He emphasized that the lay-offs would be minor and would only affect one department.

SOFTENING MARKET

Timber Firms In Dilemma

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia timber companies are generally optimistic about long-term prospects on the world pulp and paper market, despite major shutdowns in production during the first six months of 1967.

Every major pulp and paper producer in the province has announced production cutbacks. The reason: A general softening of markets overseas and in the United States.

But company executives are betting on rejuvenated world markets about eight years hence that will increase consumption of paper products by about 75 per cent of today's rate.

European companies are exerting strong pressures on European markets that have in the past been dominated by Canadian firms. U.S. domestic production facilities are increasing.

In B.C., the timber companies have been caught in the middle of massive expansion plans by the world market slump. Sixteen pulp mills now are under construction, being planned or undergoing substantial renovations.

WANT TO EXPAND

The companies want to spend close to $1,000,000,000 on new facilities that would add an extra 1,025,000 tons of paper products annually during the next three years to a market already glutted with surpluses.

The province produced 5,500,000 tons of paper products of the 27,500,000 tons turned out by Canada in 1966. Pulp and paper represented about 30 per cent of British Columbia's $1,100,000,000 total forest industry production last year.

In 1966, when the market was healthier, mills in this province and the rest of Canada operated at about 85 per cent capacity. This year, B.C. mills are reported operating at about 80 per cent of capacity. The percentage is slightly higher in other parts of the country.

The B.C. companies are caught in a dilemma. Production costs are rising, earnings in most cases are dropping. Newsprint prices have been increased to offset the added production expenses.

On the other hand, the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations predicts there will be a world surplus of more than 600,000 tons of paper products during 1967.

KNEW OF CUTBACKS

Canadian producers have known for some time that production cutbacks would be necessary, says J. V. Clyne, chairman and chief executive officer of MacMillan Bloedel, one of the world's largest producers.

Mr. Clyne said in a recent interview he expects the soft market to continue into the 1970s. MacMillan Bloedel is running well behind production capacity—just how far behind, company officials have refused to divulge.

The timber companies are betting on a massive increase in paper products consumption in the 1970s. The FAO estimates the world consumed 44,000,000 metric tons of paper products in 1960, 77,000,000 tons in 1960 and 96,000,000 tons two years ago.

Projections prepared by the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association indicate the world will need 166,000,000 tons in 1975—double the total consumed in 1962.

The expanded mill facilities now planned will increase B.C.'s production capacity by about 25 per cent by 1970—though, as Mr. Clyne pointed out, the market slump will still be in effect.

Another serious problem the companies face is rapid techno-

Heavy Budget Deficits Face Federal Government

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has established a limited goal in the belt-tightening operation it is openly proclaiming as the summer closes.

Its attack on spending in the current fiscal year and in 1968-69 will not prevent substantial budgetary deficits predicted for both years.

Financial experts say the aim is to keep within prudent limits the extent of the government's borrowing to cover the deficits and other major needs.

Some analysts suggest that unless the government checks its demands on market sources of money the demands cannot be met, at least without a serious rupture in interest rates.

Prime Minister Pearson told a news conference Wednesday that the government must soften its demands on the money market.

WEAR OUT WELCOME

The record shows that the demands have been almost unrelenting for a decade, and that even such a solid customer as the Government of Canada may wear out its welcome in appeals to the nation's saver.

The last federal surplus occurred in 1957. Only three times since then—in 1958, 1965 and 1966—have deficits been less than $100,000,000.

In the years 1959 to 1962, under a conservative administration, successive deficits totalled $609,300,000, $413,100,000, $340,400,000, and $791,000,000.

With Liberal social security programs in full swing, the deficit hit $428,000,000 in 1966-67 and Finance Minister Sharpe's projection for the current year is a deficit of $740,000,000.

The effect of the deficits over the 10 years since 1957, together with the programs of government institutions that also had to be covered by borrowing, was to increase Canada's bonded net debt by $5,000,000,000.

This was by far the largest increase for any peacetime decade and represents almost one-third of the entire accumulated net debt of the country.

Mr. Sharp said in his June 1 budget speech that non-budgetary requirements for such major agencies as Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. would bring the government's total cash requirement in 1967-68 to just under $1,600,000,000.

A finance department official says the government's own projections of revenue and spending for the year have been borne out so far, indicating that Mr. Sharp's requirement remains realistic.

Since April 1 the government has made net borrowing of almost $400,000,000. Its deposits in the chartered banks, unusually high at $900,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 in February, March and April, have been run down to less than $700,000,000 this month.

A good sale of Canada Savings Bonds through a double-your-money feature in last fall's Centennial issue netted $280,000,000 and Ottawa is preparing another attractive issue for this October.

But experts here say the issue cannot offer too high a return without upsetting interest rate structures and encouraging small savers to sell off existing holdings to take advantage of the new bonds.

It is suggested the government will rely heavily on the short-term market for its borrowing later this year.

Yields on the short-term federal treasury bills, although higher than last spring, still remain far below 1966 levels. The government has increased the total of outstanding 91-day and 182-day bills by $200,000,000 in the last 12 months.

THE LONG RED RACER

If pedestrian could survive on twisting road circuit at Mosport, Ont., this is view he would get of New Zealander Chris Amon in his red Ferrari. In trials Thursday, Amon covered 2.45-mile circuit at average speed of 104 miles per hour. Track record is expected to fall Sunday during running of Grand Prix of Canada. (CP Wirephoto.)

AT MOSPORT

Three Champs In Grand Prix

MOSPÖRT, Ont. (CP)—On the basis of unofficial runs over Mosport's twisting road circuit Thursday, the track record could fall when 15 championship cars race Sunday in the Grand Prix of Canada.

New Zealander Chris Amon took his red Ferrari around the 2.45-mile track in one minute, 23.8 seconds, an average of 104 miles an hour and a little short of the mark set last year by Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif., in a Lotus T70 sports car.

Gurney is entered in Sunday's race with an American Eagle. Clark spins. Twice world champion Jim Clark of Scotland had made an unofficial mark of 1:24 when the Lotus-Ford he was driving spun out on corner No. 1 and slid up a bank, damaging a radius rod. Clark was not hurt. The car, to be driven in the Grand Prix by Eddie Wietzes of Toronto, one of the only two Canadians entered, was expected to be repaired in time for the big race.

ROXBURGH WINS

Lesson Learned In Golf Triumph

TORONTO (CP)—Pete Oakley of Falls Church, Va., learned an important lesson about match-play golf Thursday—never give up.

The 18-year-old found himself three holes down after seven in his third-round match of the Canadian junior golf championship against John Watson of Winnipeg.

"I was playing terrible," said Oakley, the only American who remains in contention. "I was ready to chuck it in, but somehow I managed to keep going."

"Then he (Watson) began to have trouble with the greens," Oakley began his comeback on the ninth hole with a par. His game improved while

FINAL SATURDAY

Three Ontario golfers—Doug Painter, Toronto, Paul Paukunen, Port Arthur and Peter Lago, Guelph—survived the third round along with Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver, Stephen Bannatyne of Winnipeg, Richard Dumesah of Liverpool, N.S., Mike Mooney of Red Deer, Alta., and Oakley.

The eight were scheduled to meet in the quarter-final round today, with the four winners advancing to the semi-finals this afternoon. The 36-hole final is scheduled for Saturday.

Six Canadians Battle To Halt Net Invaders

OTTAWA (CP)—The six Canadians left in contention at the Canadian junior open tennis championships will attempt today to prevent complete foreign domination of the eight singles' titles.

In the under-16 girls' event, the top-ranked Canadian, Jane O'Hara of Toronto, will meet Pluma Bartkovic of Hamtramck, Mich., second-seeded foreigner, in a semi-final match. The other game has third-seed Jane Kincaid of Huntington, W.Va., playing Karen Will of Clarkson, Ont.

In the under-14 boys' event today, three Canadians will be playing in the quarter-finals. They are second-seed Pat Gurney of Toronto, third-ranked Murray Whitaker of Point Claire, Que., and fourth-seed Allan Lawry of Vancouver.

The sixth remaining Canadian is Sandra Campbell of St. PENTICTON ON TOP. PENTICTON (CP)—Penticton defeated Vernon 9-4 Thursday in the first game of the best-of-five Okanagan Mainline Baseball League final.

ADMIRALS SET 6,000 ... AS STAY-PUT FIGURE

Fans Get One Chance

PORTLAND (AP)—Bob Spittler, general manager of the Long Beach, Calif., Admirals in the Continental Football League's western division, says his team may move to Portland. Spittler, who came to Portland Thursday, said the Admirals play Seattle at home Saturday night in the season opener, and if they do not draw at least 6,000 paid spectators, the team will move the next day. In its last home exhibition game the team drew 2,000 paid.

"We explored the possibilities of Honolulu, Fresno, Las Vegas and Portland, Spittler said, "and the best potential is right here. It's a metropolitan area with the kind of fan that will identify with his team."

Also in the CFL western division are Eugene, Seattle, Victoria, San Jose, Sacramento and Orange County. Victoria Steelers open their season Sunday at Anaheim, Calif., against the Orange County Ramblers.

Yankees Cashing In On Pitching Gamble

By The Associated Press

The New York Yankees blanked Chicago White Sox 5-0 on Bill Monbouquette's fine pitching Thursday and dropped the White Sox into a virtual tie with Boston Red Sox for the American League lead.

The White Sox couldn't do much hitting against Monbouquette, who, after being released by Detroit Tigers in May, spent three weeks trying to catch on with every major league team before the Yankees took a chance that has been paying off handsomely ever since.

Monbouquette has pitched well in relief, but in making his first start against Chicago, he was superb. The league leaders managed only five hits and only one of them went out of the infield.

RED SOX NEAR TOP

In other American League games, the Red Sox beat Washington Senators 7-5. Minnesota Twins took Detroit 4-2 and Cleveland Indians edged California Angels 2-1. Baltimore and Kansas City were not scheduled.

Charley Smith, the man who came when Roger Maris went to St. Louis, blasted two two-run homers for the Yankees and the White Sox just couldn't do a thing off the Yankee right-hander.

HESITATION HURTS

Billy McCool, working in relief in the 10th inning against Los Angeles Dodgers Thursday night, waited a moment too long before deciding what to do with Jim Lefebvre's sacrifice bunt and Cincinnati Reds won on the short end of a 4-3 score.

Gary Nolan was working on a three-hitter and leading 3-0 going into the ninth inning against the Dodgers. But three straight hits by Lefebvre, Al Ferrara and Wes Parker followed by two errors tied the score for Los Angeles.

An inning later, Lou Johnson opened with a double. Lefebvre bunted and McCool fielded the ball, looked towards third, hesitated, and threw to first. But Lefebvre beat the pitch.

INTENTIONAL WALK

An intentional walk to Ferrara loaded the bases and after Parker popped out, Bob Bailey singled Johnson home with the winning run.

In the only other National League games played Thursday, Houston Astros edged Atlanta Braves 5-4 in 10 innings and St. Louis Cardinals blanked San Francisco Giants 2-0. Pittsburgh's game at Philadelphia was rained out.

Watson's putting got worse and the American wound it up with a 2-and-1 victory on the 17th green.

"I was playing terrible," said Oakley, the only American who remains in contention. "I was ready to chuck it in, but somehow I managed to keep going."

"Then he (Watson) began to have trouble with the greens," Oakley began his comeback on the ninth hole with a par. His game improved while

QUITTING AS COACH OF TORONTO

Whale Doesn't Count!

YARMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—The United States team broke the stalemate here Thursday when it bagged the first tuna of the International Tuna Cup match—a 683-pound catch by R. E. Nafziger, Jr., of Beverly Hills, Calif.

Nirmal's Out But Tom's In

Dave Unwin's winning smile masked a problem Thursday, but the Victoria Shamrocks' coach is feeling somewhat better today. The problem is partially solved.

Shamrocks' 10-9 victory over the Adanacs in Coquitlam Wednesday forced a fifth and deciding game in the Inter-City Lacrosse League's best-of-five semi-final.

After trailing Adanacs 2-0 in the series, that was cause for joy. Immediately, however, Unwin was confronted with a manpower problem for Saturday's all-important decider at Memorial Arena.

Regulars Ron Jay, Ed Kowalyk and Larry Clarkson have been on the injured list for some time. Speedy Tom Collett took off on holidays and Nirmal Dillon, felled by a ball that injured his eye, joined the list of walking wounded.

Nanaimo's Bill Russell, a standout Wednesday, also will not be available because of the B.C. Senior "B" finals.

Dillon, Unwin said today, is "not expected to play" Saturday. His injury, though not serious, is described as "internal bleeding" and rest is the only remedy.

Both Jay and Kowalyk were to turn out for a light workout tonight. If either or both feels he can be of service, Kowalyk and (or) Jay will be in action Saturday.

"Even if Ron can trot out for faceoffs and perhaps the odd power-play, that will give us a big lift," said Unwin. "Glen Vickers has been great on the power-play, but we suffered on the faceoffs during Wednesday's game."

"The biggest relief is knowing Collett will be available."

Scottish Bowlers Take Lead

MONTREAL (CP)—Scotland grabbed the early lead in the points standings by posting a pair of victories in both the singles and doubles competition at the international centennial lawn bowling tournament got under way Thursday.

Scotland was undefeated after the first two rounds in both the singles and doubles play and led in the standings with eight points.

The United States was second with six points on the strength of two victories in the singles competition and one victory and one loss in the doubles play.

Wales was third in the standings with four points—two points for a victory in the singles and another two points for a win in the doubles.

O'KEEFES FORTUNES LOOK BRIGHT ...

... ALMOST EVERYONE COMING BACK

JOE ALEXIS
... Where art thou?

Would You Believe 'Stronger Than Strong?'

By ERNIE FEDORUK

When you look at what comes out of the machine, one is inclined to believe that Victoria O'Keefe's soccer team has been washed in that detergent that does things.

You know the one, on television ... "bluer than blue" ... "stronger than strong" ... "whiter than white" ...

O'Keefe's, at first glance, are coming out "stronger than strong."

That's the on-paper estimate of the team that won the regular-season championship of the Pacific Coast League.

A sneak preview of the 1967-68 team will be held Saturday afternoon when O'Keefe's meet Canadian Scottish, first division entry in the District League, in a trial workout at Topaz Park.

More important pre-season outings will follow on Labor Day (Sept. 4) and Sept. 9. Booked in at Royal Athletic Park for exhibitions are a Seattle team (Labor Day) and New Westminster Royals.

While the makeup of the league hasn't been settled, it tentatively seems to be a seven-team party with each entry playing an 18-game schedule.

In addition to Victoria and Royals, other entries will be Columbus, UBC Thunderbirds, Burnaby Villa, Firefighters and North Shore.

O'Keefe's shape up as one of the teams to beat. All but three members of last year's league winners are expected to return. Even the three doubtful ones can't be crossed off yet.

They are Jim Schulz, Ike

MacKay and Joe Alexis. Schulz, away on an army course, may show up later. Ditto MacKay, the strapping young inside who was chosen to play for the Pan-American Games team. MacKay, now visiting Montreal, had expected to enroll at UBC but friends indicate he has changed his mind and will pick up his books at the University of Victoria.

Alexis has been living in Nanaimo but manager Frank Grealy has not managed to make contact with the player. If all three should return, Grealy will undoubtedly have an embarrassment of riches.

At least five newcomers are bidding for berths, including a one-time amateur international from England.

He is Peter Wilson, who can play either left wing or wing half. A teacher who was posted in West Germany last year, he arrived on Vancouver Island last Saturday to take up a new position in Duncan.

Along with his amateur credentials, Wilson also holds a coaching certificate.

Two other up-Islanders are ready to commute. They are

Ray Telford, a Nanaimo resident who worked out briefly with the team last season, and Peter Wheaton, working in Port Alberni.

Also hoping to step up from the District League are local youngsters Brian Robinson and Robin Snow.

From the sound of things, Grealy may have to throw all of them back into the machine, spin-dry once, and then start picking—blindfolded!

That may be the easiest way.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

ONE-HITTER BY BEAULAC

Lions Draw Even In Playoff Series

Winning pitcher Dennis Beaulac allowed only one hit, loser Ken McCorkill yielded 10, but it took Red Lion Inn, of the Senior Men's Softball League, eight innings to pull ahead of Century Inn.

The extra-inning 3-2 victory over the Stuffy McGinnis League winners enabled Red Lions to square their best-of-five city senior men's "C" softball playoff series at 1-1.

Red Lions never led until Gord Gray scored Herb Latrielle with the winning run on an infield single on the last play of the Heywood Avenue Park game.

Latrielle had reached third on a costly three-base error by centrefielder Don Frampton.

SAME PLAY

Lions trailed by a run in the first inning, trailed by one again in the fifth. Each time Lloyd Hanna evened the score by driving home Tom Walker in the Lions' half of the first and fifth innings.

Bill James scored Century's first run on a wild pitch. An error by Bill Mundie, who committed all four of his team's miscues, enabled Vern O'Donnell to score Century's fifth-inning run.

Third game will be played tonight at 6:30 at Heywood Avenue Park.

THREAT AS A ROOKIE

MONTREAL (CP) — Serge Savard, 21-year-old defenceman who had an outstanding season with Houston Apollos last year, has signed a contract with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League. He is regarded "a good bet" to win a regular berth with the Habs.

Larson's Effort Sparks Nanaimo

SASKATOON (CP) — Fine one-hit pitching by Ken Larson enabled Nanaimo to defeat Edmonton Playboys Thursday in the double-loss, Canadian senior men's softball championship tournament.

Larson struck out eight batters in a row during one stretch in the exciting, seven-inning contest.

Loser Peter Savinkoff, who yielded only two hits, matched Larson on the scoreboard for six frames before Pat Shepherd's single to left brought home Berry Smith with the winning run in the bottom of the seventh.

In earlier games, Saskatoon Merchants blanked New Brunswick's Loggieville Bisons 4-0 and St. Thomas of Ontario trounced Labrador City 10-1.

JAPANESE WIN BERTH IN FINAL

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Chicago's North Roseland team defeated Linares, Mexico, 3-2, Thursday to qualify for the final of the Little League baseball world series.

West Tokyo, Japan, qualified earlier for today's final by defeating Newtown-Edmont, Pa., 4-1.

The Tokyo team defeated East Trail, B.C., last Tuesday.

Boxers Plan Global League

NEW YORK (AP) — A potential global amateur boxing league will open early next year as a two-division United States Inter-city league, Col. Donald F. Hull, executive director of the National Amateur Athletic Union has announced.

Col. Hull, calling it the "most important step we've taken in our program to revitalize amateur boxing," said the circuit will be called the International Boxing League.

He said seven cities will be in each division with two matches a month for each city squad.

Foreign teams included in his future plans include London, Paris, Dublin, Liverpool, Glasgow, Berlin, Hamburg, Frankfurt, Warsaw, Prague, Tokyo and Manila.

MARLIES' PILOT NAMED CANUCKS' NEW COACH

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks, of the Western Hockey League, Thursday named Jim Gregory as coach for the 1967-68 season.

Gregory, 32, has been general manager of the junior Toronto Marlboros for the past two seasons. He comes to the Canucks on loan from Toronto Maple Leafs, of the National League.

Gregory's appointment is the second major change by the Canucks this season. They earlier hired Annis Stukus, former football coach of the British Columbia Lions and more recently a Toronto sports writer, as general manager. Bert Olmstead coached the Canucks last season and Ken Wilson was acting general manager.

Eye Transplant Gives Goalkeeper A Second Chance

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — A soccer goalie, partially blinded in a freak accident, said Thursday he planned to make a comeback with part of someone else's eye.

Mike McVittie, former goalie for St. Johnstone of the Scottish League, said the Greenock Morton team in the First Division had offered him a trial.

Surgeons recently removed the cornea of McVittie's right eye and replaced it with one bequeathed to a hospital. The player was partially blinded while working as a painter.

'LESS MATERIALISTIC THAN PARENTS'

Admiral Eulogizes Modern Youth

Young people today are "far less materialistic than parents," Rear-Admiral John A. Charles told Victoria Rotary Club Thursday afternoon.

"It is true they like to own a car, but once this problem is solved they are in search of something which is not measured in money."

"They want a challenging and interesting job, something which will exercise their abilities. They want to be recognized when they do a good job. They grasp and beg for responsibility and willingly accept it."

"There is nothing wrong with the young people of today; it is up to us to challenge and reward them and give them responsibility. If we don't they'll take it anyway."

Wearing the new tri-service military green, the Pacific Maritime Commander said the average age in the whole of the Pacific Command is under 25; the average age in the ships is 23.

"Not a day goes by when I'm not talking to young people. It may be 16-year-old sea cadets, still in high school; it may be new ordinary seamen, many just dropped out of school. It may be young officer cadets..."

"They come from all over Canada and every walk of life. I am very impressed with them all. They are idealistic young men. They know more and think more about the problems of society than you or I ever did at their age."

The rear-admiral continued: "Go down to the Naden swimming pool any day of the week and see the handicapped, the retarded, the paraplegics or crippled children and adults under the guidance of volunteer swimming instructors."

"The point is the men who do these things are not acting on service duty, but voluntarily as responsible members of the community for the benefit of all the community."

He said there is an increasing demand for greater expenditures on social and welfare activities, both within the government and outside it. These include pensions, old-age payments, health, education and increased aid and assistance outside Canada.

"Arguing against these expenditures is like arguing against motherhood, but there is a limit to the amount of money the country can raise. So the solution in the minds of some is

Toronto Youth Wins Second Cup

TORONTO (CP)—George Hughes of Toronto won both races Thursday to capture his second consecutive Canadian national junior sailing championships.

Hughes and his crew, Jamie Kidd, won the title by coming in first in five of the six races. Next year, Hughes will not be eligible to enter the championships because he will be over-age. Competitors must be 12-15.

simple-cut expenditures in defence and put it into social activities and assistance.

"That is the greatest problem that I see today and it is a challenge to us all. What is most important is that we all fully understand the implications of each of the many options that are available to us."

Rear-Admiral Charles said there are 4,401 officers and men of the three services in Greater Victoria, plus 7,123 wives and children.

"In this community there are approximately 15,000 people directly connected in one way or another with maritime command. And they contribute something like $3,000,000 a month to this community."

"It is a great challenge to manage these resources and to produce the most effective fighting force. I know we can make improvements and I know that mistakes are made. But I want to assure you I am very aware of the problem and will make every effort to provide the best for your tax dollar."

Laughing Motorist Shoots 4 Drivers

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A grinning young motorist firing two pistols wounded four truck drivers Thursday as he raced through Metropolitan Miami shooting at random from his car.

Five hours later at a Miami Beach motel two detectives arrested a man they identified as Candy Michael Hughes, 23, of Keego Harbor, Mich., and booked him in Dade County jail on four counts of assault with intent to commit murder. Police Lieut. Webster Preston said the shooting apparently stemmed from Hughes' frustration after an argument with his family before leaving Michigan earlier in the week.

A construction machine driver and an off-duty policeman who tried to stop the gunman on his rampage also were shot at but were not hit.

What's GOOD About Rats?

Funny question! Rat-borne diseases may have killed more people than all of the wars in history. Each year, perhaps one-fifth of all food planted throughout the world is eaten or destroyed by rats. September Reader's Digest tells a horrifying story of mankind's universal pest... but reveals how the hated rat may at last be paying man back for some of the death and destruction it has caused. MY FRIEND the computer wears a tie, says British inventor Rowland Emmett before holding conversation with the wacky, free-wheeling electronic marvel named Fred. (CP Photo.)

He's Frightfully Rapid and Fun

MONTREAL (CP)—Fred is a bewhiskered gamekeeper who feeds hot cross buns to his two elephants who answer to the names of Forget Me Not, Sr.—otherwise known as Peripheral Pachyderm—and Forget Me Not, Jr.

He always carries an umbrella to discharge any static electricity that may build up in his body which is sadly misshapen. Butterflies flit in his stomach.

Fred is better known as a Frightfully Rapid Evaluator and Dispenser of information. He is, in fact, the control centre of a wacky, whimsical computer that, in the words of its inventor "doesn't really do anything, but what it does it does very, very well."

This Rubie Goldberg-type nightmare is the work of British inventor Emmett who was commissioned by Honeywell Controls Ltd. to take a free-wheeling look at the complicated intricacies of computer science.

The computer comes in three parts, like Henry VI, he said in a Montreal interview.

It looks like a pawn shop in motion. Its components include punched playing cards, mechanical woodpeckers, a snake charmer and his charming beast, measuring tapes, lampshades, a tea dispenser, door knobs, candlesticks—you name it.

Mr. Emmett says he still doesn't understand it. In a kooky festival of lights and motion, wheels turn, marbles drop, Fred reads his instructions and does a double take, the senior elephant is fed a hot cross bun with "currant" information and a well-organized crew of baby woodpeckers punches the data cards.

Among its features, demonstrated recently in Montreal, are the Random Access Selector, incorporating the time-proven Eecnie-Meenie-Miney-Mo unit and a unique standard feature of the main brain called the brain drain which facilitates the flushing away of any wrong numbers or unworthy thoughts.

The inventor holds the unsinkable conviction that everything invented since the death of Queen Victoria lacks grace. His many creations, as a consequence, are adorned with some of the most graceful remnants of the Victorian era—hip baths, hand-decorated door knobs, Ethiopian camel milking stools, elephant bells and lamp shades from his living room.

What does he really think about computers? "I don't understand them. I don't believe them."

"The gremlins inside the real machines haven't taken over yet. Mine is one big gremlin."

AT THE MOVIES

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

HAWAII
Victoria Premiere
Odeon Theatre

The power of this film is such that it holds attention for more than three hours and, when it is over, you are almost sad at parting with some of its characters.

Max von Sydow as a fanatical New England missionary, dedicated to destroying happiness in the name of Christ, simply dominates the screen. But he has a wonderful ally in Julie Andrews who proves, once again, that she is capable of playing almost any dramatic role.

Mary Poppins, The Sound of Music, The Americanization of Emily, Torn Curtain, Thoroughly Modern Millie—Miss Andrews takes them all in her stride and, in Hawaii, she gives depth and meaning to her part as the missionary's bewildered, unhappy wife.

Although she is less conspicuous in this film than others, Miss Andrews gives sensuality and sensibility to a part which could easily have been wrapped in sweetness and light. In a non-singing and very difficult role, she establishes herself as a great artist of the screen.

The theme is epic and surprisingly it does not become tedious. There are occasional flashes of humor but overall the story is deep with meaning. At graduation ceremonies at the Yale Divinity School in 1830 a Hawaiian native (Mama Tupou) pleads for volunteers to take the word of God to his heathen island.

Von Sydow, a prune-faced New England parson, volunteers for this service and marries Julie Andrews, daughter of a Calvinist family, before he sails.

In Hawaii he is unable to perceive that the happy islanders are more Christian than the Christians. With an almost ruthless righteousness he throws down their god of love and raises in its stead a god of wrath. And soon the poor Hawaiians are exposed to some of the blessings of Christendom—whiskey, syphilis and commercial exploitation.

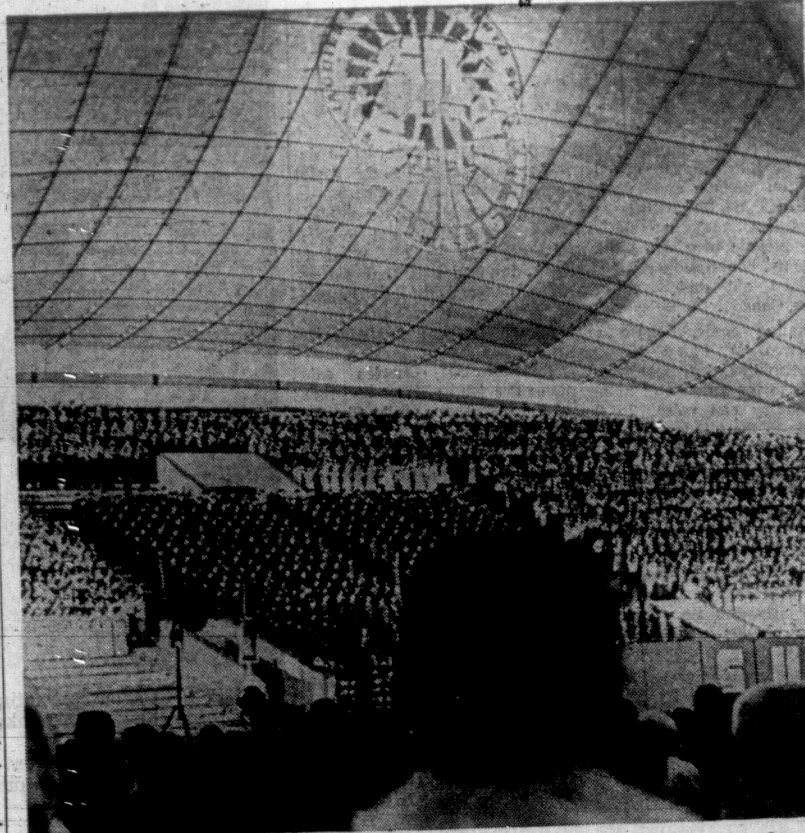

The photography matches the power of the story in scope and grandeur. We in Victoria have waited a long time for Hawaii but it's been worth waiting for.

WHEN A PRO IS A PRO: SOPHIA KEEPS HER COOL

By BOB THOMAS

ROME (AP)—The thing about Sophia Loren is: She is a complete pro.

Her kind of professionalism is seldom seen in these times when actresses struggle late on to movie sets, make public appearances in sloppy or outlandish outfits, and give monosyllabic interviews. None of that for Loren. She harks back to the era when stars behaved like stars, because their studios insisted. In Sophia's case, the discipline is self-imposed.

Take that steamy day in Rome. In an ancient church in the heart of the city, she was playing one of her final scenes for The Best House in Naples. It was a comedy sequence in which she enacts Mary in a nativity pageant, only to have her halo short-circuit and engulf her in smoke.

For two hours Sophia sat under the hot lights in her voluminous costume while special-effects men rigged her for the stunt. Then she underwent several takes in which she was lost in smoke and smothered under a gale by actor Mario Adorf.

GAVE INTERVIEW

She retained her cool throughout. Well, maybe she was a little unnerved, because she asked an interviewer to come back the following day for a chat. The next day she was her usual self as she sat in her dressing-trailer and answered all questions.

She was asked about her Hollywood period—1958-60. During that time she supported a number of American stars—John Wayne, Cary Grant, Alan Ladd, Clark Gable—in films that were rarely box office hits. Only when she returned to Italy did she win her Oscar—Two Women, 1961—and became a star in her own right.

"But the Hollywood experience was not a negative one," she insisted. "I had the pleasure of working with actors who were accomplished, and I was able to learn English well."

'MINIATURE CITY'

Concept Changing Of Universities

By ELINOR READING

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadian architect Arthur Erickson says the university of the future may be the centre of the city, and university training may last all your life.

Mr. Erickson, designer and building co-ordinator for Simon Fraser University, told the Canadian Federation of Women Thursday that changes in architectural style reflect changes in an institution itself.

Mr. Erickson addressed delegates to the federation's triennial convention after a dinner was held at the new university, which has attracted international interest in its radical design since it opened in suburban Burnaby two years ago.

The architect said North American culture offers "marvelous machines" but naive human values.

"An economic system is hardly a substitute for moral and cultural leadership in a world that badly needs it."

NEED SPECIAL TRAINING In a world of computers, students needed not memorized knowledge but "training for the unknown."

"Today any intelligent youth knows he doesn't need a teacher in the traditional sense—and he hardly needs a university in the traditional sense. However, he does need resources—vast resources, readily available."

Future universities, designed to be unified and compact, might be planned within a grid of passages like streets, like a miniature city.

This would be the "non-university—the university, completely absorbed within the city pattern" and taking an active part in the life of the community around it.

At the convention's afternoon session, G. Eleanor Shaw of St. Catharines was elected national finance chairman and Mrs. R. B. Ramsay of Regina was elected chairman of the international relations.

'FLOWER CHILDREN' PUZZLE THEM

Hippies' Parents Organize

By PAUL RICHARD
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A month ago the 16-year-old daughter of Mrs. D. C. Harper joined the thousands of American youngsters who have left their pleasant middle-class homes to migrate to the hippie communities of California.

Russell Tries Again

TOKYO (Reuters) — A three-day Tokyo Tribunal on United States War Crimes in Vietnam will open Aug. 28, a spokesman said Wednesday. The tribunal, in response to a call by British philosopher Bertrand Russell, will be the second of its kind, following the Stockholm tribunal last May.

Her mother, who lives in Washington's northwest section, hasn't seen her since.

"I've talked to several mothers whose children have done the same thing," Mrs. Harper said. "The parents are bewildered. They're at a loss as to what to do."

Mrs. Harper has decided to do something. She's begun to organize the National Society for Parents of Flower Children.

The purpose of the society, Mrs. Harper said, is to help parents "better understand the problems and ideals of their children." It would also lobby "for adequate rehabilitation for those flower children who may require treatment."

Mrs. Harper pointed out that the few "residential treatment communities" now in existence charge between $10,000 and $20,000 a year to care for youngsters, "a sum few middle-class parents can afford."

Former PM Dies

LONDON (UPI)—Lord Bruce of Melbourne, former prime minister of Australia, died today at his London home. He was 84.

He was an outspoken and colorful statesman of world-wide reputation, an astute politician and businessman, and the first Australian to be made a viscount.

EVENING CLASSES IN INTERIOR DECORATING

Once again the fascinating study of Interior Decoration will be introduced to you by theoretical and practical analysis of form, color, texture, dimension and values. These lectures are supplemented by on location studies, in selected homes, of problems arising in furniture arrangement, color schemes, lighting effects, drapery and carpet selection, and proper use of pictures and accessories.

Classes will be held on Monday or Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9:00, starting on Sept. 18th or 20th, at Ego Interiors. Total cost of 8 Lectures, once a week, $20.00. Mr. Joseph Egoian, B.A.E., your instructor, is well qualified, with extensive theoretical and practical knowledge. He is a graduate of the Art Institute of Chicago and the California College of Arts and Crafts; has taught at Oakland Tech High, Calif., the American College in Cairo and at the Evening Adult Education program in Victoria. In addition, he has a wealth of practical experience in the retail field as proprietor of Ego Arts Gallery in Cairo for 5 years, and Ego Interiors in Victoria for 5 years.

LOTTERY TO FINANCE EDUCATION RESEARCH?

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—A Trail teacher suggested Thursday that a lottery be established to help finance educational research in British Columbia.

Arthur Benzer said sweepstakes are used in other countries for hospitals and cultural and community development, so he didn't see why the idea shouldn't be considered as a way to finance educational research.

MOVIE TO RE-ENACT BATTLE OF BRITAIN

LONDON (Reuters)—Some day in the late fall, two squadrons of Nazi Messerschmitts will again sweep in from France as they did during the Battle of Britain 27 years ago.

The planes will be coming for the same reason as in 1940—to take on the RAF's Spitfires and Hurricanes.

But this time the dogfights will be for a movie being made by Canadian-born Harry Saltzman, who co-produced the James Bond series.

The $10,000,000 picture, the Battle of Britain, is the first scheduled to be made on the subject, although there have been several documentaries in the past on the battling tank by Britain in the early years of the Second World War.

Why do the movie makers feel the time is ripe for such a picture? Ben Fisz, who will co-produce with Saltzman, explained that "today you have practically two generations who don't know what it was all about."

The producers said they would make the film as near to the real thing as possible. Nearly three years of research work have gone into the project and men who fought on both sides were interviewed.

From Britain came Wing Cmdr. Standford Tuck, who was credited with 27 confirmed kills. From Germany came Gen. Adolf Galland, who shot down at least 96 Allied planes and who personally took Tuck prisoner when he was brought down over France.

SEARCHES THE WORLD. One big problem was getting enough of the now-obsolete Spitfires, Hurricanes, Messerschmitts, Heinkels and Stukas. An aviation consultant scoured the world for old aircraft and said recently he was still short of Hurricanes. He found seven, but only four will still fly.

Veterans of the battle from both sides flooded the producers with offers to fly the machines, but were turned down. Most were too old and rusty now—and the planes too valuable.

The mock fighting for the movie will be done by RAF and test pilots.

The British government was giving full co-operation to the project. A chunk of eastern England was to be put out of bounds to all other planes while the fight scenes were being shot. Some of the film will also be shot at bases from which the German pilots flew.

But none of the men who became household names here in 1940 will appear in the film. "We have decided in all fairness not to mention anybody by name," Fisz said. "It would be unjust to those who died or are still alive."

Craigdarroch Booked Solid For Second Term

A full enrolment of 30 youngsters will attend Craigdarroch School's second term, Dr. Charles Gregory said Thursday.

The progressive primary school was founded a year ago by a group of parents.

"We have also begun a waiting list for 1968-69," said Dr. Gregory, a director of the school.

A new location has been found for the school on a three-quarter-acre site between Pemberton and St. Charles, near Angus. Instruction was formerly carried out at 1075 Joan Crescent.

There will be two full-time teachers plus a third part-time teacher. Parents will work as teaching assistants.

A parents meeting in September will vote on a revised constitution, said Dr. Gregory.

Indians Ousted

RAWALPINDI (Reuters)—Pakistan Wednesday ordered three members of the Indian high commission, including its first secretary, to leave Pakistan within 24 hours for allegedly indulging in "organized espionage." Official sources said police caught the three receiving classified government documents from two Pakistani nationals in a public park.

INDIANS PROTEST PROGRAM PLANS

TV's Custer Faces Ambush

WASHINGTON (AP)—American Indians, who have never apologized for what happened to U.S. Gen. George Custer 91 years ago, are setting up an ambush for television's reincarnation of the men who met disaster at the Little Big Horn.

The National Congress of American Indians has protested plans of the American Broadcasting Co. to produce a TV series about the deeds of Custer, whose career ended in death at the hands of the Sioux.

A spokesman said the national congress represents 76 major American Indian tribes and Alaska native villages.

Its lawyers have written ABC seeking to invoke the Federal Communications Commission's fairness doctrine on behalf of the Indians and asking ABC to give them an opportunity to present the Indians' side of the story.

Arthur Mayse

One evening not too many weeks from now, I am going to find myself confronting an adult education class whose members will expect me to teach them the largely unteachable. This is the art, craft or knack of creative writing, a gift of doubtful virtue best fostered alone and in a state of mental anguish.

All any teacher can provide is enthusiasm, a breakdown of standard techniques, and sympathy when the phrases so bright in the mind come out cross-ways.

He can also answer as best he can the questions that vex the man or woman who hopes one day to break into print.

With that last in mind, I propose to get in some advance licks by dealing with a few of those queries.

The ones I've picked are hardly perennials. They spring up fresh and green each year, and undoubtedly will keep doing so while there's a would-be writer to shatter a lance against the editorial towers.

Q. If I send my work to an editor, isn't there a chance that he will steal it? I have a friend, and she sent a short story to Green Book, and next month it turned up with a different name on it.

A. Ho hum, and here we go again... Listen, dear lady, the editor of Green Book gets so many punk stories showered on him, and so few good ones, that he will be only too glad to pay you or your friend for a publishable piece. He may on rare occasions lose a manuscript, or return it to someone else by mistake, but he won't steal it. That story your friend spotted was probably bought many months before she submitted her effort. Happens all the time. Why, I remember...

Q. I've always felt I'm held back by not having an agent. How do you go about getting a good agent?

A. As a general rule, you don't. The agent, or literary representative as he may style himself, will get you. But before he makes his bid, you must demonstrate your potential as a writer by selling several pieces, having a reasonably sound first novel published, or otherwise catching his eye. A good agent—and I warn you that the woods are full of them—had ones all waiting for Little Red Riding Hood—may then add you to his stable.

He will take his 10 per cent commission from sales (more for overseas) and prove his worth by extracting revenue from sources you never so much as heard of. Let me tell you about the time...

Q. How much does a writer get paid for his work?

A. Distressingly often, he winds up with a tattered manuscript and a string of rejections. But win a reputation as a builder of better mousetraps and the sky's the limit.

Q. How much education does one need to be a writer?

A. A sound education is worth having, but it does not guarantee success in creative writing. We are dealing here with a natural gift.

Q. Why do you make it all sound so discouraging?

A. Because earth has no harder, lonelier, more frustrating job than the professional writer's.

Perhaps once in his working life, he will be totally satisfied with what he has accomplished, but the euphoria soon wears off. Then he returns to being a haunted man, and a woman should think twice before she marries him. I knew one writer who phoned me out of bed at two in the morning...

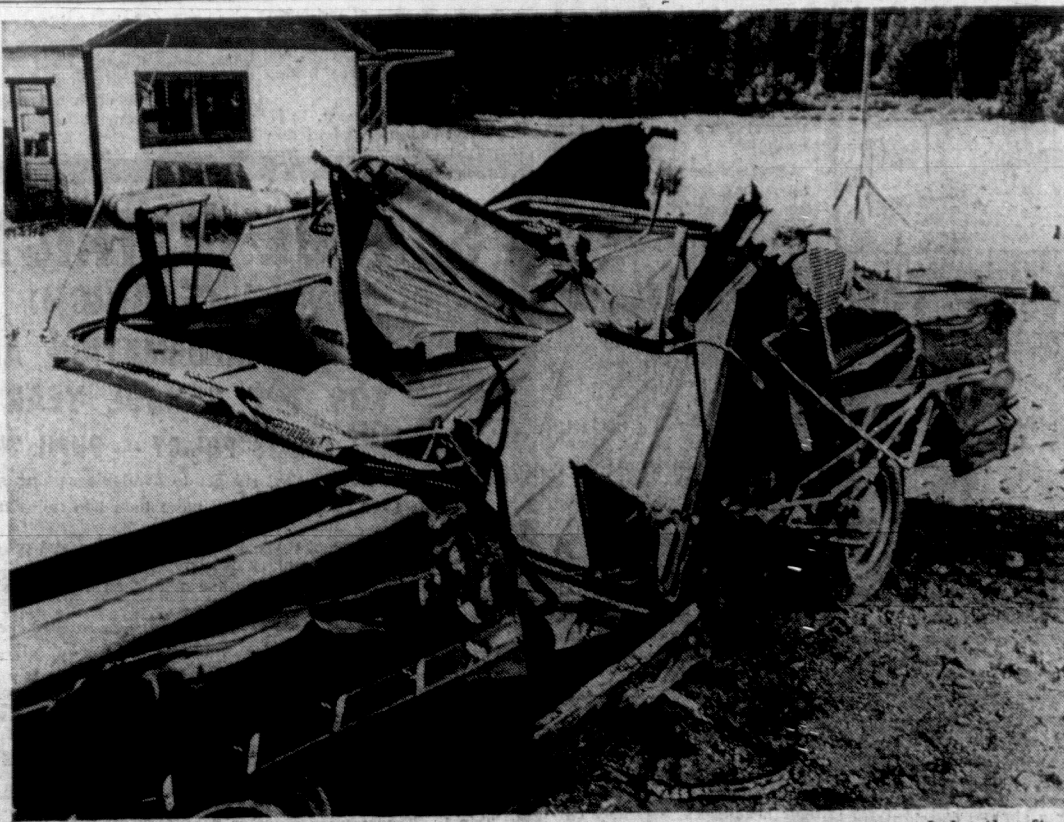

Q. Do editors have a prejudice against women writers?

A. At long range, none whatever.

Q. Should I copyright the novel I'm working on?

A. No need. By the act of committing it to paper, you have established copyright. Why do you ask?

Q. Well, wouldn't it be safer? My uncle sent his novel to a publisher, and...

TOTAL WRECK resulted when this car slammed into trees on the Old Island Highway near Admirals Road, instantly killing Raymond Michael Arlen.

sole occupant. The accident occurred shortly after midnight as Arlen headed for Victoria. He was 15th fatality in Greater Victoria this year.

'ADMIRE HIS COURAGE'

Public Backing Baird's Views

Public reaction to Acting Mayor Robert Baird's banning of a love-in and criticisms of the hippies—has been the greatest experienced at city hall.

And 90 per cent of it supports the acting mayor's point of view.

City hall switchboard has been lit up like a Christmas tree during the last two days as calls come in thick and fast. The public response has surprised city hall officials who have never experienced such a deluge.

Many of the callers have also given their names to show how strong they feel about the controversial issue.

Typical of the remarks received are these:

● "Approve very, very heartily of your statements about the hippies, and I hope you get the support of council. We don't want them in our parks—they are a blight on the landscape."

● "Congratulations for standing up to the hippies. I am rather disgusted with the two aldermen who are against Ald. Baird."

● "I just want to put my vote in for Ald. Baird."

● "'No' to the hippies please, Ald. Baird."

● "I happen to agree with Ald. Baird, but aside from that I would like to say that I admire his courage in sticking to his opinion in the face of such heavy criticism. We could use more like him."

● "Thought you should be congratulated on the stand you took in the paper. We should not give an inch to these mental degenerates. I heartily endorse all you have said."

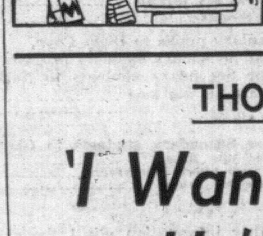

● "Thought you did a marvellous job of meeting with the hippies."

● "I am very pleased with the attitude that the acting mayor has taken towards the hippies."

However, some comments received, including a telegram which called for his removal from office, opposed his stand.

"These hippies should be treated the same as other people. If they misbehave in the use of the park, they should not be permitted to use it again. However, they should be entitled to their philosophy, and if they are not, then we are heading to a Hitler state."

In an emergency meeting this afternoon city council was to decide whether to give the Victoria Youth Council permission to use Beacon Hill Park for a love-in, previously banned by Ald. Baird.

OPERATING ROOM MISHAP

St. Joseph's Responsible For Injuries to Woman

St. Joseph's Hospital is liable for injuries sustained by a 40-year-old Courtenay housewife when she underwent an operation there on June 14, 1964, Mr. Justice Gregory ruled in B.C. Supreme Court today.

Mr. Justice Gregory ruled that Mrs. Gladys Knight should receive damages for injuries sustained when her right forearm and wrist were crushed in the mechanism of the operating table.

He directed, however, that the damages should be assessed after further legal argument on the costs of the action.

Mr. Justice Gregory exonerated the three orthopedic surgeons concerned in the operation—Dr. Rudolph Anderson, Dr. R. Neville Grant and Dr. Harold R. Carter.

Mrs. Knight, the wife of Percy N. Knight of Courtenay, was operated on for laminectomy (protruding disc).

Mr. Justice Gregory found that the operation was successful, but that, as Mrs. Knight was being moved onto a stretcher from the operating table, her right forearm and wrist were squeezed between the table top and the framework of the table.

Being under anesthesia, she was unaware of this until later.

Through Victoria lawyer Gerald Lauder, Mrs. Knight brought an action against St. Joseph's Hospital and the three surgeons, alleging negligence.

Mr. Justice Gregory said "no one was able to give first-hand evidence as to precisely when or how the mishap occurred." He added:

"It is obvious, however, that the plaintiff's arm became dislodged from the top of the bolster, where it was intended to have remained throughout the operation, and that it worked its way (unnoticed by anyone in the operating room) from a position of safety to one of danger."

At the Supreme Court hearing last June, Mr. Lauder asked Mr. Justice Gregory to award Mrs. Knight special damages of $705 to cover medical expenses and unspecified general damages because of "extensive pain and suffering caused."

Man Pleads Guilty To Careless Driving

Alan E. Jones, of 2984 Oakdown, was fined $35 when he faced a careless driving charge in traffic court today.

The charge was laid after a rear end collision on Douglas Street.

HUNTING DELAYED BY FIRE DANGER

Hunting season opening dates in the southern half of B.C. have been wiped out by forest closures, a government spokesman said today.

A fish and wildlife official said only the north half of the province, beginning approximately at Williams Lake, is unaffected.

And a B.C. forests service spokesman said that a special long-range weather forecast drawn up for the department this morning indicates that all existing forest closures probably will remain in effect for the next three weeks.

The fish and wildlife official said there are numerous hunting season opening dates for a variety of game in various sections of the closed areas that become ineffective because of the forest closures.

"On Vancouver Island, the grouse opening was to be Sept. 2 and for deer Sept. 9 but it is most unlikely now that hunting will be permitted then—unless the forest closure is lifted of course," the official said.

Father Becomes 15th Victim In City Area

The father of a six-week-old baby died instantly early today when his car slammed into trees at the edge of the Old Island Highway near Admirals Road.

Raymond Michael Arden, 25, of 784 Gorge West, is the 15th person to die on Greater Victoria roads this year and the eighth fatality in Colwood RCMP district.

He was alone in his car when it left the highway shortly after midnight and smashed into three trees near the turnoff for the Christie Point apartments, close to Shoreline Drive.

ROOF TORN OFF

The car struck the trees on the driver's side and the force of the smash tore the roof off the auto.

Police said the accident happened at the end of a curve on the highway where the speed limit is 30 miles an hour. Arden was driving towards Victoria. His car was a write-off.

Dead man was a machine operator for Butler Brothers Supplies Ltd. He leaves his wife Joyce, 19, a daughter, Theresa, 2 and Michael born last month. No one has reported witnessing the accident.

"Somebody heard a bang and phoned," an officer said.

HOLD INQUIRY

Police said Coroner Edmond St. Jorre will conduct an inquiry.

The fatal crash was one of four smash-ups which kept Colwood RCMP officers on the go all night.

Allan Waddy, 20, of HMCS St. Croix is in "fairly satisfactory" condition at Canadian Forces Base Hospital, Esquimalt, after his car rammed a rock abutment on the Trans-Canada Highway near Goldstream shortly before 7 a.m.

The car, which ended up on its roof, was wrecked, officers said. Waddy was alone.

$2,500 DAMAGE

An hour later a truck parked on a service station at Colwood Corners slipped its brakes, clipped a car as it ran a hundred yards down the road and then ploughed into a hairdressing salon.

No one was hurt but damage was estimated at $2,500.

The truck is owned by C. Krofta Ltd. of Parksville and the operator was Jake Feenstra of Port Alberni.

The runaway vehicle caused

PULP MILL WORKER KILLED

A worker at the Harmac pulp mill near Nanaimo was killed in an accident Thursday night.

John Fenion Humphrey, 44, of 435 Asygarth Street, Nanaimo, was crushed by logs shortly after the 7 p.m. break. He was pinned between the gang saw and the logs.

At the time, he was kneeling in front of the infed roll, police said. Suddenly the logs behind him moved ahead and the logs pinned him between the cant and the roll.

No one saw the accident. The gang saw had not yet been started.

Humphrey is the father of three children. An inquest will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

'GOOD THING'

Curtis Supports Sewage Proposal

Initial support was voiced today to anti-pollution measures announced by the provincial government.

"I find I'm somewhat in sympathy with what they've done — on first glance," said the chairman of the Capital Region District, Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis.

The government was "putting teeth into the question of sewer construction and probably this is a good thing."

"There is the danger in this region, as we have said before, of waiting to cross every t and dot every i before construction and this could drag on."

"If the provincial government

feels it must strengthen its hand I'm sure they do so with the best interests of the built-up areas in heart.

He wondered if the province will give any indication of willingness to share "in these huge costs, which are inevitable."

On the basis of first reports "I'm not terribly disturbed. We have not reached the stage where our plans have bogged down but they could bog down. We have hoped the region could have started in two years anyway."

City manager Dennis Young said that provincial legislation forcing municipalities to upgrade sewage collection and disposal plants would have little effect on Victoria taxpayers.

"Naturally a great deal will depend on the details of the order in council or of a new act passed in the legislature," he said. "It should not have a serious effect on the taxpayers of Victoria. We already have considerable sums of money put away in our capital budget to meet our share of the cost of the proposed $23.5 million scheme for the Saanich Peninsula."

Two Lanes On Gorge Bridge Open to Traffic

Two lanes of the newly constructed Gorge Bridge were scheduled to open late today.

Dismantlement of the temporary Bailey bridge will start immediately so that final construction of the new bridge can continue.

All four lanes will be open next month.

Cost of the bridge is being shared by the provincial government and the municipalities of Esquimalt and Saanich.

THOUGHTS ON 'THAT' DAY

'I Want a Man Teacher ... He'll Be Nice to Me!'

By DON VIPOND

A week Tuesday is THAT day.

The park swings are still swinging, the wading pools still good for splashing and there's a satisfying "thump" when they kick that football.

But the kids are thinking. With just 10 days of freedom left, wouldn't you?

And with the first day of school so close, they're wondering about—who else?—TEACHER!

They have some startling preferences on whether a man teacher or a woman is best, for example.

Questioning the youngsters in Central Park this morning brought forth these thoughts:

Tracy Harris, 10, of 1144 Queens, who is headed for Grade 5:

"I want a man teacher—cause then he'll be nice to me!"

That's not the way Janet Meun, 10, of 2009 Cook, feels about it though.

"I think ladies are nicer than men... and they can't strap as hard!"

Donna Kavanaugh, 10, of 2314 Grove in Sidney disagrees.

She wants a man teacher. "They're funnier. The ladies take it serious."

Malcolm Norby, 10, of 1031 Caledonia thinks maybe a lady teacher would be best.

"They let you take home-work home."

He thinks that's a pretty good idea.

"And they give you more artwork and more fun."

The kids have some ideas about what should happen that big first day at school too.

Suppose you were the teacher, they were asked. What would you tell your class first thing on the first day?

"I'd tell 'em to be good or they'll get the strap," Tracy said flatly.

Walter Schneider, 10, of 2316 Quadra, wants to avoid problems.

"I'd tell everybody to get their books put away so they won't make any noise doing it the next day."

NANETTE ... a "new" dog

Mark Meun, 9, was pretty practical about it too. "You'd have everybody write their names on a book—so they wouldn't lose 'em or something."

Who says kids aren't organized?

Donna would try to make some order out of chaos too.

MALCOLM ... more homework

"They'd all write out name tags so I could learn them."

Malcolm was a little more specific on the curriculum. A little.

"I'd give them the Bible... and all that other stuff."

Nanette Norby, who is only five and is taking that first mysterious step into kindergarten, didn't have anything to say about teachers. She's never met one.

JANET ... ladies nicer

But she has some thoughts on what kindergarten should offer and why she's going to give it a try.

She wants to play with the toys. It's as simple as that.

Most of all, she wants to play with a dog there.

Not just any dog.

MARK ... names for books

"I want a new dog."

So there you are. Close to 21,000 youngsters are giving the matter some thought in what the adults call School District 61.

About 560 teachers are thinking about it too.

Should make for an interesting meeting of minds in just 10 days.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Last-Minute Treats Perk Up Hurried Meal

By Penny Saver

There are days when Penny has trouble keeping track of all the errands she has to do before the day is over. A short while ago I managed to get myself into a pretty tight corner. I'd spent the whole day racing around delivering the junior set to the dentist, and to friends in the country, as well as trying to do the shopping for the dinner I was supposed to give that night. My haphazard forays into food stores between appointments left me short one item at the end of the day... dessert.

As I dashed around the store for the last time, I found several last-minute helpers for my dinner. One of the unique foods I found was a package of cocktail nibblers. These are shrimp-flavored crisps, made in Hong Kong. These scrumptious tid-bits have a marvellous salty flavor, and they drew a lot of comment from my guests. You can buy a large eight-ounce package of these for 75 cents.

To go with an ice cream dessert, I bought some delicious cookies that are just right with a rich dinner. These cookies are the perfect complement to a sweet dessert because their flavor is light. Made with a thin filling of black currant, raspberry, vanilla or almond and nut cream, there are 20 of these crisp wafer biscuits in a package priced at 45 cents.

For the dieters in the family who are tired of suffering through uninteresting desserts (if they're allowed to have any), some scrumptious dessert toppings that can be used as spreads for toast as well, should be a welcome addition to the food cupboard. Raspberry, black currant, red cherry, Seville orange, blueberry, orange, and lemon and grapefruit will help give dash and sparkle to the strictest diet. They are all artificially sweetened but taste just like "the real thing". You can buy a good-sized jar of any of these spreads for 39 cents.

If you'd like to know where I shopped for these foods, please give me a call at 382-3131.

DEAR ABBY...

This Guy's Not Worth the Worry

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 and overweight. Everyone tells me I have a pretty face, but very few boys bother to look any further. I've had only two dates in my life and was so self-conscious I was miserable. You just can't imagine how much I'd like to be popular and have dates.

One night at a party one of the most popular boys in school took an interest in me. I was in heaven. He took me home and we parked on the way and he kissed me. It was my first kiss. I was wonderful. I kissed a lot and finally I got scared and called a halt.

He said he wanted to see me often, but next time he wasn't stopping at a kiss. He told me to get wise, that any fat girl can be popular if she will just give in a little. I was shocked and demanded that he take me home at once.

He told me to think it over and call him when I changed my mind.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. I have a big vein which is very prominent, covering about four inches on the back of my left leg. I won't wear a bathing suit because I am embarrassed by the vein; it is so ugly. Is there any makeup I can cover it with? I have gone to the store and bought make-up, but it just isn't the right color. Please, help!

A. Yes, there is makeup which will cover this and these products come in many different shades. Be sure to buy one which is waterproof. Some of these will even cover flaring birthmarks.

Try the cosmetic counters in a large store, or send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper for the names of some. If this is a real varicose vein, you should ask your doctor about it. Early treatment and preventive measures are most important.

Q. I am retired on a small pension and my social security. I simply cannot buy cosmetics, but I am still interested in the way I look and in keeping as youthful an appearance as possible.

I know that the aging skin has less natural oil and must have lubrication. Is there anything I can stir up at home which will be beneficial? I am also interested in bleaching superfluous hair.

A. Yes. Buy some cosmetic lanolin at your drugstore and mix it with olive oil so that it is the right consistency. If you cannot afford an eye cream buy some almond oil and pat this around your eyes before going to sleep at night.

For bleaching superfluous hair you can use a mixture of peroxide and household ammonia. Buy hydrogen peroxide, known as 20 volume peroxide. Add four drops of ammonia to three tablespoons of peroxide. Apply as soon as you mix it. Leave it until it dries, or for about a half hour. Rinse off.

You can repeat this after several days if the hair still requires it. If you are using this for upper lip hair, stuff a little cotton in your nostrils.

Some skins are extremely sensitive. If any irritation results, cut down on the ammonia and leave the mixture on for only 15 minutes. You might

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

"Some of the girls and I got to talking shop, and we decided we might as well."

A New You

by Emily Wilkens

The crucial test, career-wise, isn't necessarily how well you type or take dictation. How you look, speak and act all play an important part in whether or not you land and keep that marvelous, going-places job.

Highly qualified girls who've neglected or overplayed their looks often lose out to those who are not quite so qualified but who have "learned the importance of playing up their appearances and personalities. Job seekers would do well to brush up on looks as well as on typing before venturing out into the happy job-hunting ground.

You're out to snag a job, not to impress a Broadway producer or your favorite date. Leave your mini-skirts, brightest shifts and zaniest patterned stockings at home. Wear a simple, classic dress in a neutral color and durable fabric, which will stand up through several appointments without wrinkling or creasing. High heels and jingly bracelets are out.

In large cities, a hat and gloves (to wear, not tote) are preferable. Suburbs and outlying sections may be more relaxed about this rule, but a flattering hat and spanking clean gloves always make a good impression, as do polished shoes and a trim unadorned bag. None of this means that you have to look like Good Old Greta Gooch, girl secretary. It simply means that the tastefully dressed, efficient-looking job hunter has the inside track when a choice amongst applicants is imminent.

Your makeup should be subtle or the interviewer may suspect that you'll spend more time primping in the ladies' lounge than working at your desk. Unquestionably, use whatever beauty aids you need to look your best, but don't come on like a femme fatale. False lashes, heavy eyeliner and exotic scents, if used at all, should be saved for evening hours.

Contrary to popular opinion, most interviewers are nice people who do their best to put you at ease. Don't let your nervousness get the upper hand. Avoid jittery chatter and jumpy fidgeting. Follow the interviewer's lead. Let him ask the questions. Answer as fully as possible. Don't volunteer lots of extraneous facts, especially the personal kind.

DEAR ABBY: My mother bought an old beat up up-holstered davenport from an antique dealer. She paid $45 for it and sent a truck to haul it to her home. It sat in her basement for nearly a year. She started pulling it apart in order to reupholster it herself and she found $1,600 in bills in a yellowed envelope in one of the cushions.

She hasn't told anyone but me about this. Does she have to return the money to the antique dealer or does it belong to her? NAMELESS IN NEW ORLEANS

DEAR NAMELESS: The money belongs to your mother, unless and until someone turns up and proves that the money is his and that he had hidden it in that davenport. In the meantime, your mother has a pretty soft cushion.

CONFIDENTIAL TO DEE: Generalizations are unfair and unjust, so I will not say that ALL 14-year-old girls are too young and immature to date 18-year-old boys. I shall be more specific: ALL 14-year-old girls whose parents think they are too young and immature to date 18-year-old boys, ARE.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Helen Tisdall Becomes Bride of Lieut. Michael Morris

HEIRLOOM NECKLACE AS TALISMAN

An heirloom necklace of pearls and diamonds, which belonged to her great-great-aunt, the late Mrs. William Templeman, was the "something old" talisman for Helen Barbara Tisdall when she became the bride of Lieut. Michael Fraser Morris recently.

Her floor-length gown of norganza was styled with Venetian lace flowers bordering the scalloped sabrina neckline. The fitted bodice enhanced the slightly belled skirt of the gown, and a detachable wattleau train extended from the back waist. Her hand-rolled veil of pure silk misted softly from a tiny floral headpiece, and she carried a bouquet of pastel sweet peas and pink roses.

Rev. J. A. Roberts conducted the ceremony in St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church, which united the daughter of Mrs. E. P. Tisdall, 1284 Beach Drive, and the late Rear-Admiral Tisdall, and the son of Brig. and Mrs. S. E. E. Morris, 2483 Currie Road. Crimson gladioli, white stocks and yellow marguerite daisies decorated the church for the service, and Lt.-Cmdr. C. P. Tisdall gave his sister in marriage.

The bride's four attendants chose similar gowns of chiffon over taffeta, in pastel shades of green, pink, yellow and turquoise. Tiny wreaths of green leaves and white flowers formed their headpieces, and they carried colonial bouquets of sweet peas.

The Greatest Sin Is That of Apathy

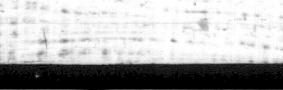

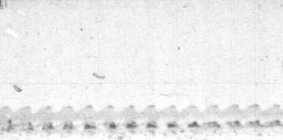

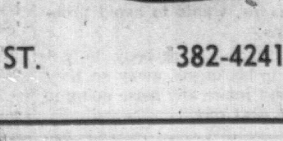

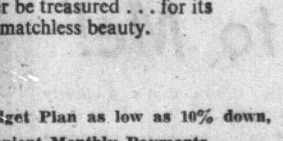

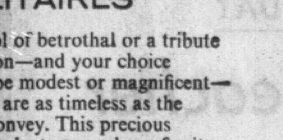

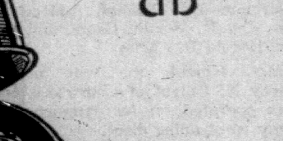

VANCOUVER (CP) — University women were told to put their training to work in the world as the triennial conference of the Canadian Federation of University-Women opened Wednesday.

At a luncheon given by officers of the University of British Columbia, Chancellor John M. Buchanan told the 350 delegates that "education and human welfare go together."

He said education needs to find ways to keep scientific progress from being destructive, weld Canadian cultures together, foster freedom without anarchy, and overcome apathy—"the great sin of our present day."

SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 63

(SAANICH)

SCHOOL BUS INFORMATION AND SCHEDULES

FOR THE SCHOOL YEAR 1967-68

SCHOOL BOARD POLICY — PUPIL TRANSPORTATION

School bus transportation, subject to available seating space, will be provided for:

Grade 1-3—Pupils who live more than two miles from the nearest Elementary School.

Grade 4-7—Pupils who live more than two and one-half miles from the nearest Elementary School.

Grade 8-12—Students who live more than three miles from the nearest Secondary School.

Mileage distances are calculated by the most direct route on established roads or walk areas, the distance being from the home property access to the road to the entry of the school site. All occupational class students, except those who have been advised to attend North Saanich Junior Secondary, will attend at Mount Newton Junior Secondary School. Special classes have been established at BRENTWOOD, CORDOVA BAY, McTAVISH ROAD and SANSBURY ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS. All pupils attending these classes have been advised. The following school bus schedules indicate the schools at which buses stop on each of the trips so that pupils attending the special classes and who are entitled to transportation may determine which bus to ride to arrive at the school where the special class to be attended is held.

GENERAL COMMENTS:

- Any questions or further information about the school bus schedules should be directed to the School Board Office, Sidney, Telephone 656-1111, or write to P.O. Box 100, Sidney. Every effort has been made to establish the bus routes to serve the greatest number of students who are entitled to school bus transportation in accordance with existing school board policy. A few days will be required after school opening to allow for a "shake down" period and the indulgence of all concerned is requested.
- In general it is expected that the return afternoon school bus runs will be the reverse of the morning runs.
- Tentatively the schools in School District No. 63 (Saanich) will open as indicated, Tuesday, September 5th, 1967.

MAINLAND DERBY

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will cross to Vancouver on Saturday where they will be guests at the annual Derby Day breakfast at Exhibition Park. They will then attend the British Columbia Derby Stakes, the feature race of the day. Major J. McManus will be the aide-de-camp in attendance.

Recent Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McMahon, 1846 Kenmore Road, announce the recent marriage of their elder daughter, Judith Margaret, to Mr. Gregory Thomas William Bowden, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bowden, 2431 Beresford Street. The bride is continuing her studies at St. Paul's Hospital's school of nursing and the groom is enrolled in the University of British Columbia's school of law.

Pink and Gold

An umbrella, decorated in pink and gold tones, held the gifts for bride-elect Miss Norrie Smith when she was entertained at a kitchen shower in the Howe Street home of Mrs. T. G. Se-well. Presiding at the refreshment table, which was gay with yellow, white and gold decorations, were the honor guests' mother, Mrs. Leslie Smith, and Mrs. Albert Buckler, the groom-elect's mother. Games were played by the 25 guests attending.

Attend Ceremony

Guests travelling from out-of-town for the recent Amundson-Holland wedding included Dr. A. S. Clarke and family, Mrs. Lorraine Koenig of Kelowna; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Parker and family of Nanaimo; Mr. and Mrs. R. Turnbull and family of Merritt; Mrs. N. Smyth, Monterey, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. D. Amundson and family of Crescent City, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. David Lee and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Stefani of Port Angeles; Mrs. E. Gillespie, Mr. and Mrs. Hunt, Mr. Jim Larson, Mr. Ron Penley, the Misses Marianne Larson, Sally Hunt and Pris Spencer, all of Seattle.

Co-Hostesses

Yellow roses and heather en corsage were presented to bride-elect Miss Diane Viggers when she was entertained at a shower by Mrs. V. Viggers and Mrs. J. Frampton in Mrs. Viggers' Quadra Street home. Similar flowers in crystal bud vases were given to the mother of the honor guest, Mrs. E. Viggers, and Mrs. V. Simmons, the groom-elect's mother. A basket, gaily decorated in yellow and white tones, held the gifts from Mrs. F. Graham, Mrs. N. Spedding, Mrs. H. Pearce, Mrs. B. Porter, Mrs. J. Robson, Mrs. E. Neuman, Mrs. G. Chamberlain, Mrs. G. Cambrey, Mrs. A. Spedding, Mrs. J. Craig, Mrs. C. Callow, Mrs. J. Callow, Mrs. T. Miles, Mrs. J. Callow Jr., Mrs.

Farewell Party

Mrs. A. Burns, who is leaving shortly with her family to live in Toronto, was entertained at a farewell party by fellow members of Xi Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority. The affair was held in the San Pedro Road home of Mrs. B. F. Hickman and co-hostesses were the Misses Raylene Wilcox and Irene Olah. The honor guest was presented with a gift and buffet refreshments were served.

Parents Here

Mr. and Mrs. William O'Reilly travelled from their home in Dawson Creek to attend the recent wedding of Miss Robin Olson and their son, Mr. Patrick O'Reilly. Also from the northern centre were the groom's brother, Mr. Bernard O'Reilly, his uncle, Mr. James O'Reilly, Mr. John Dumont and Mr. and Mrs. John Kendrick. Other guests were Miss Joanne Akhyama, Paldi, B.C.; Mr. Tom Weston and Mrs. H. Reidford of Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Viggers, 3330 Cedar Hill Road, announce the forthcoming marriage of their only daughter, Diane Valerie, to Mr. Michael J. A. Simmons, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. V. Simmons, 325 Moss Street. The wedding will take place on Friday, September 1, at 8 p.m., in St. Aidan's United Church. Rev. A. G. MacLeod will officiate. (Zeal Studio.)

Wheaton-Banfield Wedding Vows Exchanged in Church of Our Lord

The Church of Our Lord, where the bride's parents and maternal grandparents were wed, was the setting Thursday evening when Julie Grace Banfield became the bride of Robert John Wheaton.

Arrangements of yellow and white gladioli and chrysanthemums with ivy decorated the church when Bishop D. A. G. Rankin heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lloyd Banfield, 3332 Cardiff Place, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wheaton, 2747 Satellite Street.

During the service, John Dunbar sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Love Song" from the Song of Norway. The couple left the church to the strains of Verdi's "Triumphal March" from Aida.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a princess-line gown of matte elysee, bordered at the neckline with crystal droplets. The gown was topped with a matching coat on train, fashioned with sleeves to the elbow and a mandarin collar.

Tiny crystals and seed pearls shimmered on the floral headpiece of stephanotis which held her full cathedral veil of silk illusion net. She carried gardenias, stephanotis and ivy in her bouquet.

The bride's three attendants were in matching empire-line gowns, designed by the bride, of emerald green chiffon over yellow taffeta. The skirts were A-line at the front and gathered at the back on train.

Matron of honor Mrs. F. A. May, bridesmaid Miss Jane H. Wheaton and junior bridesmaid Mardi Joyce carried single gardenias surrounded with ivy and white rosebuds in their bouquets.

Best man was Craig C. Mearns and ushering the guests were R. Bruce Warburton, Douglas L. Dickie, Mark D. Banfield and John H. Wheaton.

A single gardenia and ivy topped the three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table at the reception in the Victoria Golf Club. The cake was surrounded with green tulle and gardenias and set on a white cutwork cloth.

An arrangement of yellow and white gladioli and chrysanthemums with ivy decorated the mantelpiece in the clubhouse. W. Humphrey Golby proposed the toast to the bride.

The bride donned a dress and princess-line coat ensemble in pale yellow blended silk and wool for travelling on honeymoon. The coat was fashioned with a picture collar and three-quarter-length sleeves. Her apple-green hat was accented with stitching at the collar and her accessories were in yellow patent leather. A gardenia corsage completed the outfit.

The couple will make their home in Vancouver.

Members of their family and friends gathered in the Highlander Motor Hotel in Calgary recently for a dinner party to mark the golden wedding anniversary of Victorian Mr. and Mrs. Peter Robertson, 742 Ralph Street. The couple was married in Glasgow, Scotland, on August 18, 1917. They moved to Calgary two years later, where they made their home until coming to Victoria in 1944. The Robertsons have two daughters, Mrs. R. P. (Betty) Weeks, Calgary, and Mrs. V. (Isabelle) Moorehouse, who travelled with her husband from Victoria for the anniversary. The couple also has six grandchildren. At the celebration in Calgary, Mr. and Mrs. Robertson were presented with an anniversary clock and a gold purse. (Matthews Photo Laboratory, Calgary.)

Exchange Vows in St. Patrick's Church

TO MAKE HOME AT DAWSON CREEK

Following a honeymoon trip up-island and touring the provincial interior, newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Edward O'Reilly will be making their home at Dawson Creek.

The bride, the former Robin Faye Olson, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Olson, 1846 Ruby Road. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William O'Reilly of Dawson Creek. Baskets of red and white gladioli decorated St. Patrick's Church for the service, conducted by Fr. A. E. Leonard.

As the bride entered the church on the arm of her father, organist Jack Lenaghan played Carron's "Nuptial March." "Ave Maria" was played during the signing of the register.

The bride's sleeveless gown of peau d'elephant was fashioned on empire lines with an A-line flare to the skirt. The neckline was softly scooped. Delicate re-embroidered Nottingham lace outlined the full veil on train which misted from a rose headpiece of white satin ribbon. She carried red and white gladioli and stephanotis with ivy in her bouquet.

Her attendants' matching gowns featured empire bodies of red velvet and skirts of white peau d'elephant. Their headpieces were of red and white carnations to match their bouquets.

As jewelry, maid of honor Miss Janis Olson and bridesmaid Miss Maria Olson wore their sister's gifts of pearl drop earrings.

Bernard O'Reilly was best man for his brother and ushering the guests were John Dumont and John Kendrick. The red and white color theme of the wedding was continued at the reception following in the home of the bride's parents. A wedding bell

Weds on Saturday

A round of parties heralds the marriage of Miss Frances Iving to Dale Raymond Woodburn this Saturday.

Pink carnations en corsage were presented to the honor guest when she was feted with a shower by the Misses Jane Knudsen and Carol Mowat in the latter's Dallas Road home. Her mother, Mrs. C. W. Iving, received white carnations. A decorated laundry basket held the gifts.

A decorated wishing well contained the gifts when Mrs. J. Hamlet, Mrs. Carl Blake, Mrs. Charles Guiguet and Miss Joann Guiguet hosted a shower in the Guiguets' Dalhousie Street home. Royal Staffordshire boutonnieres were presented to the bride-elect and her mother.

Mrs. A. Thompson and co-hostesses Mrs. R. Harbour, Mrs. C. McLaughlin gave a sherry party in the Mowat Street home of Mrs. Thompson. The honor guest and her mother received pink rosebuds en corsage, and gifts were presented in a decorated wheelbarrow.

The bride-to-be will be entertained at a linen shower and buffet dinner in the Cadboro Bay Road home of Mrs. E. Lacey.

Couple Will Live In Everett

A lace handkerchief, originally carried by her great-great-grandmother for her wedding, was the "something old" talisman for Janet Elizabeth Holland when she became the bride of Frederick Amundson.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of nylon organza styled with a bateau neckline and sleeves ending in rilly points. The fitted bodice opened to a softly flared skirt which extended on train from a tiny bridal bow at the back. Appliques of Venetian lace highlighted the gown. Her tiered veil of silk illusion net misted to the floor from a floral headpiece studded with seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of white gladioli with ivy.

Rev. C. D. Blencoe conducted the service in St. Mary's Anglican Church, which was decorated with arrangements of white gladioli and ivy.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. John Dixon Guyer Holland, 1409 Stanley Avenue, and Mrs. C. C. Stefani, Port Angeles, and Mr. D. Amundson, Crescent City, Calif. Mr. Holland gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride's single attendant, Miss Gail Pizag, chose a floor-length empire-line gown of azure blue crepe. The gown featured a softly-pleated scoop neckline and three-quarter-length sleeves edged in self-fabric pleats. Her headpiece was en tone, and she carried a bouquet of white roses and ivy. Acting as best man was David Lee, and ushers were Russell Smyth and John Holland, the bride's brother.

Dr. A. S. Clarke proposed the toast to his niece at the reception following in the home of the bride's parents. A three-tier wedding cake topped with an heirloom silver vase of dahlias and gypsophila centred the head table.

For travelling on honeymoon to Kelowna and Banff, the bride chose an azure blue coat dress with a scarf hat in blue and green tones. Black accessories completed the outfit.

When they return, the newlyweds will live in Everett, Wash.

Co-Hostesses

A decorated pink and white umbrella contained the gifts for bride-elect Miss Susan Lewis when she was entertained at a shower in the Yates Street home of Mrs. H. Daniel. Co-hostess was Mrs. Daniel's daughter, Mrs. Richard Lewis, who is visiting here from Calgary.

Small white chrysanthemums en corsage were given to the honor guest, and her mother, Mrs. W. W. Lewis, received similar flowers in pink tones. Guests were the bride-elect's chosen matron of honor Mrs. W. Pogson, Mrs. J. M. Green, Mrs. F. Langford, Mrs. E. Thomas, Mrs. R. Tanahill, Mrs. J. McMaster, Mrs. J. Grieves, Mrs. H. Brown and Mrs. D. Blackett.

1,000,000 Require Jobs, Decent Homes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A call by urban leaders for the government to provide 1,000,000 jobs for the unemployed and 1,000,000 decent low-income housing units highlighted the racial scene Thursday.

Meeting in Washington, members of the newly formed Urban Coalition — including big city mayors and leaders of business, labor, religion and civil rights groups — also urged greater efforts in job training by the private sector.

They responded with applause when Mayor John Lindsay of New York said the U.S. commitment abroad "should not be allowed to weaken our resolve at home."

Three Arrested At U.S. Border On Drug Charges

VANCOUVER (CP) — RCMP Thursday charged three persons arrested at two international border crossings with possession of hallucinatory drug LSD.

William Thomas Hayes, 18, and David Bruce Dunstan, 18, both of Seattle, were taken into custody at the Pacific Highway crossing 30 miles southeast of Vancouver. They were charged jointly with possession of 27 caps of LSD. Dunstan was also charged with possession of marijuana.

At the nearby Douglas border crossing James Robert Levesque, 21, of Winnipeg, was arrested and charged with possession of marijuana.

Some progress in housing for the military was reported by the Pentagon, which has recently opened thousands of rental units to Negro servicemen in the capital area.

The number of housing units available to servicemen without regard to color has more than tripled in two months.

POLICE SUED
In Newark, N.J., site of one of the summer's bloodiest riots, a federal court suit was filed seeking to take control of the city police department and place it in the hands of a receiver.

The action filed by lawyers for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the American Civil Liberties Union charged the police department with "acts of violence, intimidation and harassment to keep the Negro community in a second-class status."

In New York Thursday night, Negro author James Baldwin charged that the summer's domestic trouble "wears the mask of color. But it really isn't about color. It's about the failure in the middle of the 20th century of all the social and economic arrangements of American society."

Jail Terms End Confusion By 'Twins'

The long and confusing trial of George R. Morrison, also known as David Barclay, and Richard John Barclay came to an end today when they were sentenced to prison terms.

They were charged with eight counts of false pretences.

George Morrison was sentenced to 18 months definite and 12 months indeterminate in the Young Offenders Unit and David Barclay was sentenced to 12 months definite and six months indeterminate in the same institution.

The trial was marked with emotional outbursts from Morrison, claims that they were twins and that their identities had been confused.

Magistrate William Ostler eventually asked for legal aid for the two so that the confusion surrounding the case might be cleared up.

The two blond youths originally pleaded not guilty to the eight charges then later changed their pleas to guilty on seven counts. The eighth was dismissed for lack of evidence.

The Barclay saga opened June 23 when Morrison pleaded guilty to six counts of false pretences. He said at that time that he was David Barclay and that he was in jail for his brother Richard's crimes and Richard was serving time for his.

He also said that the fingerprints of the two were reversed on the records.

He was subsequently sent to Riverview for observation and returned to Victoria pronounced fit to stand trial. Then Richard joined him in the dock and the charges were amended to eight counts. Both pleaded not guilty.

Eventually they changed their minds about the not guilty pleas and their names and admitted their real identities.

Bank Bandits Escape In Aircraft

BRYSON, Que. (CP)—Police today were looking for three armed men who got away in a light aircraft after robbing the Bryson branch of the Bank of Montreal of about $45,000 Thursday.

At least one of the men was believed severely wounded in a fierce exchange of gunfire with three witnesses to the holdup.

Police found 18 bullet holes in the home of Charles Routledge, who fought it out with the bandits along with his son Philip, and Keith Kluge, 19.

The three witnesses were in the Routledge home, across the street from the bank, and opened fire when the robbers emerged with their loot.

BULLETS FLY
"There was a barrage of bullets the minute they came down the steps," Mr. Routledge recounted today. "I fired the first shot from behind the shed and then everything broke loose."

The route from the bank to a farmer's field 10 miles from here, where the robbers escaped by air, was strewn with about $3,000 of the stolen money.

The two front tires of the getaway car were punctured with bullet holes.

The stolen money was part of the weekly payroll for employees building a multi-million-dollar paper mill near this town about 50 miles east of Hull, Que.

Drinking in Public
Doug Hughes, 23, of 248 Crease, was fined $50 today for consuming liquor in a public place.

Drinking Drivers Pay $1,200 in Fines
Fines totalling $1,200 were meted out in central court today to four persons who admitted impaired driving charges.

Each was fined $300.

Kenneth James Clark, 316 Skinner, was involved in an accident on Johnson Street which resulted in $350 damage.

His licence was suspended for six months except for business purposes.

William C. McLeod, picked up when he drove into a Douglas Street service station, told police he had driven down from his home in Nanaimo.

Simone Champagne, of Vancouver, was charged with being impaired while in care and control of a vehicle. She was found behind the wheel of a car on Rockland Avenue. A breath test showed a reading of .20.

Her licence was suspended for four months.

Kathleen Grainger, 450 Dallas, was found leaning on her car's horn on Superior Street. A breath test gave a reading of .15.

Her licence was suspended for one month.

CHARGE WITHDRAWN
At preliminary hearing July 13, Sessions Judge Paul Roy ordered the withdrawal of the charge of criminal libel brought against Mr. Roy.

Mr. Cellier, Mr. Lamoureux and Mr. Comp are to stand trial on the charge at the October assizes. Mr. Peladeau's hearing has been adjourned to Aug. 31.

However, the action filed Thursday contains 66 allegations and claims the two newspaper companies and the defendants have conducted themselves in an "illegal, false, malicious and imprudent" fashion and that they are jointly responsible for "their common error."

Moreover, the action says, Mr. Corriveau July 6 demanded of Le Journal de Quebec a complete retraction of the story, but the retraction was not made.

"The damages and prejudice suffered by the plaintiff as a result of the publication of this story are irreparable..." the action states.

Derby Winner Charged
WEST VANCOUVER (CP)—Police today issued a warrant for the arrest of a Newfoundland man who claimed first prize in the Sun salmon derby during the weekend.

Charged with fraud is David John Chafe, 31, who came to B.C. several years ago. The warrant alleges Chafe claimed first prize in the contest, sponsored by Vancouver's afternoon newspaper, "by presenting a fish... when in fact he had not caught the fish according to the established rules" of the contest.

First prize was a boat and an outboard engine valued at $3,500. Officials of the Sun said any redistribution of the prizes will be held in abeyance pending disposition of the Chafe case.

RC Award Given To Mme. Vanier
OTTAWA (CP)—Mme. Georges P. Vanier, wife of the late Governor-General, has been named recipient of the 1967 Cardinal Newman Award made annually to the Canadian Roman Catholic layman who has made a notable contribution to the country's intellectual life.

North Saanich May Get Park
The highways department is willing to turn over almost 28 acres to North Saanich for a park, a provincial cabinet order indicated Thursday.

The order authorized North Saanich to survey the parcel which lies between Patricia Bay Highway and East Saanich Road at John Road. The department acquired the land as part of its Patricia Bay reconstruction serving Swartz Bay terminal and no longer needs it.

Suspects Arrested
JAKARTA (AP)—The Indonesian army has arrested 116 Communists and supporters of deposed President Sukarno in West Java, the official news agency Antara reported Thursday.

Spider-Mites Easily Controlled
By JACK BEASTALL
The red spider-mite is an insect that was brought to the attention of gardeners a few years ago and is now being blamed for anything and everything that happens to a plant.

Outside entomological laboratories there are very few individuals who have seen the mite or know its habits and many gardeners have killed plants through spraying for a pest that was never a serious trouble.

The home gardener has to be blessed with exceptional eyesight to see these mites on a plant. The female is about 1-60th of an inch in length (about the size of the point on a pin) and the males are considerably smaller.

The only visible indication of their presence on a plant is a characteristic mottled web that could never be mistaken for the spider webs so often seen on our plants at this time of year.

This insect is a mite that is closely related to the cyclamen mite, and it belongs in the group of insects known as spiders, hence a spider-mite. In no way does it resemble the thousands of small spiders, some of them red in color, which can always be found running over plants.

NAME MISLEADING
The name, red spider-mite, is quite misleading, for the mites range in color from pale yellow to light orange, or green. The young mites are pinkish with six legs, the adults most often yellow or green with eight legs. New generations hatch every 20 to 30 days.

The mites feed by piercing the foliage and sucking out the plant juices, or sap. Infested foliage has a mottled grey to yellowish appearance, and a badly infested plant will have a brownish leaf drop.

Spider-mite damage is greatest in hot, dry climates or the hot, dry conditions of a living room or sun porch. Fortunately, the relative humidity outdoors here on the coast is high enough at all times to keep these mites under control.

The only conditions under which they are likely to thrive is when susceptible plants are grown closely together, or too close to a house, so that the normally moist coastal air cannot freely penetrate the mass of foliage.

If the characteristic mottled and mealy webs are noticed on a plant, spraying the foliage several times a day with clear water will create the conditions mites cannot tolerate.

Miss Victoria In National Competition

With a little bit of luck a pretty Victoria lass could become Miss Canada this fall. Miss Victoria, Margaret Vickers will compete for the national title in October.

Earlier this year Victoria Jaycees had decided not to send the local queen to the contest because of a lack of funds.

However, Miss Vickers' employer, F. W. Woolworth Co., has signed a franchise and will sponsor her entry.

The former Saanich Diamond Jubilee Queen, Miss Vickers is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Vickers, 1700 Sprucewood Place.

She will be leaving for the PNE Saturday to vie for the Miss PNE title.

PUZZLE OF TORY LEADER

They Say Dief Won't Run Does That Mean He'll Fight?

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—About all that can be said with certainty about John Diefenbaker's plans for the Progressive Conservative national leadership convention in Toronto Sept. 5-9 is this: He has never run away from a fight.

But presumably even he would need some weapons—assured ballots of some of the 2,443 voting delegates before the polling Saturday, Sept. 9.

Many observers expect that Mr. Diefenbaker will decide to seek re-election to the post he won 11 years ago providing he thinks he can pick up 800 to 1,000 votes on the first ballot.

Alvin Hamilton, former agriculture minister in the Diefenbaker cabinet and himself one of the nine announced candidates for the leadership, has said The Chief would top the first ballot if he ran.

Create Panic
And an aide to one of the other eight candidates in the field said there will be "complete panic" if Mr. Diefenbaker enters the race. The anti-Diefenbaker forces would immediately have to combine.

The anti-Diefenbaker group combined effectively last November to force a leadership convention.

There is still deep resentment among the Diefenbaker loyalists about the manner in which this was done. Mr. Diefenbaker was booed and hissed in public to the point where he leaned over the lectern and said in amazement: "Is this a Conservative meeting?"

The fact remains that the majority demonstrated last November that it doesn't want Mr. Diefenbaker to remain as leader. So far at least, there has been no indication that this attitude has changed.

Would Mr. Diefenbaker be content to top the first ballot, if he could, and then withdraw?

Nobody pretends to know what he will do. He will address the convention Thursday night, Sept. 7. Official nominations are the following morning.

Last Minute
Mr. Diefenbaker may well wait until the last minute to test convention reaction before declaring himself.

Mr. Diefenbaker's ordeal is not made any easier by the fact that every region of Canada, with the exception of Quebec, has a native son candidate for the leadership.

Friends of The Chief say that most politicians studying this situation look on it as they themselves see it and not as Mr. Diefenbaker might.

Well, how would it appear to Mr. Diefenbaker?

For one thing, he is said to believe that one group, comprising mainly Toronto financial interests, seized the party machinery last November to force a leadership convention.

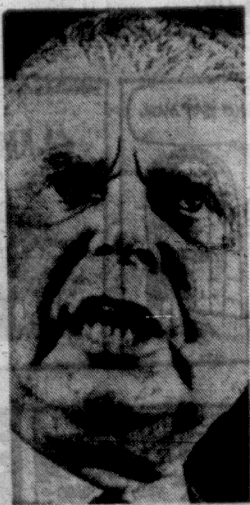

That leads to a question: Is the Conservative party to become the spokesman of one group which can hire and fire a leader at will?

Mr. Diefenbaker has always been deeply opposed to any special interests having the whip hand. He has tried, in the words of his supporters, to make the Conservatives a "people's party."

Before 1957-58, they say, there was no room in the Conservative party for coal miners and dirt farmers. They weren't wanted. They might not be again.

The anti-Diefenbaker groups of course dispute this view.

In 1935, the Conservatives won 39 of 245 Commons seats. They won 39 in 1940 and 67 in

... holds spotlight

1945. They won 41 of 262 in 1949 and 51 of 265 in 1953.

In the 1957 election under Mr. Diefenbaker, the Conservatives won 112 seats and formed the government. In 1958 they won 208, the biggest landslide in Canadian history.

They slipped to 116 seats in 1962 but still formed the government. They lost their hold on office with 95 seats in 1963. In 1965, they won 97.

Three Wins
In short, under Mr. Diefenbaker the party won three of five elections and Conservative strength in the Commons has never been as low as it was from 1935 to the middle of 1957.

"Look at the record," Mr. Diefenbaker says.

The party did look at it and the majority signified last November it didn't like it—or at least the latter part of it.

Seldom has there been such a riches-to-rags story in Canadian politics. In the long run, the riches may still outweigh the rags.

The Prairie firebrand, still pyrotechnical at 71, took Canadian politics by the heels and slapped it into shouting life.

Mr. Diefenbaker generated fierce loyalty and equally fierce antagonism. In the six years he was prime minister nobody ever had to ask: "Who's really in charge in Ottawa?"

A towering figure in Parliament—and probably the dominant one whether in office or opposition—he thrives on controversy.

Early Bids
Mr. Diefenbaker has tasted defeat before—in 1925 and 1926, for instance, when he first tried to get elected to the Commons, and in 1948 when he failed to win his party's leadership.

He bided his time for eight years until the Conservatives elected him leader in December, 1956. His opponents were Donald Fleming and David Fulton, now candidates again for the leadership.

The Liberals under Prime Minister St. Laurent called a general election for June 10, 1957, by which time Mr. Diefenbaker had been Conservative leader for less than six months.

Hardly anybody except Mr. Diefenbaker to win. Suddenly, his campaign caught fire and became almost a crusade.

So unaccustomed was the civil service to a Conservative government that a bureaucrat refused to permit some secret documents to be seen by Prime Minister Diefenbaker, who had to appeal to Mr. St. Laurent for help. It was the last time any bureaucrat made such a mistake.

Mr. Diefenbaker smashed the opposition in the 1958 election, which the Liberals desperately tried to avoid, and poured legislation through Parliament like a river in flood.

But, gradually, this political express became a chugging local. The record majority of 1958 became the minority of 1962. The cabinet came apart and on April 8, 1963, the voters turned out their one-time hero and hurled him back into the opposition.

You can get a different answer every time you ask the question: what happened?

Some think Mr. Diefenbaker's decline and fall as prime minister were written invisibly in his huge 1958 majority.

Turning Point

Some think the turning point was the government's attempt in 1961 to sack James E. Coyne as governor of the Bank of Canada without a Commons hearing. Mr. Coyne went voluntarily after the Liberal-dominated Senate struck down the legislation to fire him.

Some think it was the 1962 exchange crisis, brought on in part by big government deficits.

Some think it was hesitation on whether to allow American nuclear warheads on Canadian soil.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk rejected Mr. Diefenbaker's attempt to reach an agreement whereby the vital part for a nuclear warhead could be flown to Canada in four hours in an emergency.

Some ascribe Mr. Diefenbaker's downfall to indecision in the latter years of his administration.

Some say it was failure to recognize the ferment in Quebec.

But there was general agreement on one point: The Prairie lawyer had fired up the political imagination of Canadians as had no one else in recent times. The huge campaign rallies attested to that.

In the fall of 1957, national hospital insurance was introduced, old age pensions increased. There were huge new outlays of mortgage money. There were cash advances for farm-stored grain. Canada was taken into the North American Air Defence alliance.

... deep trouble

The legislative mill continued to churn at a frantic rate after the 1958 sweep, producing Mr. Diefenbaker's own brand of Conservatism, sometimes called "social justice."

There were more housing loans. There were roads to resources, a railway to Great Slave Lake, the South Saskatchewan dam, acreage payments for Western farmers.

Mr. Diefenbaker, born in Ontario, was brought up on a Saskatchewan farm and he has the feel of, and a great love for, the Prairies. Legislation to aid Western farmers came from Parliament year after year. The farmers repaid him handsomely at the polls, even after his government had come crashing down.

But in the good political years the economy did not fare so well. Unemployment plagued Mr. Diefenbaker almost from the time he first took office.

Critics contend that, unhappily for Mr. Diefenbaker, he never seemed to have the same "feel" for the other provinces as he did for the Prairies. The big cities turned almost unanimously against him.

In 1960, Mr. Diefenbaker achieved a long-cherished dream of putting through Parliament a Canadian bill of rights. It is this bill, or an expanded form of it, which Prime Minister Pearson and the provincial premiers will try to enshrine in the constitution.

... played role

Mr. Diefenbaker settled with Quebec a long-standing argument over federal university grants.

But in 1961 came the Coyne affair and a deficit of $791,400,000.

Parliament had its longest session up to that time but somehow not as much seemed to get done as in the much shorter sessions of 1957 and 1958.

New Leader

By this time, too, the Liberals had begun to revive, the old CCF had become the New Democratic Party and Social Credit got a new leader.

Mr. Diefenbaker's Commons losses in 1962 were the greatest on record but he still managed to survive as head of a minority government. In the 1962-63 session, 40 of the 61 legislative items died on the order paper. The Opposition pounced Feb. 5, 1963, two days after Douglas Harkness resigned as defence minister on the nuclear issue and while the cabinet was making a desperate attempt to shore itself up.

The Conservatives were turned out on a vote of no confidence.

Now Mr. Diefenbaker's back was to the wall and he fought like a tiger. It was like 1957 all over again. Many feel he alone saved the Conservative party from near extinction.

But his political tide had ebbed while the Liberals' flowed and the backwash carried him out of office.

Hardly anybody gave Mr. Diefenbaker a prayer in the 1965 election. But the Liberals failed to get a majority of Commons seats.

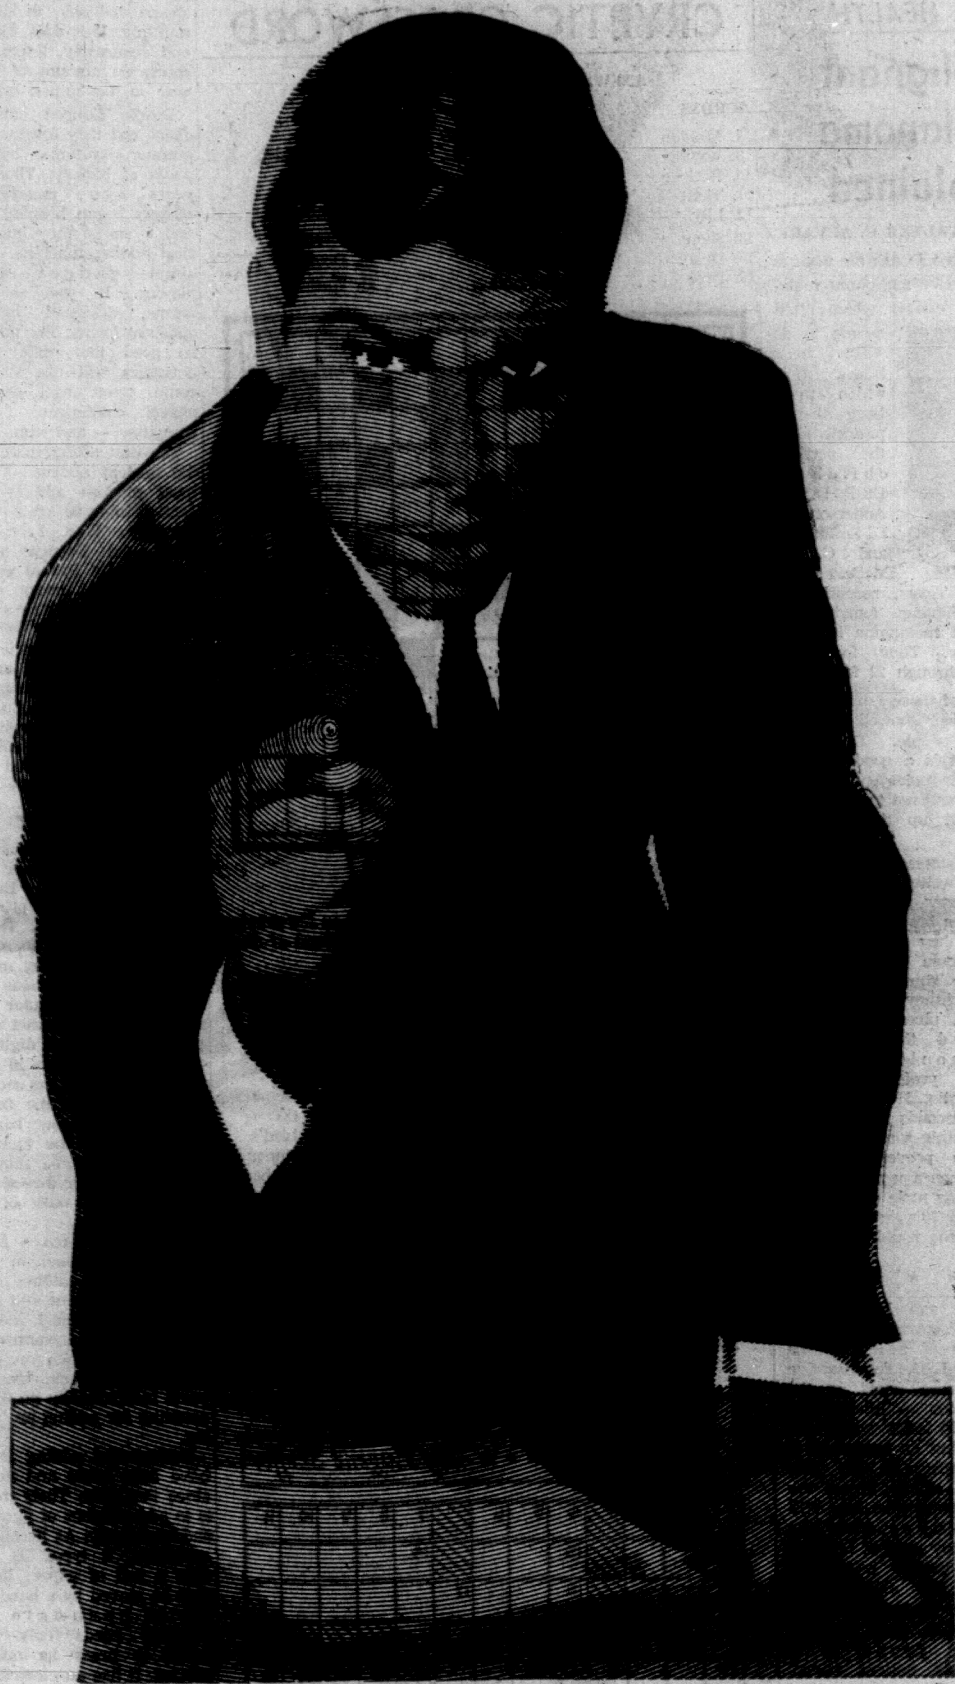

After the 1965 contest, the Conservatives began fighting intramurally. Mr. Diefenbaker survived a challenge to his leadership at the party's annual meeting in 1965 and at two executive meetings.

But at the annual meeting last fall, delegates voted to hold a leadership convention. Some delegates clustered around The Chief wept openly and unashamedly.

Who will weep in Toronto?

Malignant Melanoma Explained

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Many people ask me what is the cause of malignant melanoma—a cancer which often seems to develop in a black mole, which may have been present since the person's childhood. Drs. D. E. Anderson, J. L. Smith, Jr., and C. M. McBride, of Houston, Texas, recently reported having found that malignant melanoma is often hereditary. They found it running through 22 families.

In one of these families, the black cancer showed up in 15 of the people. To avoid trouble, it is a good idea to have black moles cut out and removed, and not to wait until they swell up and become ulcerated.

What distresses me is that when I write about black moles, many people assume that I mean brown moles, and that they get needlessly upset. Brown moles should always be shown to a skin specialist if they ulcerate. Any mole that ulcerates, gets a scab, and then ulcerates again, should quickly be destroyed, preferably by a skin specialist. He can burn it off in 30 seconds in his office, after injecting some procaine, so as to prevent pain. I marvel when a woman leaves a disfiguring mole on her face or neck for 70 years—when in a minute she could get rid of it.

A while ago I mentioned here the discovery that in the body cells of a few persons who took LSD, degenerative changes were found in the chromosomes—microscopic particles in cells which determine what an animal or a man is going to be. This finding, of course, raises the very important question: Will these changes affect the health of any user of LSD, or will they greatly affect the health of any children the person may some day have?

Interestingly, such changes have been found in a schizophrenic patient tested eight months after having received 15 treatments with the drug—over a four-year period. A number of able men are now studying this frightening problem, and several are reporting that they have confirmed the discovery. The best summary on the subject that I have seen is in "Science News" for June 2, 1967. There, the author tells of a number of geneticists throughout the country who have been finding this change in the cells. It could produce cancer in the person.

According to Dr. Frank Marvel of Stanford University, perhaps one in six epileptics is resistant to treatment with drugs. The neurosurgeon thinks that two out of every three of these resistant patients may now be candidates for surgical treatment, and he and his associates are operating on about 50 such patients a year.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions to select to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Mike B-han, age 13, of Nashville, Tennessee, for his question:

How does an adding machine work?

Math problems can be tough enough to strain the brain of a genius. But before a person can tackle even the simplest of such problems, he must be sure of his arithmetic. These basic skills use various methods of multiplying and dividing—but all arithmetic boils down to the two simple operations of adding and subtracting. This is why adding is the basic number skill. And a machine that can add also can subtract and also should be able to divide and multiply. If it does the job fast and accurately, it can save an enormous amount of wear and tear on the human brain.

People figured out how to count and they invented various number systems before the dawn of history. Thousands of years ago, merchants and traders began keeping accounts and to do so they invented the first adding machine. It was a simple gadget called "the abacus." It was a counting frame, designed in several different forms. The abacus was so good that many Oriental countries still use it. In fact, some years ago, an abacus expert challenged a modern computer—and won.

The first adding machine was the ancient abacus—and the most modern adding machine cannot improve upon its basic principle. Way back in the 1600s, the French mathematician Blaise Pascal was figuring out the theory of probability. His interest in the behavior of liquids led him to invent the hydraulic press. Pascal also invented an adding machine. A few years later, Baron von Leibnitz of Germany invented the binary system used in most modern computers. Leibnitz also invented an improved adding machine.

Worked Faster

These adding machines of the Middle Ages had faster working mechanical parts. But they worked on the same principle as the ancient abacus. The same basic idea is used to make our most modern adding machines. The reliable old abacus may be a simple rectangular frame, enclosing nine parallel wires or pegs, one for each digit from 0 to 9. Each peg holds 10 movable beads. A bead on the second peg is worth ten on the first peg. The 10 third row beads are worth one on the fourth row. The beads can be moved and counted in either direction to do the two basic skills of adding and subtracting.

Leibnitz invented a mechanical stepped wheel to do the counting in his adding machine. A modern machine still uses the same type of wheel, along with a more refined system of gears and gadgets. When you push its numbered buttons, its moving parts mechanically do the basic counting for adding or subtracting.

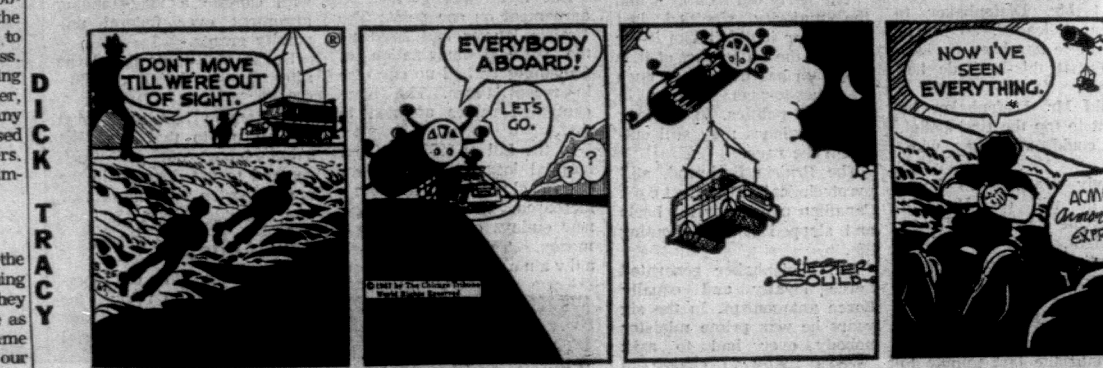

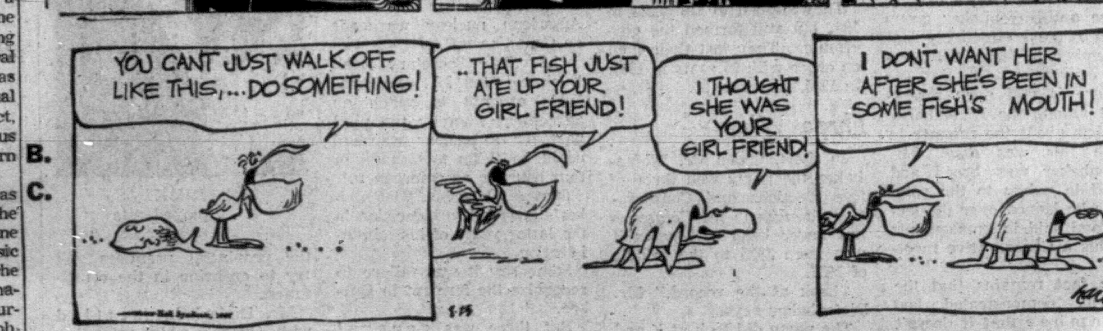

Commercial adding machines have been made and marketed since the 1820s. Their main job is to add columns of figures fast and accurately. As it counts and computes, it types its figures onto a roll of paper. Its parts may be moved by a hand crank. But an up-to-date adding machine needs only human hands to press its numbered buttons. It has an electric motor to move the mechanical parts that do the necessary counting of basic arithmetic. If you press the right buttons, the right answer is tapped out in neatly typed figures.

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to Anthony D. Bianca, age 8, of Staten Island, New York, for his question:

How does an earthworm dig his burrow?

Even if the earthworm dug a shovel, he has no hands to use it. He has no paws or claws to scoop out a burrow or a hole in the ground. Yet every earthworm makes a burrow for himself. In fact, he burrows and tunnels through the soil day and night. This seems impossible, but he does it all by himself. Mr. Pinky happens to be an eager eater—a very-very eager eater. He even eats the crumbly soil. He noses his way through the ground by eating the dirt and pushing his wormy body forward to fill the hollow. He digs his burrow by eating his way through the soil.

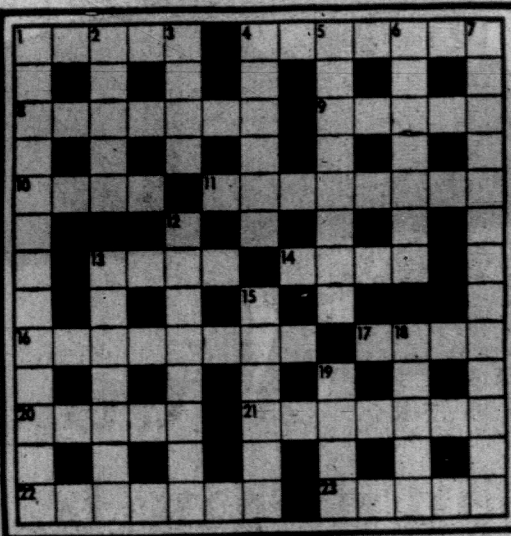

The dirt itself is not his food. But soil is mixed with fragments of rotting leaves, with tiny bacteria and all sorts of other scraps of decay. These scraps are Mr. Pinky's groceries. When he fills his tummy with soil, his insides separate the plain dirt from the morsels of food. His stomach digests the scraps of food. The useless dirt is pushed down to his tail end. When he comes up to the surface, the waste dirt he has eaten is cast outside in a curly little pile. This worm casting is the dirt that Mr. Pinky took out as he built his burrow.

ABOUT HIPPIES

'Baird Expressed Majority Opinion'

By ELIZABETH FORBES

The mild case of hysteria that rippled through Victoria this week when Acting Mayor Robert Baird spoke out on the subject of hippies, was deplorable to say the least.

Those who foolishly succumbed to it, proceeded to rap the acting mayor's knuckles for having the courage to put into words the thoughts of a majority of our citizens.

Very few really like the hippy element. Very few condone their everyday behaviour in Centennial Square or anywhere else. Very few believe that the gatherings they call "love-ins" have any purpose.

Trouble is that very few will speak out and express their dislike of this sort of shenanigans.

Since Acting Mayor Baird's epic meetings with the hippies, I have heard a good many people commend him. Yet, to my knowledge, their voices and others like them have not been recorded nor their thoughts printed, for all to hear and read.

The acting mayor gave the hippies a fair hearing. He ignored the fact that they put bare feet on committee room desks in senseless acts of discourtesy, that they were dirty, often rude in their speech and that they blew smoke in his face. He listened politely as they talked.

At the same time he didn't hesitate to tell them what he thought of them and their actions. Nor did he give them permission to hold another "love-in" at Beacon Hill Park.

Reduced to a simple fact there could have been no other decision regarding the park gathering. There was a firm commitment to the Victoria Symphony Society for this Sunday afternoon.

If the hippies wish to respect the rights of others, as they would have us believe, then they will accept this fact with dignity and decorum.

Naturally, Mr. Baird's definition that "God is love" will not be upheld by everyone.

At the same time it might be well to remember that it is the belief of a great percentage of our citizens. And, in its widest inference, it has far more sense than the definition given by the hippy who said "it is a chemical reaction."

During the hysteria, exception was taken to the acting mayor's remarks that as hippies had broken no laws in their use of Centennial Square, it was impossible to have them whipped out of the area or flushed out with fire hoses.

It is hoped such drastic action will never be needed in Victoria.

Although you only need to follow the news to know it has been necessary in other places. I imagine Mr. Baird had these instances in mind when he spoke in this way.

These young boys and girls (I hesitate to say young men and women for they still seem to be in a childhood trauma) would seem to need some sort of jolt to let them know they are not acceptable as they are at present. That they must earn the respect of our citizens before they will ever gain any of the things they want.

They must also realize they will never receive that respect by merely jingling bells, offering flowers, huddling under blankets or smoking marijuana.

I have said it before in this column. It's wonderful to be young! It's exciting to be young in this age of miracles! It's a challenge to be young and to know that the future depends on the intelligence of youth!

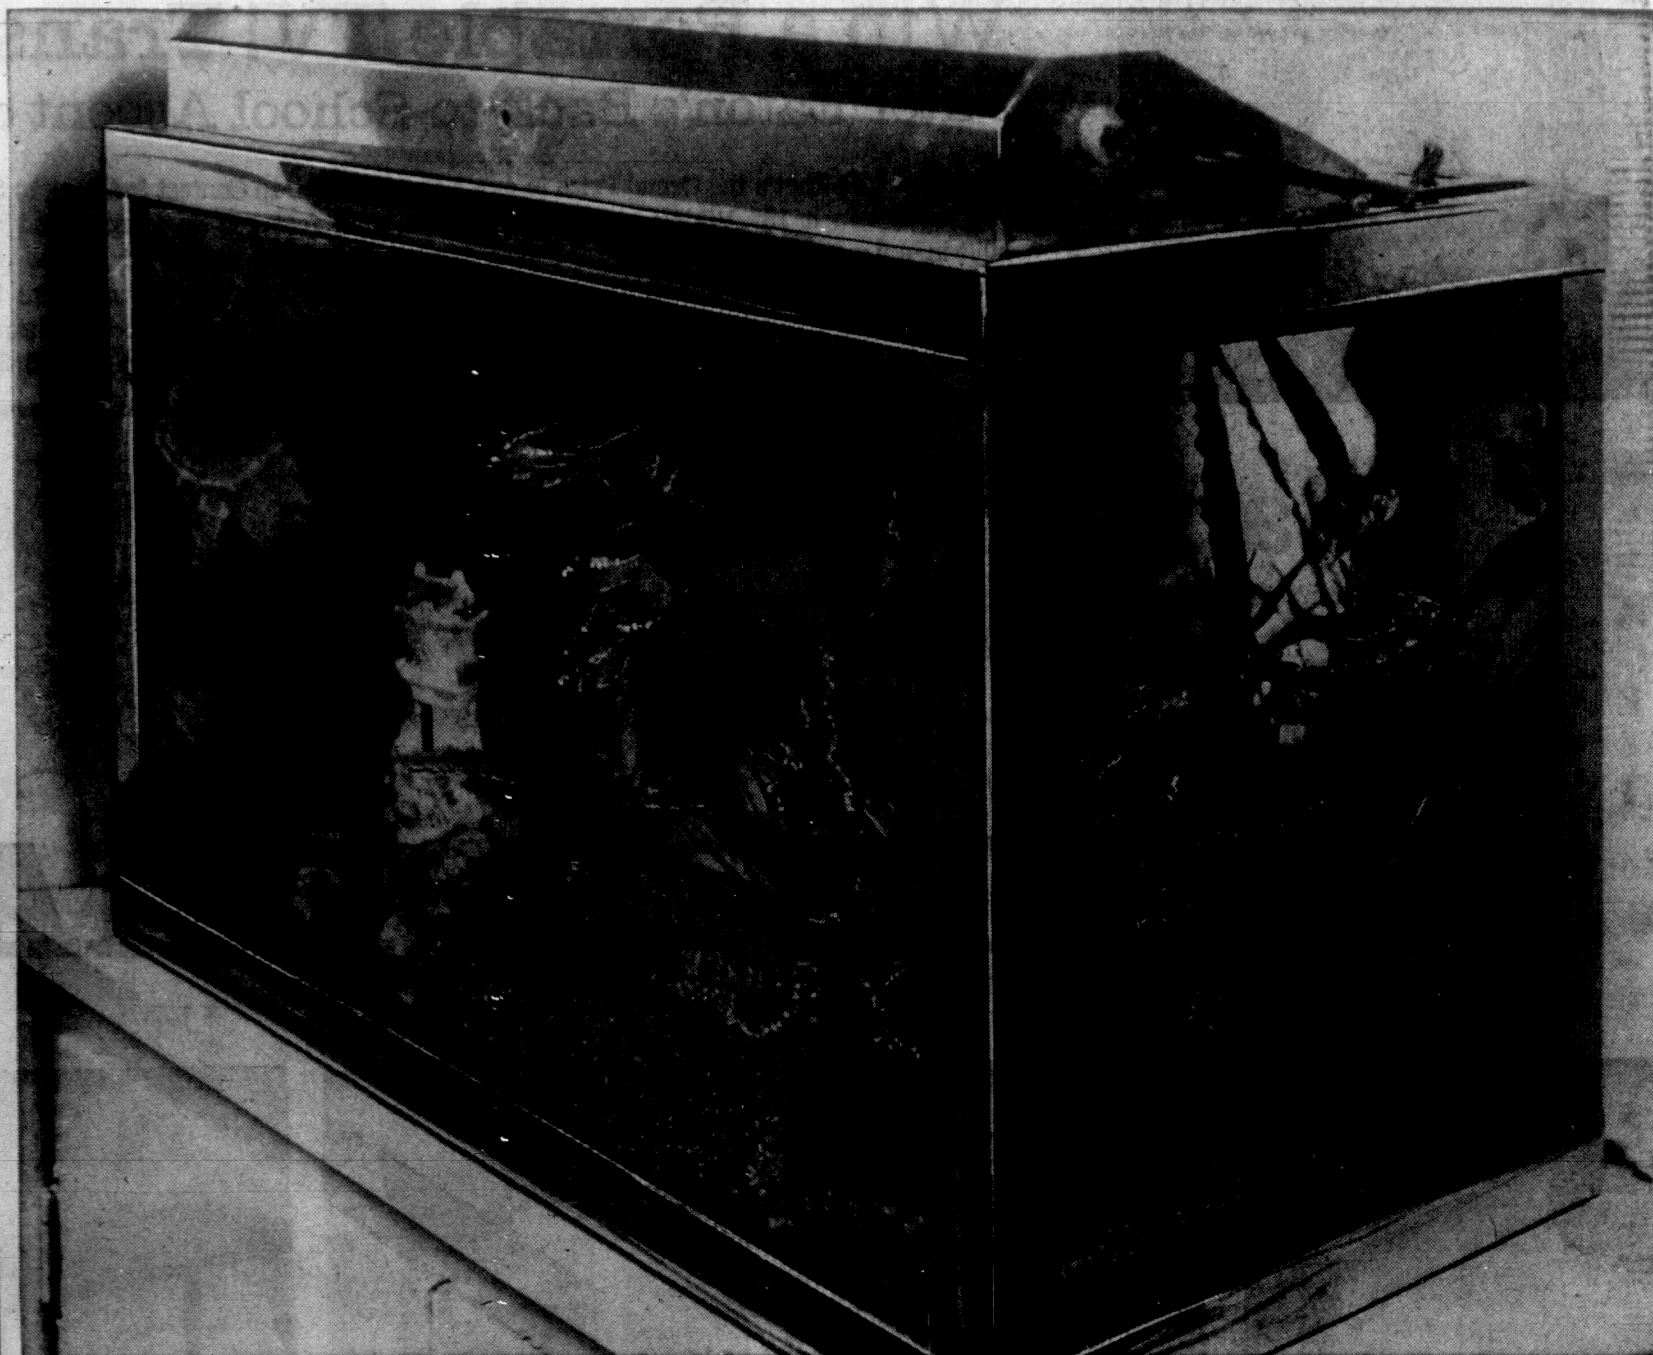

However, a challenge of this magnitude brings responsibilities whether young people like it or not.

There are some boys and girls in the hippy group who know this in a vague sort of way. They will eventually accept these responsibilities.

Strong voices and firm decisions like those of Acting Mayor Baird could well hurry along their "growing up". And bring them to a place where they will have the opportunity to work in a sane and sensible way for the changes they believe so necessary in today's society.

TRIAL ON CORRUPTION CHARGE

S. Viet Generals Purged In Pre-Election Shake-Up

SAIGON (AP)—A major shakeup was reported today among high-ranking generals of South Vietnam's armed forces.

One account from reliable sources said five generals would be relieved of their duties and tried on charges of corruption.

The purge came as civilian candidates stressed the corruption theme in final stages of the Sept. 3 presidential election.

In the military shakeup, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, chief of state, told reporters the military rulers are discussing a plan that will "go from generals to second lieutenants."

Asked if any of the generals had been fired for corruption, Thieu replied: "Not yet."

Qualified unofficial sources reported that Maj. Gen. Linh Quang Vien, the minister of security, and Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Vy, the chief of staff of the joint general staff, would be relieved of their military duties and sent abroad as ambassadors.

These sources said Maj. Gen. Tran Ngoc Tam, South Vietnam's co-ordinator with the Free World Forces Command, and Maj. Gen. Bui Hu Nhon, commander of the Thu Duc military school, would leave the army.

DIEF KEEPS BUSY DENYING HE'S BUSY

(Times News Services)

TORONTO—There were increasing indications today that John Diefenbaker was considering a bid for re-election as national leader at the Conservative convention here in September.

Reports were circulating that Mr. Diefenbaker was requesting delegate lists and renting a telephone circuit for Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. Diefenbaker denied the reports (see Page 2) but would not say whether or not he was seeking re-election. The convention opens September 5.

A study of Mr. Diefenbaker's chances—if he decides to run—is on Page 31.

Quebec Commission Urges Complete Medicare Plan

QUEBEC (CP)—A universal medical care plan giving virtually complete insurance coverage against illness to Quebec residents was recommended today by the provincial government's royal commission on health.

The provincial plan suggested agrees with all qualifications of the federal medical care program, including the scheduled starting date of July 1, 1968.

It would cover everyone, including mental cases, be portable from province to province, be state-run on a non-profit basis and subject to public audit.

Cost of medical care is estimated at $230,000,000 in the first year.

Suggested financing is a one-per-cent levy on taxable income, subject to exemptions and maximum limits. The federal and Quebec governments would also contribute.

The recommendations go further than public statements to date of Premier Daniel Johnson, who has advocated a partial step-by-step medical care plan.

The report is by an eight-member commission whose chairman is actuary Claude Castonguay.

Recommendations are:

—Drugs prescribed for the chronically ill should be covered at the start and this coverage could be extended when drug prices and financial resources permit.

—Dental surgery should be covered at the start; but other aspects of dental care should be added progressively along with such things as eye examinations and chiropractic care.

The commission says a one-per-cent increase in Quebec's income tax would produce $35,000,000. Ottawa would pay $105,000,000 as its share and Quebec $90,000,000 out of general revenue.

It says a uniform rate for specified medical services should be established and doctors should be permitted to disassociate themselves from the system as individuals but not as groups.

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI)—George Lincoln Rockwell, "fuhrer" of the American Nazi Party, was shot to death today by an assassin in a parking lot ambush. Minutes later, police arrested a suspect identified as a former Rockwell follower.

HOFFMAN RULED FIT FOR TRIAL

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP)—Victor Ernest Hoffman, 21, today was ruled fit to stand trial on a charge of capital murder in the Aug. 15 shooting death of James Peterson, 47, of Shell Lake, Sask.

Mr. Peterson, his wife Evelyn, 43, and seven of their children were found slain by a neighbor.

Magistrate J. M. Pollock announced the decision in court and set Oct. 24 for a preliminary hearing to be held here, 80 miles northwest of Saskatoon.

TWO SHOTS
Witnesses said two shots were fired from the top of the laundry as Rockwell backed his blue and white old model Chevrolet out of a parking space.

Both bullets went through the windshield. One struck Rockwell in the head and the other hit him just above the heart. He apparently died instantly.

His car kept moving and stopped when it collided with another automobile in the parking lot. Police said he fell partially out of the car after being hit.

SAW KILLER
Robert Hancock, 17, a laundry attendant, said he heard two shots about 12:20 p.m. EDT that came from atop the one-storey building. He said Rockwell, his car moving, apparently dived for the passenger side of the front seat, indicating he might have seen his assassin before he was hit.

Rockwell, the son of a vaudeville comic, organized the Nazi party in 1959 with the avowed policy of deporting Negroes to Africa, dispossessing Jews and sterilizing them, and hanging "traitors" like former president Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman.

In 1961, Rockwell told a reporter: "The Jews may try to assassinate me to stop me from speaking, but if they get to me, Continued on Page 8"

The peasants tilled their land quietly for three hours, but as they made their way slowly back to the bridge across the border, they lingered near the immigration office on the British side.

Chinese Attack Border

From AP-Reuters

HONG KONG (CP)—Machine-gun fire rattled across the border from China into Hong Kong tonight, whirling over the heads of British officers in an observation tower.

Two bombs were also lobbed over the frontier and a British Gurkha soldier retaliated with a smoke grenade.

No casualties were reported on the Hong Kong side.

But a government spokesman said one of the bombs apparently bounced back into Chinese territory. It exploded and people were seen being carried away, he said.

It was after the bomb-throwing incident that Chinese troops opened up with machine-guns, the spokesman said.

He said three men spotted throwing the bombs were flushed out by a smoke grenade thrown from the British side.

Pollution Move Costs $23.5M

HANNOVER, West Germany (Reuters)—Otto Hess, a leading figure in West Germany's extreme right-wing National Democratic party, has committed suicide, a party official said today.

Hess, 58-year-old former colonel in the Nazi storm troopers, was found dying by a lodger at his home in Bissendorf about 6 p.m. Thursday, said Waldemar Schuetz, a fellow member of the party presidium.

He died soon after being taken to hospital. Schuetz was Hess was one of the most controversial figures in the party because of his Nazi past.

MORTARS, GRENADES BREAK CYPRUS TRUCE

NICOSIA (AP)—Greek and Turkish Cypriots early today exchanged thousands of shots in a new flareup at Limassol, southern port of Cyprus.

Greek Cypriot sources said the shooting started soon after two police Land Rovers passing through the town's Turkish area were fired on by Turks. The police returned the fire and shooting continued intermittently for about two hours.

After a brief pause, heavy firing was resumed, in which mortars and grenades were used, the sources added.

No casualties were reported.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR ANSWERS CRITICS

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The executive director of the Company of Young Canadians has flatly rejected reports of an "extremist" takeover of the controversial youth program.

At a press conference Thursday Alan Clarke also said he had received no charges that any member of the CYC was a communist and was sure there were none in the company.

If such allegations should be made he would call for an investigation to determine whether they could be substantiated, Mr. Clarke said.

His press conference was called in the wake of a story in the Montreal Gazette that radicals had infiltrated the CYC.

The newspaper said that "some of them are Marxist and others possibly communist oriented."

It then quoted from an article by Lynn Curtis, a Victoria-based CYC volunteer, carried in the magazine "Scan" which is described as a publication directed at communist youth.

"I know both Lynn Curtis and his parents and he is not a communist," Mr. Clarke said.

There was no room for extremists whose actions conflicted with the democratic aims and purposes of the CYC's program to help alleviate social problems in Canada, Mr. Clarke said.

But the company could and does embrace "radicals" whom Mr. Clarke described as persons concerned with attacking the "basic and root problems of society."

Company a 'Flop' Says Tory Chief

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Conservative national leader John Diefenbaker described Prime Minister Pearson's Company of Young Canadians today as an "ill digested" piece of legislation "borrowed from the United States that has acted as a magnet for crackpots and leftists."

He conceded that there were some "dedicated young people" in the organization. But he said it was the type of organization the Communists would seek to take over to try to change the social order within Canada.

"It has proved to be a gigantic flop," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

Arthur Mayse

One evening not too many weeks from now, I am going to find myself confronting an adult education class whose members will expect me to teach them the largely unteachable. This is the art, craft or knack of creative writing, a gift of doubtful virtue best fostered alone and in a state of mental anguish.

All any teacher can provide is enthusiasm, a breakdown of standard techniques, and sympathy when the phrases so bright in the mind come out cross-ways.

He can also answer as best he can the questions that vex the man or woman who hopes one day to break into print.

With that last in mind, I propose to get in some advance ticks by dealing with a few of those queries.

The ones I've picked are hardy perennials. They spring up fresh and green each year, and undoubtedly will keep doing so while there's a word-be writer to shatter a lance against the editorial towers.

Q. If I send my work to an editor, isn't there a chance that he will steal it? I have a friend, and she sent a short story to Green Book, and next month it turned up with a different name on it.

A. Ho hum, and here we go again... Listen, dear lady, the editor of Green Book gets so many punk stories showered on him, and so few good ones, that he will be only too glad to pay you or your friend for a publishable piece. He may on rare occasions lose a manuscript, or return it to someone else by mistake, but he won't steal it. That story your friend spotted was probably bought many months before she submitted her effort. Happens all the time. Why, I remember...

Q. I've always felt I'm held back by not having an agent. How do you go about getting a good agent?

A. As a general rule, you don't. The agent, or literary representative as he may style himself, will get you. But before he makes his bid, you must demonstrate your potential as a writer by selling several pieces, having a reasonably sound first novel published, or otherwise catching his eye. A good agent—and I warn you that the woods are full of bad ones—all waiting for Little Red Riding Hood—may then add you to his stable.

He will take his 10 per cent commission from sales (more for overseas) and prove his worth by extracting revenue from sources you never so much as heard of. Let me tell you about the time...

Q. How much does a writer get paid for his work?

A. Distressingly often, he winds up with a statted manuscript and a string of rejections. But win a reputation as a builder of better mousetraps and the sky's the limit.

Q. How much education does one need to be a writer?

A. A sound education is worth having, but it does not guarantee success in creative writing. We are dealing here with a natural gift.

Q. Why do you make it all sound so discouraging?

A. Because earth has no harder, lonelier, frustrating job than the professional writer's.

Perhaps once in his working life, he will be totally satisfied with what he has accomplished, but the euphoria soon wears off. Then he returns to being a haunted man, and a woman should think twice before she marries him. I knew one writer who phoned me out of bed at two in the morning...

Q. Do editors have a prejudice against women writers?

A. At long range, none whatever.

Q. Should I copyright the novel I'm working on?

A. No need. By the act of committing it to paper, you have established copyright. Why do you ask?

Q. Well, wouldn't it be safer? My uncle sent his novel to a publisher, and...

'ADMIRE HIS COURAGE'

Public Backing Baird's Views

Public reaction to Acting Mayor Robert Baird's banning of a love-in—and criticisms of the hippies—has been the greatest experienced at city hall.

And 90 per cent of it supports the acting mayor's point of view.

City hall switchboard has been lit up like a Christmas tree during the last two days as calls come in thick and fast. The public response has surprised city hall officials who have never experienced such a deluge.

Many of the callers have also given their names to show how strong they feel about the controversial issue.

Typical of the remarks received are these:

- "Approve very, very heartily of your statements about the hippies, and I hope you get the support of council. We don't want them in our parks—they are a blight on the landscape."
- "Congratulations for standing up to the hippies. I am rather disgusted with the two aldermen who are against Ald. Baird."
- "I just want to put my vote in for Ald. Baird."
- "No" to the hippies please, Ald. Baird."

● "I happen to agree with Ald. Baird, but aside from that I would like to say that I admire his courage in sticking to his opinion in the face of such heavy criticism. We could use more like him."

● "Thought you should be congratulated on the stand you took in the paper. We should not give an inch to these mental degenerates. I heartily endorse all you have said."

● "Thought you did a marvellous job of meeting with the hippies."

● "I am very pleased with the attitude that the acting mayor has taken towards the hippies."

However, some comments received, including a telegram which called for his removal from office, opposed his stand. "These hippies should be treated the same as other people. If they misbehave in their use of the park, they should not be permitted to use it again. However, they should be entitled to a fair trial, and if they are not, then we are heading to a Hitler state."

In an emergency meeting this afternoon city council was to decide whether to give the Victoria Youth Council permission to use Beacon Hill Park for a love-in, previously banned by Ald. Baird.

OPERATING ROOM MISHAP

St. Joseph's Responsible For Injuries to Woman

St. Joseph's Hospital is liable for injuries sustained by a 40-year-old Courtenay housewife when she underwent an operation there on June 14, 1964, Mr. Justice Gregory ruled in B.C. Supreme Court today.

Mr. Justice Gregory ruled that Mrs. Gladys Knight sustained injuries sustained when her right forearm and wrist were crushed in the mechanism of the operating table.

He directed, however, that the damages should be assessed after further legal argument on the costs of the action.

Mr. Justice Gregory exonerated the three orthopedic surgeons concerned in the operation—Dr. Rudolph Anderson, Dr. R. Neville Grant and Dr. Harold R. Carter.

Mrs. Knight, the wife of Percy N. Knight of Courtenay, was operated on for laminectomy (protruding disc).

Mr. Justice Gregory found that the operation was successful, but that, as Mrs. Knight was being moved onto a stretcher from the operating table, her right forearm and wrist were squeezed between the table top and the framework of the table.

Being under anesthesia, she was unaware of this until later. Through Victoria lawyer Gerald Lauder, Mrs. Knight brought an action against St. Joseph's Hospital and the three surgeons, alleging negligence.

Mr. Justice Gregory said "no one was able to give first-hand evidence as to precisely when or how the mishap occurred." He added:

"It is obvious, however, that the plaintiff's arm became dislodged from the top of the bolster, where it was intended to have remained throughout the operation, and that it worked its way (unnoticed by anyone in the operating room) from a position of safety to one of danger."

At the Supreme Court hearing last June, Mr. Lauder asked Mr. Justice Gregory to award Mrs. Knight special damages of $705 to cover medical expenses and unspecified general damages because of "extensive pain and suffering caused."

HUNTING DELAYED BY FIRE DANGER

Hunting season opening dates in the southern half of B.C. have been wiped out by forest closures, a government spokesman said today.

A fish and wildlife official said only the north half of the province, beginning approximately at Williams Lake, is unaffected.

And a B.C. forests service spokesman said that a special long-range weather forecast drawn up for the department this morning indicates that all existing forest closures probably will remain in effect for the next three weeks.

The fish and wildlife official said there are numerous hunting season opening dates for a variety of game in various sections of the closed areas that become ineffective because of the forest closures.

On Vancouver island, the grouse opening was to be Sept. 2 and for deer Sept. 9 but it is most unlikely now that hunting will be permitted then—unless the forest closure is lifted of course," the official said.

Father Becomes 15th Victim In City Area

The father of a six-week-old baby died instantly early today when his car slammed into trees at the edge of the Old Island Highway near Admirals Road. Raymond Michael Arden, 25, of 784 Gorge West is the 15th person to die on Greater Victoria roads this year and the eighth fatality in the Colwood RCMP district.

He was alone in his car when it left the highway shortly after midnight and smashed into three trees near the turnoff for the Christie Point apartments, close to Shoreline Drive.

ROOF TORN OFF

The car struck the trees on the driver's side and the force of the smash tore the roof off the auto.

Police said the accident happened at the end of a curve on the highway where the speed limit is 30 miles an hour. Arden was driving towards Victoria. His car was a write-off.

Dead man was a machine operator for Butler Brothers Supplies Ltd. He leaves his wife Joyce, 19, a daughter, Theresa, 2 and Michael born last month.

No one has reported witnessing the accident.

"Somebody heard a bang and phoned," an officer said.

HOLD INQUIRY

Police said Coroner Edmond St. Jorre will conduct an inquiry.

The fatal crash was one of four smash-ups which kept Colwood RCMP officers on the go all night.

Allan Waddy, 20, of HMCS St. Croix is in "fairly satisfactory" condition at Canadian Forces Base Hospital, Esquimalt, after his car rammed a rock abutment on the Trans-Canada Highway near Goldstream shortly before 7 a.m.

The car, which ended up on its roof, was wrecked, officers said. Waddy was alone.

$2,500 DAMAGE

An hour later a truck parked on a service station at Colwood Corners slipped its brakes, clipped a car as it ran a hundred yards down the road and then ploughed into a hairdressing salon.

No one was hurt but damage was estimated at $2,500.

The truck is owned by C. Krofta Ltd. of Parksville and the operator was Jake Feenstra of Port Alberni.

PULP MILL WORKER KILLED

A worker at the Harmac pulp mill near Nanaimo was killed in an accident Thursday night.

John Fenton Humphrey, 44, of 435 Asygarth Street, Nanaimo, was crushed by logs shortly after the 7 p.m. break.

He was pinned between the gang saw and the logs.

At the time, he was kneeling in front of the infired roll, police said. Suddenly the logs behind him moved ahead and the logs pinned him between the cant and the roll.

No one saw the accident. The gang saw had not yet been started.

Humphrey is the father of three children.

An inquest will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

'GOOD THING'

Curtis Supports Sewage Proposal

Initial support was voiced today to anti-pollution measures announced by the provincial government.

"I find I'm somewhat in sympathy with what they've done — on first glance," said the chairman of the Capital Region District, Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis.

The government was "putting teeth into the question of sewer construction and probably this is a good thing."

"There is the danger in this region, as we have said before, of waiting to cross every t and dot every i before construction and this could drag on."

"If the provincial government

feels it must strengthen its hand I'm sure they do so with the best interests of the built-up areas in heart."

He wondered if the province will give any indication of willingness to share "in these huge costs, which are inevitable."

On the basis of first reports "I'm not terribly disturbed. We have not reached the stage where our plans have bogged down but they could bog down. We have hoped the region could have started in two years anyway."

City manager Dennis Young said that provincial legislation forcing municipalities to upgrade sewage collection and disposal plants would have little effect on Victoria taxpayers.

"Naturally a great deal will depend on the details of the order in council or of a new act passed in the legislature," he said. "It should not have a serious effect on the taxpayers of Victoria. We already have considerable sums of money put away in our capital budget to meet our share of the cost of the proposed $23.5 million scheme for the Saanich Peninsula."

Q. Why is the Canadian National Railway line between Victoria and Cowichan never used. Is it because the Colquitz Creek bridge is not safe? E.W.

A. The section of line between Victoria and Colwood is not used because of the bridge's condition but the rest of the line carries traffic. Barge traffic is also used to carry freight between Victoria and the Cowichan area.

The unused portion of the line is well maintained to conform with government regulations.

The bridge requires $50,000 to be spent on it before it is safe for use and so far the company has not decided on a policy for this bridge.

Two Lanes On Gorge Bridge Open to Traffic

Two lanes of the newly constructed Gorge Bridge were scheduled to open late today.

Dismantlement of the temporary Bailey bridge will start immediately so that final construction of the new bridge can continue.

All four lanes will be open next month.

Cost of the bridge is being shared by the provincial government and the municipalities of Esquimalt and Saanich.

THOUGHTS ON 'THAT' DAY

'I Want a Man Teacher ... He'll Be Nice to Me!'

By DON VIPOND
A week Tuesday is THAT day.

The park swings are still swinging, the wading pools still good for splashing and there's a satisfying "thump" when they kick that football.

But the kids are thinking.

With just 10 days of freedom left, wouldn't you?

And with the first day of school so close, they're wondering about—who else?—TEACHER!

They have some startling preferences on whether a man teacher or a woman is best, for example.

Questioning the youngsters in Central Park this morning brought forth these thoughts:

Tracy Harris, 10, of 1144 Queens, who is headed for Grade 5:

"I want a man teacher—cause then he'll be nice to me!"

That's not the way Janet Menu, 10, of 2009 Cook, feels about it though.

"I think ladies are nicer than men... and they can't strap as hard!"

Donna Kavanagh, 10, of 2314 Grove in Sidney disagrees.

She wants a man teacher.

"They're funnier. The ladies take it serious."

Malcolm Norby, 10, of 1031 Caledonia thinks maybe a lady teacher would be best.

"They let you take home-work home."

He thinks that's a pretty good idea.

"And they give you more artwork and more fun."

The kids have some ideas about what should happen that big first day at school too.

Suppose you were the teacher, they were asked.

What would you tell your class first thing on the first day?

"I'd tell 'em to be good or they'll get the strap," Tracy said flatly.

Walter Schneider, 10, of 2316 Quadra, wants to avoid problems.

"I'd tell everybody to get their books put away so they won't make any noise doing it the next day."

NANETTE
... a "ew" dog

Mark Menu, 9, was pretty practical about it too.

"You'd have everybody write their names on the books—so they wouldn't lose 'em or something."

Who says kids aren't organized?

Donna would try to make some order out of chaos too.

MALCOLM
... more homework

"They'd all write out name tags so I could learn them."

Malcolm was a little more specific on the curriculum. A little.

"I'd give them the Bible... and all that other stuff."

Nanette Norby, who is only five and is taking that first mysterious step into kindergarten, didn't have anything to say about teachers. She's never met one.

JANET

But she has some thoughts on what kindergarten should offer and why she's going to give it a try.

She wants to play with the toys. It's as simple as that.

Most of all, she wants to play with a dog there.

Not just any dog.

MARK
... names for books

"I want a new dog."

So there you are.

Close to 21,000 youngsters are giving the matter some thought in what the adults call School District 61.

About 560 teachers are thinking about it too.

Should make for an interesting meeting of minds in just 10 days.

LOVE-IN BANNED, COUNCIL RULES

City council today turned down the application of the Victoria Youth Council to hold a love-in at Beacon Hill Park on Sunday.

A motion to permit the event, introduced by Ald. Ian Stewart and seconded by Ald. Lily Wilson, was defeated, 2-2, including the negative vote of Acting Mayor Robert Baird.

In speaking to the motion, Ald. Stewart said "council will have gone a long way back to the dark ages if it refuses the application on the basis that the group making it is characterized by a certain number of offensive people."

Speaking at a cabinet meeting Sato said an announcement by the economic planning agency placed Japan about even with Britain, the third largest industrial nation, in terms of gross national product. The United States is first.

Quebec Commission Urges Complete Medicare Plan

QUEBEC (CP)—A universal medical care plan giving virtually complete insurance coverage against illness to Quebec residents was recommended today by the provincial government's royal commission on health.

The provincial plan suggested agrees with all qualifications of the federal medical care program, including the scheduled starting date of July 1, 1968.

It would cover everyone, including mental cases, portable from province to province, be state-run on a non-profit basis and subject to public audit.

Cost of medical care is estimated at $230,000,000 in the first year.

Suggested financing is a one-per-cent levy on taxable income, subject to exemptions and maximum limits. The federal and Quebec governments would also contribute.

The recommendations go further than public statements to date of Premier Daniel Johnson, who has advocated a partial step-by-step medical care plan.

The report is by an eight-member commission whose chairman is actuary Claude Castonguay.

Recommendations are:

Police Charge Former Aide

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI)—George Lincoln Rockwell, "fuhrer" of the American Nazi Party, was shot to death today by an assassin in a parking lot ambush. Minutes later, police arrested John Patler, identified as a former Rockwell follower.

Rockwell, 49, was hit in the head and chest by sniper bullets in the parking lot of a small shopping centre in suburban Washington, D.C., where he had gone to wash his clothes at a coin-operated laundry.

Witnesses said the sniper leaped from the roof of a beauty parlor after the shooting and fled into a park about five blocks away. He was a white man wearing yellow socks and a trench coat.

Commonwealth Attorney William J. Hassan said that Patler was associated with Rockwell. No weapon was found immediately.

TWO SHOTS

Witnesses said two shots were fired from the top of the laundry as Rockwell backed his blue and white old model Chevrolet out of a parking space.

Both bullets went through the windshield. One struck Rockwell in the head and the other hit him just above the heart. He apparently died instantly.

His car kept moving and stopped when it collided with another automobile in the parking lot. Police said he fell partially out of the car after being hit.

SAW KILLER

Robert Hancock, 17, a laundry attendant, said he heard two shots about 12:20 p.m. EDT that came from atop the one-story building. He said Rockwell, his car moving, apparently dived for the passenger side of the front seat, indicating he might have seen his assassin before he was hit.

Rockwell, the son of a vaudeville comic, organized the Nazi party in 1959 with the avowed policy of deporting Negroes to Africa, dispossessing Jews and sterilizing them, and hanging "traitors" like former presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman.

In 1961, Rockwell told a reporter: "The Jews may try to assassinate me to stop me from speaking, but if they get to me, Continued on Page 8"

TRIAL ON CORRUPTION CHARGE

S. Viet Generals Purged In Pre-Election Shake-Up

SAIGON (AP)—A major shakeup was reported today among high-ranking generals of South Vietnam's armed forces.

One account from reliable sources said five generals would be relieved of their duties and tried on charges of corruption.

The purge came as civilian candidates stressed the corruption theme in final stages of the Sept. 3 presidential election. In the military shakeup, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, chief of state, told reporters the military rulers are discussing a plan that will "go from generals to second lieutenants."

SUGGESTS CORRUPTION

Asked if any of the generals had been fired for corruption, Thieu replied: "Not yet."

Qualified unofficial sources reported that Maj. Gen. Linh Quang Vien, the minister of security, and Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Vy, the chief of staff of the joint general staff, would be relieved of their military duties and sent abroad as ambassadors.

These sources said Maj. Gen. Tran Ngoc Tam, South Vietnam's co-ordinator with the Free World Forces Command, and Maj. Gen. Bui Hu Nhon, commander of the Thu Duc military school, would leave the army.

Ribicoff said today he will make the trip when congress adjourns, probably in November.

Hoffman RULED FIT FOR TRIAL

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP)—Victor Ernest Hoffman, 21, today was ruled fit to stand trial on a charge of capital murder in the Aug. 15 shooting death of James Peterson, 47, of Shell Lake, Sask.

Mr. Peterson, his wife Evelyn, 45, and seven of their children were found slain by a neighbor.

Magistrate J. M. Polucha announced the decision in court and set Oct. 24 for a preliminary hearing to be held here, 50 miles northwest of Saskatoon.

The commission says a one-per-cent increase in Quebec's income tax would produce $35,000,000. Ottawa would pay $105,000,000 as its share and Quebec $90,000,000 out of general revenue.

It says a uniform rate for specified medical services should be established and doctors should be permitted to disassociate themselves from the system as individuals but not as groups.

Chinese Attack Hong Kong Border

From AP-Reuters

HONG KONG (CP)—Machine-gun fire rattled across the border from China into Hong Kong tonight, whining over the heads of British officers in an observation tower.

Two bombs were also lobbed over the frontier and a British Gurkha soldier retaliated with a smoke grenade.

No casualties were reported on the Hong Kong side. But a government spokesman said one of the bombs apparently bounced back into Chinese territory. It exploded and people were seen being carried away, he said.

It was after the bomb-throwing incident that Chinese troops opened up with machine-guns, the spokesman said.

He said three men spotted throwing the bombs were flushed out by a smoke grenade thrown from the British side.

The trouble erupted at a border bridge at Lowu, where British troops earlier lobbed tear gas grenades to drive a crowd of stone-throwing Chinese peasants back across the border.

The peasants had crossed to till their plots on the Hong Kong side while Chinese soldiers warned the British over loudspeakers that if they tried

At a press conference Thursday Alan Clarke also said he had received no charges that any member of the CYC was a communist and was sure there were none in the company.

If such allegations should be made he would call for an investigation to determine whether they could be substantiated, Mr. Clarke said.

His press conference was called in the wake of a story in the Montreal Gazette that radicals had infiltrated the CYC.

The newspaper said that "some of them are Marxist and others possibly communist oriented."

It then quoted from an article by Lynn Curtis, a Victoria-based CYC volunteer, carried in the magazine "Scan" which is described as a publication directed at communist youth.

"I know both Lynn Curtis and his parents and he is not a communist," Mr. Clarke said. There was no room for extremists whose actions, conflicted with the democratic aims and purposes of the CYCs.

Company a 'Flop' Says Tory Chief

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Conservative national leader John Diefenbaker described Prime Minister Pearson's Company of Young Canadians today as an "ill digested" piece of legislation "borrowed from the United States that has acted as a magnet for crackpots and leftists."

He conceded that there were some "dedicated young people" in the organization. But he said it was the type of organization the Communists would seek to take over to try to change the social order within Canada.

"It has proved to be a gigantic flop," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

New laws are goin' t' clean up polluted water an' air. The'll leave jist us people.

Why shouldn't Mister Diefenbaker run? All th' other Conservatives are.

Rockwell's ideas died b'fore he did.

DIEF KEEPS BUSY DENYING HE'S BUSY

TORONTO—There were increasing indications today that John Diefenbaker was considering a bid for re-election as national leader at the Conservative convention here in September.

Reports were circulating that Mr. Diefenbaker was requesting delegate lists and renting a telephone circuit for Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. Diefenbaker denied the reports (see Page 2) but would not say whether or not he was seeking re-election. The convention opens September 5.

A study of Mr. Diefenbaker's chances—if he decides to run—is on Page 31.

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—Fog patches in the central interior along with cloud and some showers in the north coast region was the only disruption to the generally clear skies over the province Thursday night.

A system moving into the Alaskan panhandle this morning will keep showers into most of the north coast through Saturday. The remainder of British Columbia will continue to be influenced by a strong ridge of high pressure which will maintain sunny skies through the weekend. Temperatures will show a little warming over most areas, especially through the interior.

U.K., SOVIET TO SET UP 'HOT LINE'

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia and Britain today signed an agreement to set up a "hot line" teleprinter link between the Kremlin and Prime Minister Wilson's London office.

The foreign office announced that the agreement was signed by Deputy Foreign Minister George Thomson and Russian Ambassador Mikhail Shtromovsky.

In actual fact only $17,000 was really at stake in that row yet the premier felt obliged to say some harsh things and even to send out a plane as well as urgent phone calls to bring in his cabinet for an emergency session so that he could confront the Wallaces with the news his government was "unanimous."

Aid Bill Trimmed In House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives, laboring through a marathon 15-hour session, voted today to slash President Johnson's foreign aid program by $500,000 to $2,800,000,000.

The vote record was 202 to 194.

The House passed measure contains nearly $300,000,000 more than the Senate approved last week.

The differences, mostly in the military assistance section of the legislation, now must be resolved by a two-house conference committee.

Included among the major cuts were $150,000,000 from the development loan program, $72,000,000 from the Alliance for Progress and $25,000,000 from the president's contingency fund.

Another $60,000,000 for support of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was chopped out after members were told they already had authorized the money in a separate bill passed earlier.

SNIPING BEGINS

Is Bennett at War With Establishment?

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

A marked change in the province's political climate appears to be under way.

After almost two years of truce between the province's "Establishment" and Premier Bennett, sniping has broken out again and we may soon see full-scale war between the two.

In a most unusual public confrontation this week, Mr. Bennett and two sons of the Wallace ship-building family slugged it out in front of a dozen newspaper reporters.

John Wallace of Yarrows and David Wallace of Burrard Drydock were fairly bristling at Mr. Bennett's decision to change government policy on the rates for bidding on ferry shipwreck repairs.

When it came time to name the new directors, it became obvious that none had the particular experience or influence needed to fill the president's post, so what happened? The Power Corporation obligingly loaned the services of Frank Trebell who was running Yorkshire Trust for it.

Mr. Bennett pushed hard and publicly for the bank to raise $250 million in capital and Mr. Trebell quickly but effectively cut this down to $74 million at first and then $25 million later.

The Establishment did not come through with subscriptions as Mr. Bennett had hoped and in the result even Mr. Trebell's conservative target proved too high.

Then another strange thing occurred. Members of the establishment, although requesting anonymity, talked freely to reporters about being "pressured" by the premier by phone to chip in at least $1 million from each of their companies to make the capitalization drive a success.

The mere fact that they would talk about such delicate matters is the significant thing and Mr. Bennett, stung bitterly, retaliated with a Establishment even asks me into his home. I've finally convinced them I'm here to stay and they better like it."

The election was held but despite a general belief the Socialists would stay in power forever.

So, instead of getting the remaining $50 million from his new-found Canadian friends, Mr. Bennett had to go back to Wall Street to plead for a second instalment.

He got it but became more determined than ever to gain financial independence through the Bank of B.C. even if the government was not allowed to own shares.

The mere fact that they would talk about such delicate matters is the significant thing and Mr. Bennett, stung bitterly, retaliated with a press conference condemning "the enemies of B.C." represented by federal Liberal politicians, the press and unidentified but prominent businessmen.

In quick succession, Yorkshire's owners held a major board meeting at which Mr. Trebell insisted there was "no pressure whatever" but found himself faced with a decision and chose to leave the bank to return to Yorkshire immediately, despite the awkward co-incidence that the bank's vice-president was being buried the same day after a violent death.

Mr. Bennett was not pleased when the resignation was announced and he could hardly have been any happier when only a few days later he was locked in a most uncomfortable dispute with the Wallace cousins.

Mr. Bennett fought the establishment and lost many times before he became premier, but in the past few years he has won the laurels of victory. To find that the glorious vines wrapped round his head have begun to fade must be galling.

If he were a young man still, he could re-enter the struggle and I would wager he would win again — but then so many things could be accomplished by all save for that little word "if."

Reading between the lines, he might have been saying: I've won my fight to be accepted and even embraced by the Establishment and now have a very large financial group to help me with that other $50 million.

And so Premier and Mrs. Bennett stayed a day at the Lakeside Hot Springs resort near Kitimat during their motor tour of the north after the ferry's inaugural run.

Lakeside was another Power Corporation holding and he went there as a specially-invited guest which he was quick to point out to reporters as much as to say: "Look, the

"Some radicals have made a major contribution, but not an exclusive one, to the CYC," he added.

There had been no takeover by any particular group, Mr. Clarke said, adding that this would be impossible because of checks and balances incorporated in the policy of the provisional advisory council of the company.

On the other hand no young person would be excluded from joining because of his philosophy or ideology—"except as it conflicts with the democratic aims and principles" of the CYC.

Mr. Curtis, who is 25, has not moved "outside his terms of reference," Mr. Clarke said.

In the CYC's annual report these terms were described in this manner:

"Young people in Victoria are organizing a variety of activities, including a youth council, occasional happenings, and other educational and recreational projects."

Mr. Clarke said that while he did not subscribe to many of Mr. Curtis' views as set out in the Scan article, he did not think they were "seditious."

Mr. Curtis wrote that there had been a tremendous shift to the left in the CYC—"a general acceptance of the concept of social change rather than social reform."

"The analysis accepts that many of the things thought to be problems are really only symptoms of a rotting middle class system and that this is what needs changing," he continued.

Mr. Curtis said that if current plans are carried out the company would become a "hard core of activists" able to do quality work rather than "a large group of kids with emphasis on quantity."

The CYC should become difficult to join because of high standards in "social conscience, awareness of the society, maturity, youth communication ability."

The company has both ideas and a lot of federal government financial backing which radical youth should not steer away from, Mr. Curtis told his readers.

"If you find that you are presently depending a lot of time talking, this might be your chance to get off your ass and do something," Mr. Curtis concluded.

Mr. Clark said that as a Canadian and a volunteer Mr. Curtis had a right to hold and express his own views, although the CYC executive did not associate with them.

DEDS WOULDN'T STAY

"This is not a reflection of company policy, it is the reflection of one view, Mr. Clarke said.

He repeated that his personal knowledge of Mr. Curtis and his family convinced him that the boy was in no way a communist.

As a general policy there is no such thing as "ideological screening" of CYC trainees.

Mr. Clarke acknowledged that if a communist wished to lie he could infiltrate the organization as a volunteer, but would soon be weeded out by the nature of close contact between volunteers and those who help and supervise their activities.

At the moment there are 85

Family Trio Convicted In Near Riot

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—Two brothers and a sister, arrested following a July 22 near riot involving more than 500 people, were convicted of five counts Thursday.

Thomas Rene Daniels, Gary Joseph Daniels and Kay Francis Daniels, all of Kitwanga were remanded until today for sentence.

Miss Daniels and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Daniels, also of Kitwanga today face four more charges arising from the demonstration that saw 10 persons jailed after more than an hour of rock and beer-bottle tossing.

Thomas and Gary Daniels were convicted on charges of assaulting a peace officer and obstruction.

Miss Daniels was convicted on a charge of obstruction.

Joseph Daniels, the man whose arrest started the near riot, will face trial on an intoxication charge today. His wife will appear on charges of obstruction and causing a disturbance and Miss Daniels will face a charge of causing a disturbance by being drunk.

Petition Urges Truscott Trial

OTTAWA (CP)—A group of local Italian Canadians plans to petition Pope Paul VI in a bid to obtain a new trial for convicted murderer Steven Truscott.

Norma Bjerke, a housewife from nearby Aylmer, Que., said in an interview Thursday she has already obtained 3,000 signatures for the petition. Pope Paul will be asked to sign it, it then will be circulated in Italy and finally sent to Justice Minister Trudeau.

volunteers and 40 trainees in 33 CYC projects in Canada.

The decision not to "screen" volunteers or members had been taken by the advisory council in consultation with security officials, Mr. Clarke said.

SCREENING UNFAIR

"It would be impossible for anyone to get into the company who held totalitarian views because of our rigid selection service," he said.

He said that to screen Mr. Curtis now would be "unfair unless specific charges were laid against him."

He did not know the volunteer had contributed an article to Scan, but said Mr. Curtis was free to publish his views anywhere they would be printed.

Mr. Clarke could not accept the necessity of forcing CYC volunteers and members to confine their views of the company within its own boundaries.

The CYC was different from any other government organization, he said, and every youth group in the country "has a great deal of discussion and our volunteers want to be part of it."

"Discipline is not a word in our vocabulary," Mr. Clarke said.

three weeks we will have something to say about air pollution."

Mr. Campbell distributed copies of a letter he will send immediately to all 138 municipal councils in the province warning them of the situation they will face when the legislation is submitted in January or February.

The letter says the Pollution Control Board will be authorized to set "the level of sewerage treatment to be required" of municipalities and to order them to submit engineering plans within six months of a notice of demand.

Upon approval of such plans by the PCB, "the municipality would within 18 months be required to undertake the works."

And, the letter added "compliance with these orders... would be exclusively within the jurisdiction and competence of the municipal council, and would not require the assent of the owner electors."

Mr. Campbell's form letter concludes by asking that each council inform him now about its current methods of sewerage treatment and any plans it may have on the books for improving them.

VICTORIA AFFECTED FIRST

He made it clear that Greater Victoria will be affected almost immediately because the recent metro sewer study already has produced a comprehensive proposal so the PCB could skip the first six-month deadline.

He was asked if that meant that the PCB likely would issue the 18-month notice to begin construction almost as soon as the legislation is approved.

"That's the idea," Mr. Campbell responded.

"Greater Victoria is the biggest urban area now with any sewerage treatment facility," he said. "But there are others, such as New Westminster, Prince George, Chilliwack, Langley, Nelson and Trail."

Mr. Campbell pointed out, however, that the Greater Victoria sewer study's proposal "does not call for construction of all the trunks and laterals at once. It will be spread out over a number of years."

He added that the new law would apply to all municipalities.

NEW STANDARDS

"About 90 of the 138 municipalities have sewerage treatment in some form or other now but all will come under the policy," he said.

"It may well be that some of the 90—particularly those with sewage lagoons—will have to obstruct the peasants they would be "held responsible for the consequences."

The British replied with loud-speaker announcements that the Lowu crossing was open as always for farmers to cross and peacefully work their fields.

The peasants tilted their land quietly for three hours, but as they made their way slowly back to the bridge across the border, they lingered near the immigration office on the British side.

British troops on duty there lobbed two tear gas grenades. The Chinese produced homemade gas masks, but the smoke drove them back and they were all back in Chinese territory by dusk, a government spokesman said.

He said they were "clearly intent on making trouble" when they lingered near the immigration office.

COMEDIAN DIES

Merrill, comedian Lam Bum, known for his biting anti-Communist satire on a Hong Kong radio station, died today, a day after Communist terrorists turned him into a human torch.

The terrorists later boasted that they had executed him for ridiculing leftist riots and agitators.

He said no effort had been made to specifically recruit "radicals" and that the CYC was not seeking to become the "hard core of activists" that Mr. Curtis had mentioned.

Mr. Clarke was concerned about the "imbalance" in the image of the CYC but was still confident its work would go forward and contribute to important progress in the Canadian way of life.

CYC PROVIDES LAWYER FOR DEPOE

OTTAWA (CP)—The Company of Young Canadians has provided a lawyer for its volunteer David DePoe who faces charges of causing a disturbance in Toronto's Yorkville area.

Alan Clarke, executive director of the CYC, said Thursday the company would give similar aid to other volunteers who encountered legal difficulty while they were involved with CYC work.

Mr. DePoe, 23, was arrested twice in recent days in connection with hippie sit-ins in Yorkville and his case will come up Aug. 28.

... SEWAGE

Improve their facilities to meet the new level of standards to be set by the Pollution Control Board."

Mr. Campbell said the federal government provides up to 25 per cent financial assistance for sewerage and treatment projects through borrowing "forgiveness clauses" in Central Mortgage and Housing loans if certain conditions are met.

NO PROVINCIAL AID

He bluntly said the provincial government "contributes nothing" financially and does not intend to.

Mr. Campbell said it would be unfair to the majority of communities which have installed treatment facilities—at the cost of many millions in Vancouver—on their own if the government now introduced a subsidy policy.

"Any way, these municipalities have had no trouble financing these projects. The only difficulty has been obtaining the credit."

Mr. Campbell said it was the federal government's responsibility to stop its deficit financing because the public borrowings it makes as a result dry up money sources that municipalities depend upon for credit.

Both Mr. Campbell and Health Minister Wesley Black, who also attended the briefing, said the government's action was prompted by the recent Fraser River pollution study report "and many other reports" which strongly recommended that it force municipalities to treat sewage effluent before discharging it into water courses instead of leaving it on a voluntary basis.

Mr. Black said the septic tank regulations, which will be administered by his department, come into effect immediately.

The six pages of regulations require every person installing a septic tank to obtain a permit first from a medical health officer.

The MHO also is empowered to extend the regulations to any existing septic tank or sewage disposal system which in his opinion "is or may become a danger to public health."

All septic tanks must be built to the new specifications and none may be covered without final inspection and approval.

The succeeding regulations describe the various requirements for residential and other disposal systems, their design, construction and location.

The last section prescribes a penalty for violation of the regulations of up to $100 on summary conviction and "a further penalty not exceeding ten dollars for each day thereafter during which the violation continues."

Bad Publicity Ruins Eskimo Seal Trade

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—An unprecedented slump in the world sealskin market, blamed on adverse publicity about seal-killing methods in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, is threatening Arctic Eskimos with economic disaster.

Officials of the northern development department say about 1,000 Eskimo families count on sealskin sales for the major part of their cash income. But their market has virtually disappeared.

Three years ago arctic seal pelts sold at an average $14.78. This dropped to $11.08 in the 1964-65 season and to $5.87 in 1965-66. In recent months the price has fallen to between $2 and $3.

The Hudson's Bay Co., main buyer of northern furs, is reported to have about 100,000 unsold sealskins in storage, equal to two years supply. It is continuing to purchase skins in the $2-$3 range only as a token price to prevent extreme hardship among the Eskimos.

"There's no doubt about the cause of this situation," said Frank Carter, director of the northern administration branch. "It started when all the publicity broke about hunters skinning live baby seals in the Gulf of St. Lawrence."

Photos of the gulf operations received wide play in magazines and on European television, stirring animal-protection groups into a campaign against sealskin coats. Some top models refused to display sealskin coats or jackets.

Mr. Carter said in an interview there is no connection between hunting methods in the gulf and those used by Arctic Eskimos. Gulf sealers use heavy wooden clubs to smash the heads of baby seals. There have been accusations that many of the seals are merely stunned and die during the skinning process.

Eskimos stalk adult seals resting near ice-holes. A seal must be killed with one rifle shot or it will disappear down the hole.

The income from sealing goes to purchase rifles, ammunition, motors, gasoline and such staples as tea, coffee, sugar and flour.
